ASQUITH OPENS CAMPAIGN FIGHT CHARGING FEAR

Liberal Leader in Britain Declares Free Trade Is As Essential As Ever.

CONDEMNS ACTION

Associated Press Despatch. London, Eng., Nov. 14.—The Liberal campaign is in full swing. In a speech delivered tonight at Walsall, H. H. Asquith, leader of the Independent Liberal wing, attributed the action of the government in rushing the election to fear of parliamentary and public discussion of its record, and declared that the present action was unprecedented in the nation's political annals. The Liberals, nevertheless, welcomed a campaign upon such an issue as protection. He asserted that if a government majority were returned, it would be interpreted as a mandate for a free hand to turn the whole fiscal system upside down. The former premier said the Liberals believed the maintenance of free trade could be shown by actual and indisputable facts to be as essential to Britain's domestic and international interests as ever. They would not be content with a merely negative attitude, but before many hours elapsed they would put before the electors a definitely constructive policy.

In a speech at Bath tonight Viscount Grey, one of the Liberal leaders, assailed the policy of protection, and said he had an impression that the Conservatives were the most uncomfortable party in the country over the new issue. He warned his hearers that things in Europe were going from bad to worse; shaping, not perhaps immediately, but very certainly for a new war. He thought the time was getting closer and closer, and that the interest of Britain was to be kept outside and welter that it might try to cut adrift from the continent altogether. The only way to safety lay in making the League of Nations effective.

UNCLE SAM LOOKS AT TARIFF WALL AGAINST WHEAT

Commission To Consider If Present Tariff Against Canada Adequate.

SEEKING DIFFERENCE

Associated Press Despatch. Washington, Nov. 14.—The United States tariff commission has decided to investigate the import duties on wheat. A thorough study of the whole question of wheat rates, it announced today, has been ordered, and a preliminary hearing will be held November 26.

The commission's machinery is to be set in motion in advance of the initial public hearing, a committee of its agricultural experts and representatives of the department of agriculture beginning immediately the assembling of information as to whether the present tariff duty of 30 cents a bushel is adequate to protect the interests of the producers in the United States.

Although the work is scheduled to go forward as speedily as possible, commission members asserted tonight that they could not hope to complete the task in less than three months. The order for the hearing was issued in the hope, it was said, that a preliminary meeting of all interested parties might result in expediting final action. At the same time doubt was expressed generally as to whether the present question could be done in time to afford relief for the producers of this year's crop.

The commission's chief problem is in the determination of whether the 30-cent duty carried by imported wheat offsets the difference in production costs between the Canadian farmer can put their wheat on the market at a lower cost, but the exact difference must be determined by the commission. Commission officials said they expected to study information as to conditions and prices everywhere in the world, but they asserted that the present question appeared to largely limited to Canadian imports.

The committee was urged today to speed up its inquiry in an appeal by the American Farm Bureau Federation, which declared through its Washington office that the home market would break under the strain of the committee marked time in its investigation.

CONCERT PARTY VISITS THE BYRON SANATORIUM

On Wednesday night the patients at Byron Sanatorium were entertained by a visit from the Blue Bird Concert Party, and, judging by the applause, thoroughly enjoyed the visit of these popular entertainers. As the "chocolate colored com." and in the role of porter at the Bonvil Hotel, Jack Allen kept the audience highly amused. Miss Fleeta Harris gave a quaint recitation and later did some clever acting as the hotel clerk. Will Higgins highly entertained the audience with "Thanks Very Much" and again in the capacity of oil salesman. Miss Winifred M. Reeves with her quaint monologues, made quite a hit. George Currie, Scotch baritone, rendered two delightful songs, then added to the gaiety of the sketch as the heavyweight traveler. Considering the short time this party has been before the public they already present a strong program of fun and gaiety, interspersed with dashes of sentiment. From start to finish there was not a dull moment in the program.

MACKENZIE'S CONDITION REPORTED STILL CRITICAL

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, Nov. 14.—Although Sir William Mackenzie, who was taken seriously ill on Sunday last, maintained his strength to some extent, his condition is still very critical. This was the statement made tonight by his physician, Dr. Heffering.

The threatened pneumonia attack has not yet developed, but it is thought that danger from this source could be considered over until three or four more days have passed without further symptoms appearing.

MARK ARMISTICE DAY.

Special to The Advertiser. T. Bury, Nov. 14.—By request of Mayor Odette, the local clergy and a large concourse of citizens assembled on Memorial Park for Armistice Day. After an appropriate address by his worship, two minutes' silence was observed, the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison and the National Anthem was sung.

Members of the city council have very effectively dealt with the city salary question—so thorough were they in special session last night that they sanctioned increases throughout the various departments, aggregating more than $10,000.

Mayor Wenig and Ald. Leonard Douglass, chairman of the board of works, were hopelessly outnumbered in their fight to keep the recommendations within easy range of the heads of departments. The evening was most interesting as viewed from the spectators' gallery, and any of the participants who emerged unscathed from the fray was carrying horsehoes.

