

sacrificed her view-point, and—in a week James Peele would be Henrietta Shanklin's husband.

"You think I did right, G.F.?" the girl asked, at last, turning to him.

"Right? Who knows? You did your best, dear, that much is certain," the old man answered, absently.