LINEAGE MADE EASY

Sir William Lever, besides being celebrated for his wonderful business capabilities, has also a reputation for wit. Shortly after he received his title he said that the College of Heraldry had no difficulty whatever about his pedigree.

All they had to do, he said, was to take away the "L" in front of my name and the "R" at the end and they had my pedigree at once.

PEACE AND WAR

It is estimated that over 80,000 officers and soldiers of the Salvation Army are now arrayed against each other in the European war, which began less than two months after a great international congress of Salvationists was held in London in June. Delegates were present from fifty different nations and colonies. Germany had about two hundred in the Congress, and of these 95 per cent are now fighting.

FIGS

The first known tree referred to in the Bible is the figtree. We are apt to think of figs as very sweet dried fruit, brown in color, packed into long wooden boxes. When newly gathered, figs are rather like pears in shape, and of a green or purple color. Eaten in this state the people of the East consider them the most delicious of fruit, but the figs are also dried, and in that form are included in almost every meal.

A NOVEL COMPETITION.

An amusing story is told by Lord Saye and Sele. He once attended a book dinner at which all the guests were expected to appear with an emblem denoting the title of a book. Lord Saye and Sele went in ordinary evening dress, but he carried a "sdy" petticoat over his arm. No one could guess what book he represented, but when he told them every one laughed. He represented Kipling's famous book, "Life's Handicap." His Lordship won the first prize.

TINNED CHEESE.

For a number of years the United States Department of Agriculture has been testing the merits of cheese put up in air-tight tins, and the results are said to be satisfactory. It is found commercially practicable to press cheese of the Sholar type in cans of small diameter, cut it into pieces of the desired weight, and seal it in the tins. This process not only conduces to the preservation of the product, but also prevents loss by evaporation and the waste entailed in cutting. Moreover, the tinned cheese has no rind, and this fact represents a gain which helps to offset the cost of tinning.

THE ROYAL PREROGATIVE

Some years ago when the Duke of Connaught was raised to the position of Lieutenant-Colonel of the First Rifle Brigade the late Queen Victoria commanded that he should only be saluted as a regimental officer, and not as a member of the Royal Family. On one occasion however an Irish sen-try, seeing the Duke and Duchess approaching, turned out the guard and gave the royal salute. The Duke was much annoyed, and proceeded to give the sergeant in charge a piece of his mind. But the quick-witted Irishman was equal to the occasion.

THE "HORSE CHESTNUT"

Why the horse chestnut is so called is a debatable point, but at least one passable explanation of the name may be found in a peculiar characteristic of the tree. If, when it is mature, a leaf be broken off cleanly at the point where its stem joins the branch it will be discovered that the base of the stem is the exact shape of a horse's hoof, and if one looks further one will see plainly marked upon the "hoof" the nail marks of the horse's shoe. The similitude of hoof and nails is at least remarkable. It might be supposed, in reference to the name of this tree, that horses were fond of the fruit, but one believes that this is not the case; nor does any other creature, except perhaps the rat or mouse, attempt to eat this natural and abundant product.

LADY COLONELS.

Now that Princess Mary is officially of "full age" several regiments in the Army are anxious that her name should be entitled with them and that there should be a "Princess Mary's Own." Among the claimants to this distinction are the Sixth Dragoon Guards—the senior cavalry regiment without the name of some member of the Royal Family identified with it—the Sixth Inniskilling Dragoons, the Thirteenth Hussars, and the Twentieth Hussars. The Norfolk Regiment too claims that as her Royal Highness was born in that county they should have the honor of bearing her name. To have a royal name coupled with a regiment is an ambition throughout the Army, and particularly in this case, in the cavalry. Three of these regiments indeed now claim royal titles as the Seventh Dragoon Guards (the Princess Royal), the Eighteenth Hussars (the Queen), and the Nineteenth Hussars (Queen Alexandra). These honors were bestowed by the King about twelve months ago.

SEEING BACKWARDS.

The hare can see objects behind as well as in front. Its eyes are large, prominent and placed laterally. Its power of seeing things in the rear is very noticeable in coursing, for, though the greyhound is mute, while running, the hare is able to judge to a nicety the exact moment at which it will be best for it to double. The giraffe, which is a very timid animal, is approached with the utmost difficulty on account of its eyes being so placed that it can see both ways with equal facility. This faculty enables it to direct with great precision the rapid storms of kicks with which it defends itself.

EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

A certain conceited colonel, who is as yet quite unknown to fame, had a great idea of his own importance, and was always boasting of what he would do if he went on active service. His military friends did not believe that he was so anxious to get into the thick of the fighting as he professed to be, and they laid their heads together, with the result that one of them rushed upon him with the false news—

"Have you heard the latest? You are ordered off for active service immediately!"

The colonel started to his feet. "Good heavens!" he cried. "Has French been killed already?"

THE AMERICAN CLAIM.

One of the strangest creatures known is the pholias, or boring clam of America. When still very minute the animal bores into the sandstone ledges at extreme low water level by means of its sharp shell, which is replaced by secretions as it is worn away. It penetrates the rock to a depth of six or eight inches, and hollows out its burrow as it increases in size. Shaped roughly like a top, it could not leave its rock dwelling even if it wished to do so. For food it depends on the animalcules that float in sea water, which it seizes by its long siphon or tongue.

