INANGIAL SYNDIGATE RETAINS ITS PRESTIGE

The financial syndicate which forms the scieus of the New York stock market is able to maintain its position and pres-Every adverse happening is sub-ted by a buoyancy that leads one to we that his ideas are distorted, that has not caught up with the progre e times, and that there is get no en counting to be performed by the se as of that in 1903, when diabo efforts were made to dislodge every culative long account in the market on rumors that dividends were no longer ere can be no doubting the belief that side is putting up a stiff fight agains the outside is putting up a stiff fight against the further upward progress in quotations. It is clearly this that is being used on which to effect the various spasmodic apprits, and so long as this continues, and the financial backing of the big interests is not undermined, so long will prices maintain their firmness. The finger of the controlling element is continuously on the pulse of credit, which cannot be otherwise than in a state of fever. It is almost imin in a state of fever. It is almost im the to imagine a period when greater ion could exist in both financial and mercial interests. The whirliging of will either record a gradual restoration of these things to a more normal basis,

Joseph says: Trading within circumscribed limits, except in specialties, will for the moment be found most profitable. Keep long of Pennsylvania and hold Union Pacific. The period of rest will be benedical. On next upward movement higher prices than those aiready seen, will be established. Buy B. & O., conservatively, Guessing as to what Rogers will do on A.C.P. dividend next Thursday is the popular fad. Coppers must, however, work very appreciably higher. Do not be afraid of critying National Biscuit and Distillers. More Scotia.

Nothing but instinct is now available for guessing the spasms occurring in this market. Movements are turned without regard to anything except the speculative.

E. S. Willard has big productions this season and a special train was necessary to bring the company into Toronto. The new play, "Colonel Newcome," in which Mr. Willard has been so successful this season, will be given at every performance during the first week, including the Thanksgiving matinee. Mr. Willard is credited with having costumed his plays with exceptional beauty and richness this season. He gave Mile de Wolfe, the well-known New York modiste and costume, carte blanche to make dresses for the entire group of plays in the repertoire, and some very stuning gowns will command the interested attention of the ladies in Mr. Willard's audience.

Harrogate Herald, April 11, 1906.—
"The event acquired additional interest from the fact that it would be the last appearance of Miss Bateman prior to her tour in Canada and the United States. Friends of the gifted soprano took the opportunity of lavishing floral offerings upon her. One of these was Hlustrative of the land the lady is leaving and the country she is going to; the base, composed of English forget-me-nots, liles of the valley and double pink tulips, with suitable foliage interspersed, whils from the front depended a model of a Canadian canoe made in Parma violets and suspended by a silver cord and pale blue ribbons. The lady was in excellent voice, and sang with more intellectual thought and vivacious charm than on any previous occasion. Her voice is quite exceptional in its brilliancy and range. Her quality, the brilliant, is fiute-like, and she executes her runs and ornaments with a delicacy and symmetry that has rendered her work conspicuous."

Thomas Galloway, violinist: Edith S. Scott, soprano, and Anna C. Jeffrey, pianist. The seat plan is at Gerhard Heintzman's, 97 Yonge-street.

The visit of Andrew Mack at the Grand this week is of special interest to theatregoers, and especially to those who appreciate the presentation of a pretty Irish comedy-drama by a company of ability. Mr. Mack will be seen as "Shaun, the Post," in Dion Boucicault's greatest of all Irish dramas, "Arrah-na-Pogue," a play that has stood the test of years, and the revival of which is one of the successes of the season. The famous singing comedian will be supported by a chorus of talented vocalists. The production will be the largest and most complete ever carried before for an Irish play, every scene being an exact reproduction from photos and plates collected by Mr. Mack in his recent tour of Ireland. The musical selections that Mr. Mack will introduce are all from his own pen, except the old patriotic ballad, "The Wearing of the Green," which Mr. Mack will sing during the second act. During the week, besides the regular matinees on Wednesday and Saturday, a special holiday matinee will be given on Thursday (Thanksgiving Day).