As an instance of how smooth and methodical were the proceedings, Ald. Gordon Drake was ordered out of the council chamber by Mayor Wenig, but refused to do so from the chair, and defied the chief magistrate to remove him. Following the urgent solicitation of his colleagues who evidently did not desire to have the session break up in a disorderly fashion, the mayor withdrew his order, insisting upon strict attention to duty and no shouting.

Salary Debate. "That's right. I forgot about that," City Clerk Baker acknowledged. Ald. Gordon Drake then moved that the commissioner's salary be placed at $3,000, and it was carried. Five members supported the $3,500 proposal: Ald. Judd, Wilson, Colbert, Drake and May.

Assessors' Salaries. Mayor Wenig and Ald. P. J. Watt opposed the elevation of the assessors' salaries to $1,800. The assistant assessors, however, never answered to $2,000 without opposition, and the vote was unanimous, setting the clerks at $1,200 and the stenographer at $900.

Then the Drake-Wenig scrimmage was noted, after which Ald. John T. May moved they adjourn. "It is not worth while to continue the way we have been," he pointed out, thinking no doubt about the board of works salaries yet to be discussed.

Later, when the council voted down a proposal for the mayor that all hostilities would cease at 8:45, Ald. Judd rushed to protect Ald. Drake, announcing that someone had uttered the last remark. The question was asked, "But never answer to $2,000 without opposition, and the vote was unanimous, setting the clerks at $1,200 and the stenographer at $900."

Salary Raised. Assessment Commissioner Bennett's salary was elevated to $3,000, but four members supported Ald. Drake's more radical proposal that assessors were elevated to $2,000, the assistant commissioner to $2,000, the assessor clerks to $1,200, and the stenographer to $900.

Dr. C. S. Tamin's salary as inspector of herds and dairies was increased from $2,000 to $2,500. Sanitary Inspector Sanders was increased from $1,500 to $1,800. His assistant H. C. Boss, was elevated from $1,200 to $1,500, and the plumbing inspector, J. C. O'Connell, was increased from $1,700 to $1,900.

Nora Toll, assistant city clerk, was elevated to $1,100. The city clerk's office was increased to $1,500, and stenographers to $840 and $900. Velch, assistant city engineer, was increased to $2,700, and several other clerks in the city engineer's department were also increased. Substantial increases were given in the city treasurer's and city auditor's departments.

Granted Increases. John Moule, police court clerk, was granted an increase, as was the market clerk, the clerk of the weigh scales, the manager of the fish market and the storekeeper at the city yards.

Ald. Douglass, as chairman of the board of health, also opposed increases for that department, exclusive of the increase for Dr. Tamin. He was practically the lone voice calling in the wilderness, although both Ald. Watt and Ald. May joined him in his persistent and continual protest that they were going too far in their actions.

"Christmas boxes" was the term applied by Ald. Douglass as the council voted certain increases, and the mayor remarked, "Voting away the people's money."

It was good while it lasted—three hours—and Ald. W. A. Wilson wore an expression as he trudged homeward.

An Early Clash. Ald. Drake and Ald. Douglass clashed early, when the latter claimed that a certain vote had been counted incorrectly. Ald. Drake wanted to know if Ald. Douglass was the clerk. Ald. Watt was later drawn into the debate and was told by Ald. Drake to "speak out and stop mumbling."

Another engagement was fought, when Commissioner Bennett's salary was elevated. Ald. Judd and Ald. Drake demanded to see a letter from the commissioner containing his recommendations. This could not be produced, although it was seen at the last session of No. 1 committee. Ald. Drake commented "funny business."

Commissioner Bennett was finally called to report his recommendations verbally, and then Ald. Colbert wanted to know who did make the recommendations before them, as he knew that Commissioner Bennett was not present at the July meeting. "I could tell you," was there. Ald. Drake volunteered. "The mayor and the heads of departments." "We'd be glad to have you tell us," asserted the mayor.

"I can answer that myself," Ald. Colbert explained. "I was at that meeting of department heads. I was sitting back in the corner and I heard officials who are receiving $4,000 and $4,500 a year putting Bennett down for $2,600. I think we ought to deal with these $4,500 men first. There is too much inequality here."

LIBERALS AND LABOR HOPEFUL OVER CAMPAIGN

Nervousness Noted Amongst Conservative Party in General in England.

LEADERS PREPARE

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Eng., Nov. 14.—Pending Premier Baldwin's further exposition of his protectionist policy, which will be made in the course of the debate on the labor censure motion in the House of Commons tomorrow, political interest is widely absorbed in active preparation in the various constituencies for a sharp election campaign.

The cabinet had a long sitting today when, it is believed, outlines of the government policy were laid down. There is even a misgiving and nervousness among the members of the Conservative party generally, as contracted with the enthusiasm displayed in the Liberal and Labor ranks.

