LOOKING AT PICTURES.

Marjorie and Dorothy are sisters. They are great companions and always play together. Sometimes they play school, when Marjorie is teacher and Dorothy is pupil. If Dorothy is very good and does not talk to the dolls, which are pupils also, she gets a pretty pink honour card just like the kind in real school.

In the evening, Marjorie helps her little sister with her lessons, and often after they are learned they will look at picture-books together.

On Sunday evenings they do not go to church, but mamma lets them have the big family Bible to look at. This is a great treat, for they enjoy the pictures very much.

A HAPPY LITTLE CHILD.

A happy little Christian child

I'm sure I ought to be,

For God hath, in his mercy, smiled

So wondrously on me.

There's scarce a blessing 'neath the sun

But it is mine to day;

He guideth me, his little one,

Lest I should go astray.

My life and health, my friends and home,

Come from his bounteous hand;

And sure, unending joys to come

Await in yonder land.
