

TO A STREET ARAB.

Ah, little one! for thee a bird
Will music through the busy day,
And, when thou'rt weary of all play,
I'll sing thee lullabies unheard.

My heart has but an open door,
God holds the key unto the last,
Love sees the latch is never fast—
She mothers all the needy poor.