SOUTH AFRICAN CENSUS. Some Humorous Incidents That the En-merators Met With in Their Work

Some Speaking Figures The mail brings details of the South African census returns, most of which have already been received in summary form by cable.

In 1891 the colony was divided for census purposes into three areas; the first section, the colony proper, did not include Griqualand West, which had been annexed after the date of the previous census in 1875. Griqua-land West was, therefore, the second section, and the native territories were the third section. The first sec-tion of the present census includes Griqualand West, the second section Griqualand West, the second section being the native territories, excluding Pondoland, and the third section comprises the territories annexed since 1891—Pondoland and Bechualaland. It will take about a year or so for a final report to be got out. The census supervisors and enumerators worked remarkably well; and especially was this the case in the native territories. The enumerators native territories. The enumerators were received cordially; the natives responded promptly to the wishes of the Government, and there were instances in which natives had goin hack home from long distances. stances in which natives had gon-back home from long distances to see that their families were properly enumerated. The figures for the Cape proper, which are unaudited, but may generally be taken to be correct, are. Total population, 1,485,634; Euro-pean or white, 543,926; other than European or white, 936,708. Per-

European or white, 936,708. Percentage of total population, European or white, 36,95; others, 63.05. In 1891 the figures were 1,039,860, 366,608, 673,252, 35.26, and 64.74 respectively. The figures for the native territories (excluding Pondoland) are: Total population, 632-239; European or white, 15,770; other than European or white, 616-460. Percentage of total population. 239; European or white, 15,770; other than European or white, 616,460. Percentage of total population—European or white, 2.49; others, 97.51. In 1891 the figures were 487,364, 10,379, 476,985, 2.13 and 97.87 respectively. The figures for the territories annexed (Pondoland and Bechuanaland) since the previous census, 1891, are: Total population, 287,005; European or white, 10,406; other than European or white, 276,599. Percentage of total population: European or white, 23.91; others, 96.37. The grand total for 1904 is: Total population, 2,404,878; European or white, 1,829,776. Percentage of total population: European or white, 1,329,776. Percentage of total population: European or white, 1,329,776. To some colored persons, natives particularly, London would appear to stand for the whole of the British Empire, or at least of England, in the matter of religion, for the entry constantly appearing by way of reply to the enumerator's query as to religion of the inmates was: "Church of London." Moreover, this appellation was found to include, in addition to members of the Church of England, Presbyterians, Luthere as, etc.

By certain of the natives the visit of the enumerator was apparently regarded as portending some dire will many places being found with all doors and windows nailed up-

Romantic and historic interest attaches to a case which will shortly come before the Court of Chancery. The facts are that one of the descendants of the loyal Penderill brothers, who saved Charles II. from the Roundheads after Worcester fight, will endeavor to establish his right to a share of the pension which the "Merrie Monarch" granted to

The present case has to do with the yearly allowance granted to Richard Penderil, eldest of the five. The descendants of "honest Yeoman Dick" narrowed down about the beginning of the last century to two daughters, who married respectively ginning of the last century to two

A month ago, however, James Withington, jun., claiming to be the only child of the pensioner, returned from Canada, where he has been since his birth. He is a man of about forty years of age.

At present Mr. Withington resides at Romford, in Essex, but he is about to settle in London. Mr. Withington has copious evidences of his identity, including his father's will, marriage certificate, etc.—London Daily Mirror.

The Bride's Going- tway Dress.

The suburbanites who go out on the Toronto-Hamilton train every afternoon find the dreary interior of the Union Station enlivened by wedling vertice almost avery evening the Union Station enlivened by wedding parties almost every evening during this marrying season, says The Toronto Star. They become quite expert in detecting even those bridal couples who carry about them the fewest signs of their newly acquired happiness. Last night a couple of home-goers, tired and begrimed by their day's work, found themselves sitting convocite a couple themselves sitting opposite a couple of people who, to their practised eyes, looked like the principal actors in a recent wedding. When the train passed through South Parkdale a crowd stood on the platform waving their handkerchiefs, and the con-scious look of the pair confirmed this suspicion. The suburbanites' curio ity being aroused as to who they might be, they bethought them of The Star, which they were reading at the moment. Hastily reading the wedding reports, they took a good deal of amusement out of the discovery that from the published description of the going-away gown of one of the brides they could spot the young woman, who, sitting opposite to them, was doing her best to look unconscious of her happings. unconscious of her happiness. "The bride's going-away dress," the pap-er said, "was a black and white check, with medallions of reseda green."
