A Murderer's Paradise

America is establishing an unenviable notoriety as a paradise for murderers. This is probably due to the delays of the law and the almost interminable length to which murder trials can be dragged out. There is also prevalent a general recklessness in the matter of human life to such an extent, that the safest place soon will be the murderer's dock. The loss of life and limb which goes on in the mines, workshops and on the railways is appalling, and the only recompense afforded by the Trusts and Companies takes the form of philanthropy—Rockefeller foundations and Carnegie libraries. On the subject of "A Murderer's Paradise," the Review of Reviews has the following:—

"According to Mr. Andrew D. White, former President of Cornell University and first Plenipotentiary of the United States at the Hague Conference of 1899, the American Republic bids fair to beat creation as the most murderous of all civilized countries. Belgium has more murderers in proportion to her population than any European country, but her maximum is only one-eighth what is now the American normal. The number of murders in the United States has gone up with leaps and bounds. In 1890 there were only 1,500 murders. In 1909 there were 8,000. Canada just across an imaginary geographical line on the same Continent a new country also peopled with the most adventurous people of the Old World, keep down her murder average to one-forty-third the American ratio. Why is this? Admitting that the United States has far greater masses of Old World lawlessness to deal with than Canada, the fact is insufficient to account for the enormous excess of murders in the Republic. Mr. White attributes it largely to the sympathy bestowed on criminals and the immunity which murderers consequently enjoy. Capital punishment has been practically abolished, and the assassin flourishes.

AN APPEAL

TO PATRIOTIC NEWFOUNDLANDERS.

Our island has a triple reason for its title of most Ancient Colony of Newfoundland. It was discovered by the men of Bristol, under the guidance of John Cabot in 1497, and was thus the earmarked for the English Crown. Sir Humphrey Gilbert confirmed England's title by formally assuming sovereignty over it in 1583, and the little village of Cupids in Conception Bay is now the oldest colonial settlement in the British Empire. It is just three hundred years since John Guy and his little band of settlers planted themselves at Cupids, and the event is so full of significance for us, and for the Empire, that it behoves us to commemorate it in some worthy manner.

The St. John's Historical Society, acting in conjunction with a Committee of residents in Cupids and after much consideration, decided to endeavor to raise funds to purchase the lot of ground at Cupids, on which it is believed Guy's house was built, and to erect upon it a granite monument with an inscription, recording the event which we are celebrating. It is hoped that enough funds will be secured to purchase sufficient ground to form a little park or pleasure ground about the monument.

In addition to this, natives of Cupids who are now living in Canada have purchased and sent down a steel flag staff to be erected on the water-side.

The Mayor and corporation of the City of Bristol, when appealed to, readily offered to assist in the commemoration, and have subscribed the handsome sum of £150 towards it. The Government of Newfoundland has also promised a subscription, and this appeal is now made through the press for donations from all who desire to encourage that feeling of pride in one's country and home, which is such an important incentive to progress.

The estimated amount required to purchase the ground, and to erect the monument and the flag staff, is $2000 including the subscription of the City of Bristol.

Subscriptions may be sent to MAURICE A. DEVINE, St. John's, Secretary of Historical Society, ALEX. SERRICK, Cupids, Secretary Guy celebration committee.

AMOUNT SUBSCRIBED.
City of Bristol, $750.00
Govt. of Newfoundland, $500.00
Collection at Cupids to date, $150.00

Wedding Bells.

A pretty wedding occurred at the R. C. Cathedral last evening when Mr. Frank Rose, of the Cove Road, led to the altar Miss Nan Parrot, who for several years was a domestic with Hon. Jas. Baird. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Mons. Roche. Mr. Wm. Kenny, barber, assisted the groom, while the bride was attended by Misses Baird and Ellen Rose. Both received numerous and valuable presents. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the future residence of the happy pair, Cove Road. The Telegram extends congratulations.

Lieut. Gale, the new A. D. C. to His Excellency, arrived here by last evening's express. He is attached to a Bedfordshire Regiment.

Interview With Mr. H. D. Reid.

Mr. H. D. Reid being interviewed by the Telegram to-day on the subject of operations contemplated by the R. N. Co. this season, said that by the first of June they expected to have 5,000 additional names on their pay roll. Work would begin early in May on the Bonavista Branch. All the rails, spikes, fish plates, etc., have been ordered from the Carnegie firm at Pittsburgh. They will enlarge their car sheds and repair shops and will put up a first up to date foundry. They will extend their freight handling facilities to meet the growing demands of the business. Mr. Reid said that this work may not be accomplished till next winter, but a beginning would be made as early as possible. The Company have ordered for the Bonavista Branch the material for the construction of two locomotives of the same class as No. 9 and No. 10, the latest imported by them from the Baldwin Company in Philadelphia. "We have also ordered," said Mr. Reid, "two baggage cars, two first class cars and two second class cars, also ten box cars. All will be here by the fall." The equipment made necessary by the construction of the proposed branches will necessarily be quite large, and as the work goes on the Company will have to be in a position to supply the stock required in large instalments. The radical departure from the old system will call for a larger premises, a larger plant, and operations generally will be on a larger scale. Mr. Reid when spoken to about the report that the Company intended to get a new sealing steamer, said that there was no truth in the report. Railway work and freight and passenger carrying was their business and they would not interfere with the fisheries.

