Chinese Murder Trial.

The King vs. Wo Fen Game.

SIXTH DAY PROCEEDINGS.

The prisoner Wo Fen Game on being brought from the Penitentiary this morning did not exhibit much improvement in the condition which developed yesterday afternoon at the finish of his cross-examination by the Crown prosecutor. Whilst waiting Court to sit, Mrs. John Murphy and T. Mitchell held an examination on the prisoner, whom it was thought was fainting. The physicians stated that he was able to attend the hearing, and he was accordingly brought in. To get him to the dock proved rather difficult and two stalwart police constables had to make a body load of him. In the dock the prisoner laid at full length and moaned so loudly that his counsel, Mr. Emerson, asked for a brief postponement as it was not possible to address the jury under such conditions. The Chief Justice hereupon asked Interceptor Hart to say to the prisoner that he was not benefiting his case by this acting, and in fact was doing himself serious injury. The prisoner paid no attention to the interpreter, so it was necessary for the Court to call the doctors to give evidence as to his condition.

Dr. John Murphy being put on the stand said the prisoner's physical condition was fair and his nervous condition had improved from yesterday. He had examined him, he said, during the morning and all his questions were answered calmly and sanely. He appeared to be suffering from a hysterical attack, but was in fit condition to sit in Court but not to give evidence in his own behalf.

In reply to several questions by Mr. Justice Johnson, Dr. Murphy said the prisoner was in a highly nervous condition, which in his opinion was partly put on at the hearing and continued, through lack of prohibitive power. He might get over it if removed from Court, but when brought in again the condition would be resumed.

Dr. Mitchell being called to the stand, stated that he agreed with the statements made by Dr. Murphy, and in his opinion it was a malingering condition and purely mental, and the actions of the prisoner were voluntary.

The Court then ordered the prisoner removed to the hallway, but within hearing of the Court, after which Mr. Emerson opened his address to the jury.

MR. EMERSON'S ADDRESS.

In opening he said no greater obligation could be placed on the shoulders of any body of men than the trial of a man for his life. He asked the jury to bear in mind that the prisoner was completely ignorant of the proceedings of our Courts and laws, and in fact he was an exceptionally ignorant man, coming as he does from the lowest type of ignorant men in his own country. This ignorance, said Mr. Emerson, made the preparation of the defence a very difficult one. The jury had to remember that the prisoner was charged with a crime which arose wholly between him and his compatriots. The whole case in every essential particular, however, comes from the prisoner's story. It was difficult to tell how the Chinese mind works and it is equally difficult to tell how the witnesses were influenced by malice or otherwise. The jury had to bear in mind that not because the prisoner was on trial for his life that he is not telling the truth. It is for them to put the truth of the story to the test by comparison with the evidence of the other witnesses. It was the duty of the Crown to disprove that story, and unless that was done it must be accepted as true. The story, in its important particulars, was borne out by the Crown witnesses, both as regards prisoner's life here and in China. Again, it should be borne in mind that not one witness of the Crown admitted having any intimacy with the prisoner. In fact they did say that they hardly knew him. Another point for consideration was the apparent conditions of slavery existing in this community, and it has been shown that had the prisoner left the Murray Street laundry without the good will of the people, he could not get work elsewhere and would have to starve. He would not ask the jury to acquit the prisoner of the shooting at Casey Street, with the intent to kill because the conditions did not apply there as at the Jim Lee laundry. The indictment charges three separate offences and they must be considered separately. In the case of Hong Kim Ki, the prisoner says the shooting was by accident. It had been shown by the Crown witnesses that Hong Kim Ki was shot at in the quarters, therefore the prisoner's story that Hong Kim Ki had his arms around him at the time, and it was an accident, must be accepted as true. Another point, not brought out by the Crown, was a motive for the shooting. There was a quarrel at the time, but then why did the prisoner go to the Casey Street laundry and shoot Hong Kim Ki? In this case it was not a question of wages. Mr. Emerson finished his address at 12.20.

MR. WINTER ADDRESSES JURY.

The Crown Prosecutor, after about five minutes' rest, began his address, dealing first with the methods by which the police obtained the evidence particularly the letter signed by Constable Bishop. This letter and the statements, said the Crown Prosecutor, taken from the shoulders of the jury the responsibility of deciding who committed the shooting. The plea of the prisoner's appalling ignorance was contradicted by the evidence of the letter, written by the prisoner himself.