The present campaign differs in important particulars from a similar campaign which carried the Liberals triumphantly to victory in 1906. When Joseph Chamberlain launched his famous protection move which smashed his party, there were practically only two big parties in parliament—Conservatives and Liberals—with a very small Labor party and a few Irish Nationalists. Now the Labor party in the House of Commons consists of 144 members and is the official opposition.

Agreement. If the reunited Liberal and Labor parties could be induced to co-operate there is very general belief that the protectionists would be defeated. The Labor party, however, has consistently refused to co-operate with the Liberals, and as a consequence Liberals are fighting Laborites in the constituencies and giving seats to the Conservatives on minority votes. The expiring parliament was in point of fact elected on a minority vote of the electorate for this very reason.

The Liberal press is making appeals to the Labor leaders to agree to some sort of an election agreement, to prevent such internecine fighting in the constituencies, on the ground that the present is a unique occasion, where Liberal and Laborite have an equal interest in defeating protectionism. Up to the present the Labor leaders are not hurrying to respond. The election oratory has begun with great gusto. Having no details of Premier Baldwin's plan to criticize his opponents are concentrating on the suddenness of his conversion to protection and on the fact that many of the biggest trades suffering from unemployment—the shipping, mining, engineering and cotton industries, which, it is said, constitute 90 per cent of the total unemployed, cannot possibly benefit from a tariff on foreign manufactures.

Ex-Premier Asquith in a speech at Walsall tonight pointed out that unemployment was equally as bad as the present parliament was elected, but that none of the ministers had mentioned protection as a remedy and even up until August Premier Baldwin in his public statements had never hinted at protection.

"This dissolution is the worst example I have known of the political pusillanimity and cynicism," he declared.

ROBB TO EXPLAIN HIS NEW POLICY ON IMMIGRANTS

Minister Promises Definite Answer in Regard To Immigration To Canada.

VIEWES PRESENTED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—When provincial representatives who attended the immigration conference here today, meet Hon. J. A. Robb, privately Thursday morning, they will be given definite information regarding the government's future immigration policy.

This announcement was made by the minister just before the conference rose for the day. He expressed a desire to see officials of transportation companies at his office in the morning, after which he would meet the provincial delegates. Several of the provincial representatives complained during the afternoon session, that they could not discuss the immigration question fully unless the Federal government placed before them some concise program dealing with future policy.

The conference will continue its sessions tomorrow and will conclude in the late afternoon, according to present anticipations.

This afternoon's session was given over almost entirely to presentation of the viewpoints of the various provincial, representatives. Delegates from every province except Manitoba and British Columbia were present.

Great stress was laid on the migration of young people from Canada to the United States by spokesmen of the Maritime Provinces, Quebec and Ontario.

Hon. John S. Martin, minister of agriculture for Ontario, felt that the Federal government should acquaint the provincial representatives with its future immigration program, so they would have something definite to discuss. He said Ontario was confronted with a serious industrial situation at the present time, as young men were attracted by the high wages offered in Detroit, Buffalo and other large American cities along the border.

When an appeal was made to provide work for the British harvesters which would keep them in the country, Mr. Martin said that Ontario agreed to place 4,000, after making a survey of agricultural conditions. The farmers of the province were now asking for the men, but the men were not forthcoming, according to the minister, who was anxious for an explanation.

JOHN GOGO CASE IS STILL BEFORE TORONTO COURT

Magistrate Jones Overrules Objection Put Forward by Counsel For Defence.

TELLS STORY OF TRIP

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—Counsel for those arrested in connection with the raid on the liquor launch Hattie C., on Oct. 6 last, when John Gogo was fatally shot, were overruled by Magistrate Jones in the police court this afternoon when objection was taken to the case for the crown being reopened by the evidence of witnesses given at the inquest. His worship promised, however, to note the objections in regard to the admission of the inquest evidence in the meantime allowed same to be read.

Fred Vanwinkle, arrested on the launch, in his evidence today stated he had been acting as cook on the launch, which was operated by the late John Gogo, who had leased the vessel from his father, Sydney Gogo. The latter's only interest in the boat had been to inspect it at certain intervals to see that it was in repair.

He said that the liquor on the last trip had been unloaded in crates from a box car at Belleville, and that they had been forced to put in at Frenchman's Bay near Toronto, owing to rough weather and in doing so had damaged the bow of the boat by colliding with the pier. Following this they had attempted to make the trip across to the American side as was the usual custom, but when four or five miles out in the lake had become nervous over the condition of the boat and returning had finally put in near the Woodbine at Toronto.

Vanwinkle was unable to state at what point on the American side the liquor was usually unloaded, but admitted that it was sometimes transported to a smaller boat near the American shore.

The witness swore that the liquor seized on board the launch was the same cargo which had been placed on board at Belleville.

The case was then adjourned until Friday.
