SIGNS OF PROGRESS

Manitoba has rejected the proposal of the Beer and Wine League for the sale of beer and wine with meals in licensed hotels. The sale of beer and wine under these conditions would pave the way for the return of the open bar—and the open bar must never return. The very large majority which voted down this proposal shows that while Manitoba is in favor of proper government control and sale of all liquors for beverage purpose, the people are strongly opposed to any move which might further the interests of the "wets" or prove the opening wedge for the return of the open bar with its attendant evils. The result of the recent vote speaks much for the good sense of the people of Manitoba, for although they admitted the many weaknesses of their Prohibition Act—which is very similar to the act in force in New Brunswick—they, nevertheless, unhesitatingly rejected a proposal which would ultimately lead to the re-establishment of the bar.

The cause of prohibition has progressed slowly but incidents such as the one referred to above seem to bear testimony to the fact that the people are gradually recognizing the benefits of the law. The greatest step forward was made in 1917 when the open bar was abolished and on that foundation the temperance people have been slowly but steadily building a fortress of right thinking which the liquor men will find hard to overthrow. There must, however, be no slacking of effort. There is also great danger in placing too much significance upon that unpopular word "prohibition." Nothing much is ever gained by saying "Thou Shalt Not." It is the duty and also the privilege of those actively interested in the temperance cause to point the better and wiser way rather than attempt to employ the method of force. More attention also should be paid to the education of the young in regard to temperance. The destiny of the "old soak" is more or less obvious, the punishment of the illicit manufacturer of or dealer in intoxicating liquors is a matter for officers of the law to determine, but the trend of the young towards temperance is something we should seek to check, for their welfare is a matter which essentially places responsibility upon every adult shoulder. Whatever effort is put forth in this connection should be carefully directed and liberally supported. It is obviously a most worthy endeavor and one of inestimable potential influence, for not only will the purpose of prohibition be served but our future citizenship might also be elevated to a higher moral status as a result of the principles of temperance and better living having been inculcated in the minds of the young.

SUMMER ACTIVITIES AMONG THE YOUNG

This is the camping season. The brief but delightful period of the year when all of us, both young and old, like to escape our responsibilities for a week or two and get away to the beach or somewhere in the open and temporarily forget the dull, monotonous grind of the year's duties. Parties of campers are scattered through the country everywhere; the white gleam of canvas tents can be seen through the trees by the sides of lakes and rivers and along the seashore, the cheery glow of bonfires nightly casts picturesque shadows in quiet places which campers have chosen for their holiday rest and the laughter and song of happy, carefree voices reverberates through the woods. Older people—all those who can afford it—are having their annual outing. What about the young folks?

In most towns and cities in the province work—it is really welfare work of a kind—is being taken care of in an adequate way. A few days ago the boys of St. David's Church, St. John, in charge of the pastor, Rev. Hugh Miller, formerly of St. Andrew's Church, Campbellton, and another gentleman, returned from a camping expedition on the St. John River. They had a wonderful time. Swimming, canoeing, baseball and many other healthy outdoor sports were indulged in and the boys returned rested, refreshed and well contented to return to the coming months of work at school or elsewhere with renewed zest. In many other places similar expeditions are being enjoyed by the young under the organized direction of different societies and associations. There is no doubt as to the beneficial effect of these summer outings for boys and girls. From a standpoint of health alone they are of inestimable value.

So far this summer nothing of this nature has been undertaken in Campbellton, and there is no excuse for this, although it is exactly the kind of thing which is needed in the town as a whole. The fact is evident from the annual increase in business and the increasing expenditure for luxuries. And as far as facilities are concerned no town is more admirably equipped than Campbellton. We are therefore missing an opportunity and shrinking a responsibility to the young. The C. G. I. T. and C. S. E. T. organizations might both arrange fine summer outing programmes for their members which would undoubtedly tend to stimulate interest in the work of the association.

RESPECT FOR OUR FLAG.

Campbellton is justly known as a patriotic town. During the world war she sent an admirably large number of first class fighting men to the aid of the Mother Country, many of whom won lasting fame on the blood-red fields of Flanders. She also distinguished herself by making numerous contributions to Red Cross and other necessary wartime work. In addition she bears the enviable distinction of having one of the few hospitals in the whole Dominion erected as a monument to the men of this district who paid the supreme sacrifice in the great struggle. Yet with this most honorable record those in charge of some sewerage work permitted a Union Jack and a Canadian flag to be stuck up in the mud and used as signs to divert street traffic.

If those responsible for the breach of respect to the emblem of our country can give logical reasons why our flag should be lowered to the undignified position of a mere mud-spattered sign-board, where a piece of red cotton would have done equally as well, we will withdraw our objections. But we can not readily see why the Union Jack which is a symbol of so many things we prize and revere, and of so many traditions we hold dear, should be subjected to such obvious, if thoughtless, insult.

It is safe to say that a similar thing would never occur in the United States. Even with its huge polyglot population composed of a dozen different nationalities there exists in that country a great reverence for their flag. We are not "flag-crazy," an accusation which has frequently been charged against our American cousins, but in the maintenance of fitting respect for the flag there attaches a kindred reverence for country which is essential to the growth of a unified empire.

We noticed this morning that the flag referred to have been replaced by a piece of red cotton, but we trust those who placed them in the mud a few weeks ago may think twice before repeating their error. Lord Byng of Vimy, Governor General of Canada is to pay us a visit in September and to see one or more Union Jacks dragging in the mud of a street in repair might, in spite of our record of patriotism, give him an impression of Campbellton and its citizens which we would rather not convey to his mind.

WHERE TO BUY

Some people are possessed of the idea that an article purchased outside the home town takes on an odd value, although it is exactly the same thing sold at the same price, or even cheaper at home. Of course people who think this are deceiving themselves so far as actual values go. It may be worth the time and trouble and extra expense out of town trading entails, just to cater to their wrong conception, but they ought to know that in the main they are "kidding" themselves. Other things being equal and they generally are, the home merchant has a right to expect the patronage of home people. He is an established part of the community, he contributes to the community and social life of the town. His contribution to the tax revenue of the town depends upon the size of his business, and he is in every way the logical man with whom to do business for the benefit of the community. When Campbellton people spend money in places outside the home town, just as advantageously as out of town, they are helping to support the schools, the streets, the sidewalks, the fire protection, and all other governmental activities of those outside places. They are not helping Campbellton to maintain itself and are actually lessening its ability because they are dumping it an indirect revenue, that belongs to the home town. It is easy to think that the other fellow
