Following the ceremony the usual congratulatory addresses were delivered, following which a Past Master's Jewel of beautiful design was presented to the retiring Master, Bro. Joseph Cocker. The Jewel was of hand make, the handwork of T. Lamb's Jewellery Store. The Jewel then passed from labor to replacement, and in the banquet room an enjoyable social hour was spent, the usual Masonic toasts being honored.

One of the most popular numbers last evening was the "Little Red School House" by Misses LaRose and Ford, who heard and loved "School days" and will be delighted with this latest song.

Vaudeville Revue.

AT CASINO LAST NIGHT.
A packed house greeted the Manhattan Musical Comedy Company at the Casino Theatre last evening at the second performance of their very entertaining Vaudeville Revue. The entertainment was varied enough to please the most fastidious and rounds of applause greeted each number. The programme opened with a chorus, followed by a duet in which Miss Charles La Rose and Miss Daisy Ford appeared to great advantage. "The Little Red School House," one of their numbers, received great applause. Mr. Harry White rendered several solos which proved a treat. He was in splendid form and held his audience enraptured during the renditions. The "Christy's Cure" in which Miss Margaret Torry and Henry White acted, was exceptionally clever. Miss Clara Thropp as the wife finding a copy note in hubby's pants pocket was room for a display of her versatility as a character actress. Fifteen minutes of splendid entertainment was given by Teddie White, a conjuring tricks and witticisms which rounds of applause. Miss O'Sullivan in fine voice sang "The Land of Blue Water," and "I Love You." The applause was so prolonged that she had to give two encores "Butterfly" and "Memento." Mr. James La Rose was given a wonderful reception, and had to respond to several requests. His contributions were "The La Gubba," "The Sing Three Stars of Araby," "The Rosary," and "The Old Pal of Mine." The Incense was by Miss Margaret Torry, who, amidst a stage rehearsal, performed a stage setting to the greatest applause of any item on the programme. Miss Geraldine Edgar delighted the audience by her remarkable skill with the violin. She had responded many times. The vaudeville act "Shipwrecked" brought rounds of laughter and applause. The item, a travesty entitled "The Rehearsal" rounded out a well planned programme. Teddie White scored in this turn as he directed from the auditorium a dress rehearsal of a musical comedy. Rounds of applause greeted him taking part. The Revue is being repeated to-night and no doubt another full house will greet this talented company.

Mrs. Cleary's Fancy Dress Ball has been postponed until further notice.—June 21st.

Obituary.

The grim reaper death has at last visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Halleran of this city and almost all the members of the family have been snatched from them in the prime of youth their darling and only son, Alexander Lenos, aged 10 years, was a pupil of St. Bon's College. He was noted for being very bright and active, and only one short week previous to his death he engaged in a drive around the city and windward he visited the Campus grounds and bid his last farewell where he was so often with gladness and cheer. He fought hard to live until his moments. But he was not destined the strife, his feet were not to tread for long the hard path of this life. By his sad and beautiful death he leaves to mourn the loss his father, mother and two little sons and many friends. Funeral services will be held on Friday from his late residence, 37 Gower Street. Friends and acquaintances please attend with further notice.

Bottomley.

HIS LIFE IN PRISON—AN APPEAL LODGED.

Mr. Horatio Bottomley has lodged an appeal in the offices of the Court of Criminal Appeal against his conviction and sentence. In consequence of the vacation of 10 days, it is scarcely possible that the appeal can be heard before the third week of June. Meanwhile the prisoner is being held in custody in hospital (the usual course with an appellant against conviction) at Wormwood Scrubs Prison.

Mr. Bottomley, who invariably attended Epsom in style, spent his Derby Day in the solitude of a prison infirmary cubicle. He was awake early, having passed a restless night, and when his frugal breakfast was served he remarked to the warder what a heavenly afternoon the crowds would enjoy at Epsom.

The meal consisted of two slices of bread and butter and a mug of tea. There was a trace of emotion in his voice as he mentioned the Derby, says the Evening Standard, for in his time he has had his financial stake in the event on many occasions, added to which his own colours—vermillion and black—had scored minor successes in the Epsom meetings.

Mr. Bottomley's first visitors on Derby Day were the governor of the prison, accompanied by the doctor.

The medical examination showed that he is still suffering from the effects of nervous exhaustion. He complained of the great heat and said how much he would like to be in the open air.

After the governor's visit he put on his prison jacket and trousers and the disc bearing his identity number.

He delved into his appeal papers and made copious notes, which he talked over later in the day with Mr. J. A. Richardson, his solicitor.

Mr. Bottomley seems confident about his ultimate success of his appeal. If it fails it will be followed by a great petition to the Home Secretary praying for a remission of the sentence on account of his health and age.

In his pocket when he was convicted recently were six grand stand tickets for the racing at Epsom.

Mr. Horatio Bottomley on Friday applied through counsel to the Judge in Chambers, at the High Court for bail in order that he might the better prepare his case for appeal. The application was refused.

Mr. Lloyd Richardson, Mr. Bottomley's solicitor, has described to the Sunday Pictorial an interview which took place at Wormwood Scrubs between Mr. Bottomley and his wife and daughter, the latter being the wife of Mr. Jeff Cohn, a well-known racing man. "Mr. Bottomley's wife," said Mr. Richardson, "was overcome with grief and Mr. Bottomley was much affected."—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

A Friend of the Birds.

On the Shetland Islands, there are vast numbers of birds which, if they were not protected, would be killed off by those who are greedy for their eggs and their skins. Whole species might become extinct.

On one island the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds keeps a watcher for half the year during the period of danger. He lives in a little hut, facing the Atlantic gales, and here he has spent his summers for 33 years.

It is his love for the birds which has helped Mr. Edvardson through these long seasons of exile. The birds crowd round the door of his hut to be fed.

He has the companionship of his friends, and he has the satisfaction of knowing that, by reason of his watching, they are increasing in number.
