The Morris Failure.

We are now within a few months of four years since Sir Edward Morris took charge of the Government. He has had ample time and an abundance of opportunity to show what he could do. He has held four sessions of the Legislature, and the country is now able to size him up as Prime Minister. The popular judgment has already been given informally and it is by no means flattering to him and his co-workers. He inaugurated a party, leavened largely with a Tory element, which arrogated to itself the title of People's Party, and set forth the claim that it was to be the party whose special duty would be to look after the interests of the industrial classes of the community—the Fishermen, the Farmer, the Mechanic, the Laborer, the Clerks and all who work for a living.

The most illuminating feature of the present situation is that these classes are those who are most pronounced in their hostility to the present government.

But the hostility is by no means confined to them. They are disgusted at the way Sir Edward Morris has failed to carry out the promises he specially made to them, and mercantile men are disgusted at his failure to enforce the Bait Act, and reserve to Newfoundland the strong standing our geographical advantage gives us over our competitors in the fish markets of the world.

He promised to grapple with the fishery question and has failed to do what fishermen required. The cull of fish has not been standardized. Fishermen are disappointed. The new markets promised by Sir Edward Morris in Mexico, Central and South America and other parts of the world have not been opened. The steam subsidies to the West Indies have not been furnished. Cold Storage schemes for the export of fishery products have fizzled. Bait freezers at points around the coast accessible to fishermen have not been established. The Agricultural Policy has proved disastrous. The gold which Morris said should be kept in the country is being sent out in greater quantities than ever. The flour barrel has not been cut in two. The foundation of the sound policy laid down by Sir Robert Bond has been destroyed and much of the money which should have been spent in promoting Agriculture has been devoted to provide a livelihood for certain Government supporters in the House of Assembly. The farmers are thus disappointed like the fishermen.

Workmen were promised proper and sanitary dwellings, but no provision has been made. Coal was to be cheapened, but to-day it is dearer

The Food Route To Steady Health

Many persons are kept ill because they do not know how to select food that their own particular bodies will take up and build upon.

What will answer for one may not do for another.

If one is ailing it is always safe to change food and seek the Road to Wellville on a plain simple diet.

The most perfectly made food for human use is

Grape-Nuts

It contains the vital food elements of wheat and barley, including the Phosphate of Potash (grown in the grain) especially required for rebuilding brain and nerves.

The food has a fascinating flavour.

A Deserving Charity.

Mr. James Moyle, whose home and contents were destroyed by fire on Saturday morning last at Topsail, is in the city to-day collecting to try and get lumber enough to build before the winter sets in. We commend his case to the charitably disposed, as he has lost the fruits of a life of unremitting toil. He values his house and furniture at $1,200, and did not save an article. He lost cash to the amount of $67, and one of his daughters in leaping through the window was severely cut about the face. His sister-in-law is, if possible, in a worse predicament, as she is a widow with five children. All who can should help those deserving people.

Trepassey Branch.

The work of laying the track on the Trepassey branch railway has been completed to Portugal Cove, near Trepassey. The ballast was removed last week from Fermanagh to Renews River and over 100 men are employed at this work. Over 300 men are at work around Portugal Cove, and the laying of rails will be finished by Trepassey by the end of the month if the weather remains fine.

Council Special Meeting.

The Municipal Council held a special meeting yesterday to deal with the matter of the annex which Mr. Oke proposes to build at the rear of his premises on Duckworth Street. The Mayor presided and the Public Board was present with Messrs. Oke, Ryan and Bell. The counsel for each also attended the meeting and the parties to the dispute were advised to come to some amicable arrangement, and to notify the Council in the event of such a settlement being arrived at.

Big Lumber Cargoes

The three topmast schr. Arthur H. Wight arrived here to-day from Browns Arm, Exploits Bay, with 1,300,000 feet lumber for the Horwood Lumber Co. She met very stormy weather after leaving and barbed at Seldoon with 15 other vessels. Large numbers of men, she reports, are going in the woods logging at Campbellton, Horwood, Badger Brook and Grand Falls. The schr. Ermitie also arrived with over 70,000 feet for the same concern.

On Second Thought.

