efused to pay the tax of $2,50, and he reatened to give their names to the conference if this was repeated.

Rev. James Gray, treasurer of the superannuation fund, explained the methods of levying supplies, and mentioned the difficulties in regard to the proper management of the fund. Mr. Gray's report led to a good deal of discussion, during which a war of words arose between the younger
and the older members of the conference,
each party holding that they were more loyal, and, in most respects, more efficient than the other. Explanations followed, and the parties came to terms. On motion of Rev. Hugh Johnston it was resolved, that conference heard with interest the report of the treasurer of the superannuation
fund, and desired to carry out the methods adopted to sustain the fund. Rev. Geo.
H. Kerry, Algoma district, was taken off the superannuation list and placed in active service again. A vete of sympathy Rev. James Gray, treasurer of the supthe superannuation list and placed in active service again. A vete of sympathy was tendered to Rev. Encoh Wood, D. D., for his absence on account of sickness.

At 11.30 the conference adjourned, and Rev. Dr. Harper gave an able lecture on "Theories of Inspiration," under the auspices of the Theological union in connection with the conference.

In the afternoon a mass meeting of auspices of Inspiration, under the auspices of the Theological union in connection with the conference.

In the afternoon a mass meeting of children from the various Methodist Sunday schools of the city took place. The church was well filled, about 1000 children, with friends and relatives being present. John Kent, president of the Methodist Sunday School asseciation of Toronto occupied the chair. J. J. McClaren, secretary of the association, presented some statistics regarding the attendance at the various schools and the mency received by them during the past year. Speeches were made by Revs. Wm. Briggs, E. Roberts, John Potts, Chas. S. Eby and W. H. Peck of Buffale concerning the importance of the Sunday school as a necessary adjunct to the church, and concerning the growth of its influence during past years.

Yesterday morning at the erdination service the church was filled to the doors. The ordination sermon was preached by Dr. Sutherland and was a most elequent discourse. He preached from St. John xiv. 16, 17, and reminded the candidates for erdination of the weight of responsibility which they were taking upon themselves, counselled them as to the manner in which they should study and expound the scripture, and warned them against the scepticism so prevalent in these days. After the sermon the following young men were ordained: H. McTavish, H. C. Ross, A. C. Courtice, J. R. Real, J. R. Reid, J. A. Rankin and T. W. Leggott.

ODDFELLOWS AT CHURCH.

-Collection for the Volunteers. About 400 of the Canadian and Man. chester unity of Oddfellows, led by Chas chester unity of Oddfellows, led by Chas-Holst and Bro. W. T. Clarke and the band of the 10th Royals, paraded to St. James' cathedral yesterday afternoon. Rev. John Pearson of Holy Trinity church preached an appropriate sermon from Galatians: vi., 2: Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ. In these days there was a tendency among men to band together because union was strength, and a society like the Oddfellows well managed was an institution which should meet with the commendation of everyone. The first principle in benefit societies was unselfishness, and unselfishness was one of the essential features of christianity. There was in Toronto many societies for the relief of the poor and sick, and the oddfellows were among them. The object for which the society attended church was worthy of eulogy. It was a known fact that many families in the city had suffered much inconvenience with the absence of the volunteers in the Northwest, and as a believer in humanity he thought it was the duty of those here to protect the families of those who had gone at great sacrifice to suppress the rising of the rebels. A liberal collection was taken up and will be handed over to the treasurer of the volunteer relief fund. The music by the choirs of St. James' cathedral and the Church of Aspension under the direction of W. F. Tasker was very good. Holst and Bro. W. T. Clarke and the band of

following resolution was passed:

That this council desires to place on record its appreciation of the prompt and enthusiastic manner in which our volunteers responded to the call of the dominion government for the purpose of establishing law and order in the Northwest, and the swirit of self-sacrifice manifested during the difficulties and dangers of the fourney and the campaign in which they have taken part.

A resolution was submitted regarding a proper reception to the volunteers on their return home, but after a long discussion it was pigeon-holed until the next session, many of the members thinking it best to expend the money on the families.

A Life Insurance Case. The case of Burnham v. New York lif insurance company was heard at the assize court Saturday. The action was for $2000 damages alleged to have been sustained by plaintiff's dismissal from the employ of the company. The defence was that no definite agreement had been made with plaintiff. A verdict for $500 was formally entered, and the question of the validity of the contract was left with the judge. Peremptory list to-day: Ford v. Torento, Demmeny v. Ward, Strain v. Confirmation at St. Helen's Church, Archbishop Lynch administered con tirmstion to fifty-four children Sunday afternoon. Many of these had made their first communion at half-past eight o'clock mass. His grace interrogated the children on the principal tenets of the Catholic church, and the answers were given readily and intelligently. All the boys took the pledge. A number of adults were also confirmed, also one convert. Benediction of the blessed sacrament was given.

THE ANNEXATION OF BECRUANA.

A Country Larger Than Spain-Trouble Expected Over the Action-London, June 13.—The Earl of (Derby, cretary of the colonies, has approved Si Chas. Warren's annexation of land. The London Times, in an article describing Bechuanaland, says in territor lal extent it is much greater than Spain It is well provided with wood, and contains the best pasture land in South Africa. "It will grow anything," says the enthusiastic writer, "from wheat to oranges, and the finest of grapes." It will furnish besides many thousands of farms for settlers.

The Spectator, alarmed apparently at the possible outcome of this annexation of territory, comments at some length upon the subject, and says: "In the same week England assumes a protectorate over the lower Niger, and annexes the wast province of Bechuana. Can anything be said now about the rapacity of Germany in wanting the territory of the sultan of Vitu, or of France in claiming the Congo country? The government of the Transvaal republic are incensed at the annexation of Bechuanaland to Cape Colony, and will seek an alliance with tribes in Mashuanaland, just north of Bechuana, and will try to foment a war with England in the hope that Bechuana may be reclaimed to the Transvaal territory." resolution was passed unanimously:

Moved by Alex. Steele, B.A., seconded by David Stewart: That the minister of education, in appointing a director of toachers associations, has conferred a great benefit on the teachers of the province. That the fact that nearly all the teachers of Dufferin as well as some teachers from surrounding counties are present at the meeting of this association, and that at the evening meeting in the town hall the number of citizens wishing to hear the lecture on Education in Ontario was so large that some were unable to gain admittance, proves that the minister has made a wise choice in appointing Dr. McLellan to the office of director, and that the thanks of this association are due to the director for the valuable instruction received from his able lectures, and for the impetus he has given to school work in the county; and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the minister of education.

C. to the Marquis of Lorne, said: As to the reserve forces, he might tell them that two years ago he came from Canada, where he was on the staff, and where they had what was called a volunteer militia. There were no volunteers; but they all called themselves militia. A war had been taking place there, fought entirely with the militia, officered by Gen. Middleton, and he was quite sure that they deserved the praise that was being bestowed upon them. [Applause.]

that was being bestowed upon them. [Applause.]

He also said an officer who came [home the other day badly wounded, said that it was very easy to talk of withdrawing the trroops from the Nile, but it was not so easy to do. They had some shelter now; but if they were moved out into the terrible sun that existed they would probably be worse off than if left where they were at present. The losses they had sustained in this campaign would always be spoken of with regret by his profession. (Hear, hear.) They had lost three generals, as they all knew. The fame of the general of engineers (Gen. Gordon) would never die. The young cavalry general (Sir Herbert Stewart), who was supposed to have a bright career before him, also had perished on the Nile. The infantry general (Gen. Earle) belonging to the guards lost his life fighting the most scientific action fought during the campaign.
