somest ever issued from American printing presses, including the 426 full page original illustrations, and is sold for $7. Rawlinson's celebrated "Seven Great Monarchies of the Ancient Eastern World," is produced in elegant form, with all the maps and illustrations, reduced in price from $18 to $2 75. These are but representative of an immense list of standard works, ranging in price from two cents to nearly $20, which are set forth in a descriptive catalogue of 100 pages, and which is sent free to every applicant. It certainly is worth the cost of a postal card to the publisher. John B. Alden, 393 Pearl Street, New York.

How the Farm Pays, by William Crozier and Peter Henderson. lished by Peter Henderson & Co., 35 and 37 Cortlandt Street, New York. We have very carefully perused this book, and unhesitatingly commend it to our readers as a most practical guide to successful farming. It is not a book of theories hatched in the brain of some agricultural quill driver, but the outcome of the actual experience of two men who have been successful tillers of the soil, and who herein give to others the methods and practice which have laid the foundations of their success. Mr. Crezier is widely known as a farmer who for the past twenty years has taken more prizes than any other working farmer in America for fine stock and farm products. Mr. Henderson is as widely known as a successful gardener, and is an acknowledged authority on all matters connected with the growing of vegetables and small fruits. book is handsomely illustrated with engravings of implements found most desirable, and of animals of the most approved breeds. It is nicely printed on fine paper and strongly bound in cloth. Believing that many of our readers will desire to possess this valuable work, we will undertake to have a l copy sent, post-paid, to any person who shall remit to us the price of the book, which is $2 50.

The December issue of the Floral Cabinet opens with a drawing made especially for it, entitled "Christmas Greetings," and is followed by some pleasant words from the editors regarding their plans for the new year. Among other illustrations are two new and distinct varieties of well known plants. viz.: Begonia Sceptrum, a handsome species recently introduced from Brazil; its beautiful foliage will bring it at once into favor, and Spirca Astilboides, which bears its flowers in plumy clusters, composed of myriads of white blossoms, which will be welcomed by all admirers of this hardy plant. "Comicalities of Plants," "Some Christmas Greens" and "A Christmas Violet" are interesting contributions to the literary department, and the pages devoted to Home Decorations are filled with descriptions and illustrations of such fancy work as can be put to practical use. The managers hope to attain for 1885 a greater degree of perfection as a floral magazine, and to this end new names will appear among its contributors, and the number of illustrations will be increased.

The publishers of the Floral Cabinet supply to their subscribers each year premiums of a floral nature; and for 1885 they announce six different premiums from which subscribers may take their choice, embracing ten packets of flower seeds and some choice bulbs, details of which may be had on application to the publishers at 22 Vesey Street, New York. They will also send any of our readers a sample copy at half price (six cents), if this paper is mentioned.

We have arranged to furnish the Floral Cabinet for 1885 with choice or premiums together with our own publication at a combined price of $1.80.