By J. E. HOUSE.
"The despatches from China are greatly exaggerated," says an authority. Why narrow the proposition to the despatches from China? Exaggeration has truth bent backward over a truck in every community in this country.

Sim Hecke is an undesirable citizen. Eph Wiley's plan for getting rid of him is to apply the ordinance which forbids the dumping of trash within the city limits.

Too much attention is paid to the steeple jacks. Every time a steeple jack climbs a pole for the purpose of re-splicing a rope the newspapers hail it as a heroic feat. Climbing poles is a steeple jacks business.

A Montreal Student Dying

Montreal, Oct. 30.—Harold Kavanagh, a student of Loyola College and a member of the football team of that institution, is dying to-day as a result of a thoughtless prank on the part of one of his team mates yesterday afternoon.

The Loyola team were on their way home after a game with the Montreal High School in Windsor Park. It was the rush hour and two crowded cars failed to stop at the siding where the boys were waiting. Becoming impatient at the delay, one of the boys pulled the trolley from the wire with such a jerk that it fell upon Kavanagh, crushing his skull.

Garden Cities.

Henry Vivian Describes What Is Being Done in England.

Henry Vivian, chairman of the co-partnership tenants' movement in England and ex-member of Parliament from Birkenhead, recently described the growth of the garden city idea in England.

To illustrate the value of suburban garden towns for the housing of workmen of large cities and their families Mr. Vivian gave some interesting statistics. He said that the average child of seven years brought up in one of these communities had been shown to be three inches taller than the average child of the same age living in a densely populated city.

At the age of fourteen the difference was still more marked. A garden city youth of this age averaged five inches more in height and thirty pounds more in weight than one of the same age from the big cities. In some of the crowded manufacturing towns of England, he said, the death rate was forty for every thousand inhabitants, while in garden cities the rate had been reduced to between eight and nine thousand.

These statistics were gathered by a committee of Parliament of which Mr. Vivian was a member. On the report of this committee the housing and town planning act was passed in 1909 by Parliament. This act gave government support to the building of ideal suburbs around the great centres of population in the British Isles.

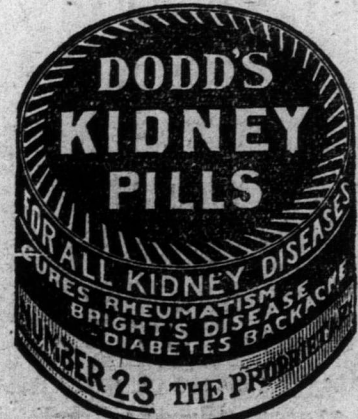

The co-partnership tenants' movement, Mr. Vivian said, had designed suburbs near Liverpool, Hampstead, Ealing, Manchester, Birmingham, Stoke-on-Trent and elsewhere. The most perfect type of the garden city, he said, was at Hampstead. One of the cardinal principles in laying out such a suburb, he said, was to leave the trees untouched so far as possible. The land is parcelled into large lots, so that on an average there are not more than two houses to an acre.

The laws governing such suburb building prevent land speculation and are all framed for the benefit of those who are to live there. Any kind of home may be built, from a cottage to a mansion, the building restrictions providing, however, against structures which would mar the architectural harmony. Large spaces are set aside for parks and playgrounds. The gardens are the distinguishing feature of these suburbs, as those dwelling in them are aided by the city in surrounding their homes with flowers.

Hampstead is laid out so that the view up and down every street ends in the sight of a handsome house, the speaker said. The suburb at Hampstead covers between 700 and 800 acres and is building for a population of 30,000. Factories are allowed, but they are built in an area set apart from them, where they do not mar the beauty of the community. Care is taken to place them where the prevailing winds will blow the smoke and odors away from the city. The garden city at Hampstead, Mr. Vivian said, was the most beautiful city in the world.

Rough Passage.

The schr. Freedom, Capt. N. Herald, arrived here to-day from Pernambuco in ballast consigned to A. S. Rendell & Co., after a run of 49 days. She had gales, head winds and high seas mostly all the passage, was knocking about off the coast for over a week past, and on the run in a heavy storm was badly buffeted and lost her foretopmast and jibboom with some other damage. The captain and crew are well.