The pholias is in great demand at the seaside resorts along the Pacific coast, for its meat is very tender and makes excellent soup. The clams are dislodged in great numbers, from the ledges by means of dynamite, although it is possible to obtain them with a pick and crowbar.

A FOSSILISED FOREST.

Of the fossil forests which have so far been discovered probably the most remarkable is to be seen in Yellowstone Park, America, where the greater part of the trees stand upright in their natural position instead of being recumbent and scattered about the ground as in other parts of the world. In Arizona the fossilised trunks have evidently been carried a long distance from where they originally grew. In the Yellowstone the trees now stand where they grew, and where they were entombed by the outpouring of various volcanic materials.

EXCHANGING COMPLIMENTS.

Here is an anecdote told about Adjutant-General Soukhomlinov, Russia's war minister. Once he was travelling incognito near Nice, accompanied by his wife, and they entered a modest village inn. But the landlady learned from the chauffeur who the illustrious guests were. Having brought in what was required, she then sat silently down to an old piano and played the Marseillaise to the great delight of all present.

RISE OF NEWFOUNDLAND

Newfoundland has had a curious history. Cabot, sailing from Bristol, discovered the country in 1497, and in 1583 Sir Humphrey Gilbert annexed its wild and rocky shores for Queen Elizabeth. Yet until one hundred and thirty years ago it was illegal to build a permanent house there. The island was held by "merchant adventurers" for the sake of the fisheries. They hired their fishermen in England, took them across the Atlantic each spring and brought them back at the commencement of winter. Newfoundland's importance in the cod fishery arises to a great extent from the fact that it is only within her waters that the small fish desirable as bait can be obtained in the necessary quantities.

A SUBSTITUTE.

The dashen, a comparatively new edible, threatens the supremacy of the potato. It is being cultivated in Florida with much success and with much profit to its cultivators, according to an American journal devoted to the gardening industry. The dashen stalks grow to a height of four to six feet. The plant has shield shaped leaves not unlike an elephant's ear. Each hill of dashen contains one or two large spherical corms, or bulbs, which grow to five pounds in weight; round them are developed numerous tubers. Both corms and tubers are like the potato in composition but they contain less water. One plant will produce from four to ten pounds of tubers in good rich soil. Both corms and tubers have an agreeable nutty flavor and are easily digested. The cook can serve a dashen in the same way that she serves a potato, and she can also prepare the blanched shoots, forced from the corms in hot houses, as she does asparagus. The leaves, when tender, can take the place of spinach.

VARIATIONS OF A WATCH

Those who wonder why their watches occasionally exhibit vagaries which Mr. J. J. Shaw, who assisted the late Professor Milne in his seismographic work, has communicated to the Royal Astronomical Society. Tests have shown that a watch which normally varies only to the extent of a second a day may gain or lose a quarter of a minute in the 24 hours if it is hung up on a stand or a bedpost. Mr. Shaw also suggests that the well known fact of a watch keeping bad time when worn by one else than the owner is not due to bodily temperature or animal magnetism, as is generally believed, but to the different rhythm of motion.

SYRUP OF FIGS FOR CROSS' SICK FEVERISH CHILD

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they come tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomachache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

Governor Harris, of Georgia, signed the last of a series of bills designed to banish from that State all breweries, locker clubs, and "near beer" saloons.

WOMEN ARE HOPEFUL OF PEACE

Delegation Waited on deleg Wilson, But Non-Committ

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Women peace advocates were behind a movement for a conference of neutral nations to be called by the President. They pressed themselves as optimists over their plans.

A delegation representing Mrs. Wilson is expected to arrive in London in an effort to induce him to support but President Wilson's effort to end the European war by his plans.

The women presented their views to the President who had opted at a local mass meeting to call upon neutral nations to appoint delegates to attend a conference having as its object the ending of the European conflict.

The resolutions declared that the women of the world were in sympathy with the belligerent nations of Europe and that they would have no objection to a conference of the nations of the world looking to the cessation of the war.

Although the president's statement regarding the war was not as yet his final word, the women believe that the time was opportune to take any step.

ALLIED TROOPS KEEP LA

Reinforcements Keep Coming of Saloniki.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

London, Nov. 27.—Allied troops continue to land at Saloniki numbers. A Reuter despatch yesterday said that the British reinforcements that port on Thursday and were immediately.

After the occupation of Patras by the Austrians and Germans, says the Reuter, the main body of Serbian forces were unable to retreat in a southerly direction. Their positions in the Katchik, however, were held by the forces of the invaders.

Official announcement has been made to the commanders of British troops at Saloniki of the government's intention to sacrifice to the freedom of action.

Winter has set in earlier than in the Balkans. It is expected that the Serbian army will be greatly hampered thereby.

Calling Two Years

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Petrograd, Nov. 27.—(In Montenegro).—The minister of the interior has issued a communication foreboding the possibility of summoning to the colors of the 1897, who normally are to military service until 1917.

FINISH SER FINIS

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Berlin, Nov. 27.—(In Montenegro).—Major Morah, in a statement, estimates that about 7,000 of the Serbian army have been about to reach Albania, a tenebrine soil, while 25,000 in southern Macedonia. He also that 130,000 have been and that about as many more or wounded are sick or maimed.

"Most of the latter," he said, "are inferior troops, which were sacrificed to enable the others to escape. These again were after recovery from the flight, either as mercenaries or the English purpose more than at present, or as guerrilla raiding in the Sanjak and Macedonia.
