Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

Effectuated a Complete Cure in the Case of MRS. CAROLINE HUTT, Morrisburg, Ont.

She says: "It affords me great pleasure to speak about what your Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. About a year ago I was taken ill with heart trouble and got so bad that I was unable to do any work for four or five months. I got so weak and miserable that my friends thought I was going to die. The doctor attended me for some time but I continued to grow worse. At last I decided to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking two boxes they made me well and strong again. I cannot praise them too highly to those suffering from nervous weakness and heart troubles."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25 at all dealers.

FRUIT OUTLOOK GOOD.

Many Reports From Niagara District Greatly Exaggerated.

St. Catharines, May 31.—(Special).—Many prophets of evil have been having their say about the fruit outlook in the Niagara peninsula. Some have gone so far as to say there will be hardly any peaches this year, no strawberries to speak of, and in fact little or no fruit of any kind. James White of this city, who has had many years of experience, says the stories are altogether exaggerated. Mr. White spends most of his time traveling about the district among the farmers and what he says can be safely relied on.

In conversation with The World today Mr. White declared that he had no reason to believe that the peach trees had been greatly injured by the late severe winter. Quite a number of peach trees were killed, he said, but peach trees at best are delicate and do not live long, and every winter sees the death of many of them.

"I expect that the peach crop this year will be a fair average one," said Mr. White. "The indications point that way, anyhow, and I don't think there need be any great anxiety or fear that there will not be peaches enough to supply the demand."

"The reports about the strawberries are pretty nearly true, too," said Mr. White. "Many of the berries were killed by the frost and have had to be plowed in, but the berries will not be as scarce as some have reported. They will be, however, and the plum crop is expected to be good."

Fruit men generally around here say that this will be a fine apple year.

RE THOSE TENDERS.

It was stated at the offices of the Temiskaming railway commission yesterday that the four tenders for the construction extension are still under consideration.

"No new tenders will be asked for, and that impression was not intended. They are simply being further considered," it was said, "and when the contract is awarded the public will be duly informed."

Extending St. Cyprian's Church.

For some years there has been a pressing and ever increasing need of more accommodation for adherents of the English church in the northwestern part of the city. Realizing the opportunity presenting itself for the extension of the interior of the church as a whole the members and parishioners of St. Cyprian's Church last year purchased a piece of land at the corner of Euclid-avenue and Police street at a cost of $1500. The amount required to complete the purchase is now almost entirely subscribed, consequently an active and organized effort will be immediately begun to secure sufficient money to proceed with the erection of the church.

When Women Wrangle.

Mrs. Kate O'Connor, 17 Draper street, and Miss Mary O'Connor, are sisters-in-law, but they do not agree. When they met on King-street last week Katie tore Mary's Sunday hat and assaulted her. They had a tongue duel in police court yesterday afternoon, during which they did not hesitate to make a few remarks about one another. They were given a week in which to try and become friends again.

ROMANCE THAT PERDECARRIS TOOK WITH HIM TO MOROCCO

Eloped to Tangier With Friend's Wife and Nursegirl Married the Sheriff.

Captain J. Gordon Miller of Johnston recalls a most romantic and interesting story in connection with the sensational kidnapping of Ion Perdecarris and his stepson, Cromwell Varley, who are old acquaintances of Capt. Miller.

"I am at a loss to know where he could have been," he said in speaking of the case. "Mr. Perdecarris had two houses, one in Tangier, and the other about four miles to the south in the mountains where he spends the summer. I should imagine he must have gone into the interior, for it appears from the paper that the same brigand kidnapped Mr. Harris. The Times' correspondent, who was also a personal friend of mine.

"Perdecarris is a very rich American, and he has lived in Tangier for 20 years. He has bought a great deal of property there. Some years before I went to Tangier he was living in London, and stayed at a hotel in the Strand. He there met a married lady who became enamored of him, and he of her, and he eloped with her foolishly and took her to Tangier and lived with her there as his wife. The husband found them out and got a divorce, and when the divorce was made absolute Mr. Perdecarris married the lady. For years not a soul called upon them, but when the lady was kind and generous and hospitable, and charitable to the poor.

Wedded the Sheriff.

Mr. Varley, who is a civil engineer, is the son of Mrs. Perdecarris by her first husband. They had a nurserymaid in their house by the name of Keene. She was the daughter of the chief warden of Horsemen's Lane Jail. She met the sheriff, who proposed to her and married her. According to the story, she was allowed as many wives as they can keep, but she entered into an arrangement with him that he was to marry any other woman, or that if he died he was to give her her freedom and $10,000. After six or seven years she bore a son, and he got another wife. She left him and he paid the $10,000. He died afterwards, leaving by his will the sum of $10,000 to the present sheriff's son, who is the present sheriff.

"Overtures were made to the Queen of England to take this son up, but owing to the fact that he was the son of the Queen would have nothing to do with him. The sheriff went to London and had an audience with the Queen, but there was a distinct understanding that his wife would not be received. The French took up the boy, and he was taken to the military schools of France, and they made him a colonel in the French army. He has really greater power than the sultan.

"He and his mother entered into a conspiracy to take up arms against the sultan and dethrone him. The sultan was very much alarmed, and called her the babbling brook, and she talked to some of her friends about the conspiracy and it came to the ears of the sultan's ministers. With the exception of the sheriff, were put into prison, where I believe they are still. It was through the influence of the sheriff, the son of this Englishman, that the treaty between France and England concerning the suzerainty of Morocco was lately negotiated.

"There are no roads in Morocco at all. All the traveling is done by camel, mules and donkeys. When ladies go out to a dinner party they ride a donkey led by a Moorish soldier. Everyone of any standing is supposed to have a Moorish soldier attached to his house, though Tangier is as safe as Toronto. I have been 600 miles in the interior to release prisoners where no white man had ever set foot. There is an English colony of retired people in Tangier, and the sultan is the best in the world. There is a rainy season, but it only rains at night. It is never cold enough in the winter to wear a coat, though in summer that you may not be in the saddle all day.

"In 1894 or 1895 a very unpopular American consul there, who swindled me out of £700. I laid the whole matter before the secretary at Washington and a deputation in which Mr. Perdecarris joined asked me to have him put out of his position. A man-of-war was sent and he was arrested and taken back a prisoner to the States.

Spaniards Rule Roost.

The population of Tangier is about 15,000. There is an English legation and consul. Sir Ernest Satow, who was minister there, is now in China, and was formerly in Japan. The Spaniards rule the roost. Sir Drummond Hayes was minister for a greater number of years, during which time England was everything. Tangier originally belonged to her, having taken it in war, but she abandoned it. The great trade is done in cattle, and it is monopolized by the Jews. They ship their cattle to Spain, and have supplied the garrison at Gibraltar for 25 years past.