The Ships' Turnout.

Yesterday 8,235 seals were turned out from the Viking and were ground up at Bowring's South Side premises. The seals are averaging to-date 43 1-2 lbs. net. Yesterday's turnout was an exceptionally good day's work. The men started at 4 a.m. and concluded at 6 a.m. Working at this ratio the ship will be discharged to-morrow evening and the crew will be paid on Thursday.

The seals on board the Harlaw were purchased by the firm of Job Bros. & Co., and are turning out to-day 43 lbs. net. She started discharging yesterday afternoon and will finish to-morrow afternoon.

POLICE COURT NEWS.

In the police court to-day John Quinn, drunk and disorderly, was sent down for 14 days.
Two others were each fined $2 or 7 days.
Joseph Rasmussen alias Benson pleaded guilty to the robberies which the Telegram reported in detail yesterday, and for the first two was given a month each, and for the third and fourth 2 months each, or an aggregate of 6 months. But that he pleaded guilty and that this was his first time in court, His Honor stated that the aggregate penalty might have totalled years instead of months.

In the Central District Court the principal case was Dr. Tait vs. a Street Car employee for $10 for professional services. Mr. Wood appeared for plaintiff, and deft. pleaded his own case, holding that he was overcharged both in the price and number of visits. Judgment went in favour of the plaintiff.

Lord Rosebery on Reform of Lords.

Speaking on the debate on the Address in the House of Lords the Earl of Rosebery, having referred to the statements of the Prime Minister made just before the election, said he did not think Mr. Asquith was bound in the least by any interpretation placed upon his statements by others, but it could not be denied that uncontradicted interpretations from authoritative quarters which were placed on those words must have a considerable effect on the minds of the electors. "After all," Lord Rosebery continued, "we meet in a very strange condition of affairs. The election is unique in being an absolute disappointment to every party engaged in it. But one feature worthy of serious consideration as members of the House of Lords is that a majority has been returned to Parliament animated by the greatest animosity to this House. Remember, whatever you may say about the majority in the House of Commons, there is one thing which every man will say who has had anything to do with the election in Scotland or north of the Humber or Trent; he will tell you emphatically that, wherever a Unionist candidate attempted to gain a seat they broke their shins against the hereditary character of the House of Lords. I do not wish to see this House forced to take measures under compulsion, and which will call for a larger premises, a larger plant, and operations generally will be on a larger scale. Mr. Reid when spoken to about the report that the Company intended to get a new sealing steamer, said that there was no truth in the report. Railway work and freight and passenger carrying was their business and they would not interfere with the fisheries.

LORDS SHOULD MAKE THEIR OWN PROPOSALS.

After all, what is the real issue? I hear a great deal of thundering against the veto of the House of Lords. There is no more veto of the House of Lords than there is veto of the House of Commons. It is a matter of the Constitution of the Legislature. If in the course of centuries one of the two branches is not in all respects up to the requirements of the times, it is for that branch to strengthen itself in accord with the wants of the time. It is not a question of veto, but a question of the Constitution of the Second Chamber. I presume it will be legislation such as that portrayed in the resolutions of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman. I admit it is right, in a sense, to wait for the proposals of the Government themselves, but we should take the opportunity now of setting our views before the country. I believe the country is opposed to the hereditary principle, and is equally determined to have a Second and efficient Chamber, and if we do not set our hands to the work somebody else will do it for us. Mirabeau said, "Of all tyrannies the most insupportable is that of a single Chamber." It is because of that tyranny, which seems to overshadow us, and which it is the aim of many should overthrow us, that I venture to urge your lordships not to delay, but to take your salvation to-day in your own hands and proceed with the task yourselves. —(Cheers.)

Maggie and Grace Here

The barqt. Maggie, Capt. Parsons, arrived here this morning after a run of 23 days, molasses laden from Barbados, consigned to Job Bros. The ship had fair weather till the last 5 days, and Sunday night had a N. N. E. gale with a heavy sea. On the run to Bahia she had had weather off that coast but coming up to Barbados had it fine.

The brig. Grace, Capt. John Jackman, arrived from Halifax to A. Goodridge & Sons to-day with a cargo of hay, hard coal and dork. She left there yesterday week and had bad weather almost the entire run. Thursday and Friday rain, snow, sleet and thick fog was experienced on St. Pierre Bank. The ship it will be remembered had a hard time on the run to Halifax taking 30 days to get there. She suffered much damage and had to be dry docked for repairs.

Last year 554 mail and passenger steamers called at Plymouth, England, to land or embark 25,959 passengers, 178,242 bags of mail, and specie to the value of $35,576,728.
