The chorus had been drilled apart. and this was the first time Morris had heard the principals sing. He had joined the chorus under protest, but Mrs. Carr had insisted, and when he learned that Zelda was to be the star it had not been difficult to comply. She began now one of her songs, as Gretchen, the commandant's daughter:

"O deep dark woods of fatherland, Thy boughs stretch high above: O whispering wind in woodlands deep, Thy voice is all of love."

She stood within the circle that the others of the company made istance lay between her and every other human being. When a contralto voice is pure and true, it is one of the surest vehicles of passion there is in the world. It has a gathering power that seems to sweep all before it; it touches the heights but never lets go of the depths; it becomes, when it rises greatly, something that is not of this world and that yet speaks of every Zelda, hoarsely, putting her hand to the joy and every grief that the world has known. It was a song of farewell .the song of a girl singing to her lover who was going away to war; and it seemed to Morris Leighton that it was a good-bye to everything that a girl might know and hold good. When the last notes died away, Balcomb stepped out at the director's nod and began the answering song. comb usually amused Morris; but the fellow struck upon him discordantly now. Zelda was laughing at Balcomb's antics as he began to sing with fervor and a real sense of the dramatic requirements. As he neared the end, where Zelda and he sang together the duet that ended the first half of the opera, Zelda put up her hands, and he took them, gazing into her eyes with a fine lover-like air. Their voices soared into the climax without a break, while the director threw himself into strange contortions as he struck the last bars

A case where there was lassitude and lack of strength is told by Mr. David Brown, of postoffice box No. 30. Beeton, Ont.: "About a year ago my health commenced to fail. My hands and feet seemed always cold. I felt worn out and exhausted, weak as a little child. My face twitched. My limbs and arms commenced to lose their sense of feeling, and finally my left side was perfectly numb. All color left. My appetite ran down. Ferrozone was the first to give me any help. I improved with it very quickly. It toned up the blood and started circulation, so that numbness gradually disappeared. My condition was perfectly cured by Ferrozone, and I have been well ever since."

Yesterday was Decoration Day across the border, and double-headers were scheduled for all of the big league clubs. With the exception of two games, all were played, postponements being necessary in the afternoon at Philadelphia (American) and Cincinn ati (National).

Toronto went up against the weak Rochester aggregation at Rochester, and lost both games by a narrow margin. In the morning the Queen City team was shut out, I to 0, although it batted a shade better and had but one error. In the afternoon Toronto easily outbatted Rochester, having six hits as against two for the home nine, yet the Canucks were defeated 2 to 1. Montreal broke even with Buffalo. Toronto's double fall and Jersey City's double win put the former in fourth place, tied with Providence.

How the mighty have fallen in the American League. At the close of the 1904 race, the New York High-landers were second only to Boston, yet with practically the same team New York is now dragging along at the tail end of the league, while the champion Bostons are only in fifth place. The Washington team, which showed unlooked for strength early in the season, is now steadily going down hill, being in sixth position. Cleveland has a good lead over all comers.
