Mary Jane Carrol, wife of the man who keeps the hotel, swore that she went out of the back door of the hotel and heard a noise on the road. It sounded like the scream of a person in distress. She thought it was a female voice.

May Young, wife of Peter Young, hotel-keeper at Dreaney's Corners, said she had known the girls before and that they were quiet and well conducted. Moore and Allaster, the two men who have not been captured, were making threats against McAlpine. The five men were in the public sitting-room, and when McAlpine and the girls went out they were standing at the door. When the three had passed out witness bolted the door, but Moore and Allaster shoved her against the wall, cpened the door and shot out like a streak. They seemed angry. Soon afterwards witness heard a noise and commotion on the road, and she also heard screams. Witness' son and three others shortly afterwards brought Kate McGeary back in the buggy. Witness thought she was dead. Half an hour afterwards Lizzie was brought in. The two girls were well cared for, and left for home about 1 o'clock in the morning. Witness admitted in the cross-examination that she knew Moore, Allaster and Thos. Lee, but not the other two. Thos. Lee said nothing to either McAlpine or the girls. Providing for Emigrants' Spiritual Wants.

BERLIN, May 31 .- In a letter to United States Senator Davis, of Minnesota, Herr Canhensly denies that he has any intention or desire to prevent German emigrants from becoming a part of the American nation. He adds that the sole aim of the Catholic societies, as explained in a new memorial to Cardinal Rampalola dealing with the letters of Cardinal Gibbons, is to have provision made for the religious and spiritual wants of emigrants who do not speak English. Herr Canhensly contends that the movement to provide emigrants with clericals speaking their mother tongue could in no wise interfere with the rights and functions existing in the episcopate. The societies desire no specially national bishops, but that, only in concert with the American bishops, there also exists bishops able to minister to the spiritual wants of emigrants. It is in the interest of the emigrants themselves that such provision tion or desire to prevent German emigrants grants themselves that such provision ought to be made. Herr Canhensly pro-tests that the movement has no political purpose.

The Venezucian Revolution Sprending.

New York, May 31.—The Herald's dispatches from Venezucia show that in spite of Dictator Palacio's denials the revolution keeps on spreading. Hundreds of the Government's troops are deserting to the insurgents. Gen. Ybarra, who is in command of Palacio's forces at Valencia, admits that the situation is serious. The rebels are threatening La Guayra from the sea and the Government is sending its warships to defend the important part of Caraccas. Newspaper editors of Opposition papers have been banished or imprisoned by Palacio. Letters in the postoffice are opened and read before delivery, and heavy fines are imposed upon vessels accepting mail that does not first pass through the efficial department. GENUINE ENJOYMENT.

Pleasant Tormination of the Adelaide Street Baptist Church Reopening Services.

Pleasant Tormination of the Adelaide Street Eaptist Church Reopening Services.

The people of Adelaide Street Baptist Church some time ago came to the conclusion that as a source of genuine enjoyment and positive profit the public, promiscuous teameeting—with its days and nights of downright hard work for the willing ones and its inevitable waste and oftimes display of piggisiness on the part of the participants—was in reality a delusion and a disappointment. Last night's union meeting of the young people's societies, which was a continuation of the reopening services begun on Sunday, served to convince the friends of the church that they had no reason to reverse their decision. Choice music, witty addresses and kindly sentiments took the place of crockery clatter, soiled dresses, and ruffled tempers, while the enjoyment was genuine and general. Mr. Harry Essex occupied the chair and introduced Rev. W. J. Clerk, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, who after congratulating the young people of the church on the success of their recent undertaking, spoke of the important part which they must expect always to take in carrying out the objects of Christ's Church. The anthem "Praise Walteth for Thee in Zion," was then sung by the choir, with remarkally fine effect, after which Rev. W. M. Walker, of the South London church, followed with a timely and most interesting address on conditions under which the young Christian was called upon to Master's work. A quartet, "Whoso Master's work. A quartet, whoso Mill," by the Misses Minnie and Eda Hartson and Messrs Maynard and Moorelhead, was a rare musical treat, and one of the most enjoyable features of the evening. Rev. R. M. Cunningham, of Goble's Corners, and the pastor, Rev. H. C. Speller, made brief addresses which kept the large audience in the best of humor. When the pastor hadrat down Mr. George Rendel rose and said:
