Farmer's Creed.
We believe in small farms and thorough cultivation.
We believe that the soil loves to eat, as We believe in going to be motlom of things-and therefore in deep ploughing and enough soil plough.
We believe the best fertilizer of any soil is a spirit of industry, enterprise and intelli-gence-without this lime and gypsum, bones and green manure, inarl and guano, will be of little use.
We believe in good fences, good barns, good farmhouses, good stock, good orchards and children etrough to gather the froit. We disbelieve in farmers who will not improve-in farms that grow poorer every year-farmers' boys turning into clerks and merchants-in farmers ashamed of their vocation.
The good farmer wears russet clothes, but makes golden payments, having tin Ins buttons, and silver in his pockets. In his house he is bountiful to strangers and poor people. He seldom gnes far abroad and his credit stretches farther than his travel. He improveth his land to a donof famine he is the Joseph of his country and keeps the poor from starving.

Signs of a Prosperous Farmer

1. When a farmer is seen marrying yoing help themselves, and that in future he wild bave helps of more kind than one. 2. When lights are seen burning in his house before break of day, in Winter especially, it shows that the day will never break on his breaking in the Winter of adversity.
2. When you see his barn larger than his house, it shows that he will have large profits and small afflictions.
3. When we qee him driving his work, instead of his work driving him, it shows hat he will never be driven from good resolutiens, and that be will certainly work his 5. When he is se
4. When he is seen subscribing for newspapers, it shows that he is speaking like a book respecting the improvements in agri"walking papers"to the land of poverty.Western World.

> Peas with Potatoes. It has generally been customary with itself, but I have been induced to adopt different course, and to economize somewhat of the expense by scattering a few peas along every row of potatoes, whether the latter be early or late. The vine is no detriment to the potatne, nor does their pre sence in the least diminish the faculty of By practicing this course, I annually plough. not only a regular succession of picking for iable use, while the peas remain ureen succulent, but a most abundant erop for winter use, and a clean article for the market or seeding, the subsequent spring. In some instances I have sown theng. pretty hick with the potatues; but too many is a detriment to hoeing, and as a general rule, 1 think half the usual planting quantity enough. The crop thus produced is harvested with ease, and is rarely injored by mildew or the "bug." Try it.-Germantown Telegraph.