Mr. Winter had not finished his address up to recess hour when the court adjourned.

It is probable that the jury will go out this evening, as Mr. Winter's address will conclude at 3.30. After this the summing up, and charge by the Chief Justice will take place, but this may take longer than a couple of hours. If a verdict is not arrived at to-night, the jury will remain under supervision over Sunday.

Corona Chocolate Co.

DISTRIBUTES FREE CANDY.

For the purpose of making more widely known the ideal conditions under which the far-famed Coronas and Dorothy Kingdon Chocolates are manufactured, the Company have had a complete film made of their establishment at St. John, N.B. This film has been exhibited in all the principal cities in Canada and the local agents of the Company have arranged for its exhibition here. Last night the pictures were shown at the Majestic Theatre and proved very interesting to a large audience. The picture opens by showing pretty scenery around St. John the home of the candy; the factory receiving the sugar, the pulverizing machines, the melting pots, the rollers and cutting of machines are all shown as vividly as a tour through the premises would impart. The attractive scene is the dipping room where white chocolate is made the most perfect product of the factory. The box filling department is also very interesting and shows the scrupulous care that has to be exercised to turn out a first-class article. It may be stated that at the factory the employees remain on the premises all day, as they are provided with up-to-date recreation and lunch rooms. The film is being shown at the Majestic Theatre this afternoon to the city children, and provision has been made to distribute to each one a bag of candy.

Germany Out For World Trade in Toys.

NEW YORK.—(By Canadian Press).—A large consignment of German toys arrived recently in the hold of the Royal Mail liner Orduña. Of the 3,000 cases loaded at Hamburg 325 were left at Southampton for transshipment to South Africa, which, Purser Chamberlain said, indicated that the Germans are out for the world trade in toys. Germany's toy industry, the purser added, has been a remarkable recovery and the wizard workers of the Black Forest, where most of the toys are fashioned, are busy from dawn till dark. Many memorials of the war are shown in the lists of miniature mechanisms, including airplanes, submarines made on the German island plan and submarines for use in bathtub or pond. Teddy bears on roller skates, acrobatic bears and monkeys equipped with self-propelling machinery, bullfrogs that say "Jug-o'-rum", defying the ultra-prohibitionists, geese, swans, ducks, chickens that do all the vocal stunts of their respective species, dolls that talk a little and walk a little, Christmas tree ornaments, and of course, Noah's arks, are included in the shipment. Also, little moving picture machines, trolley cars and radio outfits.

Oxford Considering Courses for Middle-Aged Students.

LONDON.—Jolly old chappies of four score years and ten, frolicking on the Oxford playing fields, and doddering septuagenarians loitering in cushioned punts on the upper reaches of the Thames, may become realities if the plan for the entry of the old as well as the young to the famous English University is carried out. The suggestion is that a college be established for adults, as Ruskin College was established for the education of men from trades unions. Such a college, it is pointed out, would be a haven of refuge for extra mural activities of the university, and would enable many adults to carry on studies which they started under the extension course idea and which they have been unable to complete.

GROWN UP.

Tommy was proud, displaying his new clothes. He was wearing knickerbockers for the first time.

"Ah," cried his mother, "now you are really a little man." Tommy was delighted. Displaying his garments to the full advantage, he edged closer to his mother and whispered, "Mummy, wa I call Pa Fred now?"

MUST BE GENUINE.

The village postman returned from a visit to London with a diamond that contained a glittering diamond. It aroused the envy of the village.

"Is it a real diamond?" somebody asked.

"Well," he answered, "if it ain't, I've been cheated out of one-and-sixpence."

THE PROPER NAME.

To the amazement of her friends, the costermonger's wife insisted that her baby should be christened Cuthbert.

"Why ever did you give him a name like that?" asked a neighbour. "Why didn't you call 'im John or William—just plain like?"

"Because I want him to grow up to be a fighter," responded the proud mother promptly. "And I reckon in our street a boy named Cuthbert will just have to fight."

MISTAKEN.

The lecturer interrupted his address to point at a little man who was yawning in a front seat.

"I'm afraid, my friend, that you are not following me closely."

"I'm not a friend of yours," replied the little man, "I'm waiting to put out the lights and lock up the hall. How much longer are you going to be?"
