

SUBMARINES OFF
CANADIAN COAST?British Warships on Patrol to Watch
For Pirate Craft—Naval Experts
Guess at German Plans

New York, July 10.—The Evening World says:

A German submarine is expected to appear off New York harbor any day. The British admiralty in anticipation of such warfare, has made extensive preparations to counter it, but keeps secretly guarded the steps taken.

All along the Canadian Atlantic coast, from New Brunswick to Labrador, public warning has been given to merchant ships and fishermen to be on the lookout for signs of a German attack. As a result, the British naval authorities in Halifax and in the United States are receiving daily reports of suspicious craft along the north-eastern coast, which indicates the alertness of the fishermen. None of these reports have proved well grounded so far.

There have been reports for six months that the Germans would attempt to establish a secret supply base for the submarines on some almost deserted island off Newfoundland or Nova Scotia. The new U boats can cross the Atlantic would need only oil fuel and provisions to enable them to raid southward along the coast, destroying British ships from New York or out of the St. Lawrence. The British naval authorities assert there is no possibility of any supply station being established. The whole northern coast is on guard. Every island is being searched.

The real German plan, so the naval experts predict is for one more of the submarines to sneak northward along the coast of Norway to meet with a supply ship and then proceed across the Atlantic north of the regular track of ships, and when near the coast of America turn southward.

Then the mother ship will load the submarine to capacity with fuel and provisions and cast them off to do mischief as close as possible off the American coast to British ships.

They will approach New York and try to catch some of the guarding British warships and the big merchant craft steaming with foodstuffs and munitions of war for England.

When out of fuel, the report says, the submarine will run into some United States port and there intern.

TOBACCO AND SUGAR
YIELDS PROMISINGFine Seasonable Rains After Period of Six Years of Insufficient Rainfall

Kingston, Jan. 10.—Good weather from the standpoint of the agriculturist has created a promising outlook for the Jamaican tobacco and sugar fields. After a period of nearly six years of insufficient rainfall there have been fine seasonable rains during the past few months. As a direct consequence the tobacco crop probably will be the finest reaped, both in quality and in quantity, in the history of the island.

Although the rains came too late to give full benefit to the sugar crop, everything points to a crop above the average at next season's cuttings.

The absence of shipping facilities is the only serious drawback in the way of the farmers, securing the benefits of the bumper crops.

WRITE THEIR LETTERS
UNDER EYES OF GUARDMessages From Germany Telling of "Kind Treatment" Are Dictated, Writes Montrealer

Montreal, July 10.—An explanation of the statements received in prison camps, stating that the writers were well treated "and having a splendid time," etc., has come through in a letter received in the city from William Flint, son of George Flint, who is well known in Montreal. The writer was in Germany with his mother and two sisters at the outbreak of the war, and while the ladies of the party were allowed to leave the internment camp, one of the largest internment camps in Germany.

Some time after he had been interned, a letter was received by his mother in Montreal stating that the writer was getting "plenty of good food" and was being "well cared for," and therefore there was not any need to worry over his condition.

This week another letter was received from Mr. Flint, in which he stated that he had an opportunity of writing without someone standing over him and dictating what he must write, as had been the case in the former letter. While not giving any lengthy description of the true conditions in the camp, Mr. Flint stated in his last letter that things are by no means so pleasant as he was ordered to say they were when he formerly wrote, but that at that time there was no chance of writing otherwise of his whereabouts.

BRITISH HAVE BEATEN
GERMANS AGAIN AND HAVE MADE ADVANCE

London, July 10.—Further gains north of Ypres, where the British, on July 6, captured 20,000 yards of German trenches are reported by Field Marshal Sir John French. He says that after a bombing duel lasting two nights and two days the Germans fell back, enabling the British to extend their gains. All reports, says the Field Marshal, indicate that the German losses were severe.

CANADIAN KILLED
AT DARDANELLES

London, July 10, Montreal Gazette (cable)—Captain Adrian Aubrey Taylor, whose death has been announced, was thirty-nine years old, the younger son of Reid Taylor, formerly of Montreal. He was killed while on service with the Royal Dublin Fusiliers at the Dardanelles. He served throughout the Boer war with the Mounted Infantry, was mentioned in despatches, and was also for several years in the Egyptian army.

THE 34TH GEORGE ROUSING WELCOMED IN ST. THOMAS

St. Thomas, Ont., July 10.—St. Thomas yesterday had the biggest military day in its history, when 10,000 people crowded into Pinafore Park to witness military manoeuvres by the 34th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, which marched to the city from its training camp at London, Ont. T. W. Crothers and Hon. Finlay Macdonald were among the speakers.

RE-NUMBERED HOUSES.

A practical suggestion is made in the preface to the 1915 directory, Mr. McAlpine says: "As the vacant lots in the city, not only in St. John south, but on the West Side, the North End and the Courtyard Bay district, as well as being built up a renumbering of the houses is an absolute necessity, as many have incorrect numbers and a great many are minus numbers."

"TEN NIGHTS IN A BARROOM" AT THE STAR.

The clergy, press and public have recommended this play and book as being the greatest lesson against the evils of intemperance that has ever been written. In making the motion picture scenario, it was possible to portray the story far more vividly than it was ever produced on the stage. Not alone its wonderfully strong moral precepts is it valuable as a feature film, but its many strongly acted scenes and thrilling heart interest are of a kind which remind us that all of us are human; that we have feelings. "Ten Nights in a Barroom" has been shown in this city before, but not this production. This feature was produced by the Photo Drama Company of New York in five reels and is the first of this company's productions shown in this city. It is a splendid feature in more ways than one and should be seen by all. It's a story with a moral.

WORKING HOURS FOR JUSTICES
Time Put in by Members of United States Supreme Court

The court adjourns each day at 4.30 p.m. and in no sense means the end of the day's work—O, no, more clearly its beginning, for upon reaching the court the justices find the records and briefs awaiting him. The submitted cases must be studied and worked out for tomorrow is another day, and there are more. And again, a case may have been argued, indeed argued by as good a lawyer as the world ever knew, but that alone does not convince himself and an independent personal investigation is made just as in the submitted cases. This preparation for consultation and decision means work, and hard work. It is not the exception for a justice to be at his desk until late at night and again very early in the morning. That necessity, perhaps, furnishes a very good reason why the supreme court has never asked for other offices.

The court meets every day at twelve o'clock, and at that time the work of preparation must cease, for new cases must be heard and others submitted; but at the end of each day's sitting the study and investigation are resumed, so that by the time Saturday arrives, and usually Saturday is the day set apart for consultation, each justice is prepared to meet his associates and to discuss and thresh out the many intricate and important questions up for decision—Case and Comment.

Two men were talking of hard times. Does your wife ever grieve because she threw over a wealthy man in order to marry you? queried Hall.

"Well, she started to once," was the reply, "but I cured her of that without delay."

"I wish you would tell me how," said Hall.

"I started right in grieving with her," replied the other, "and I grieved harder than she did."—National Monthly.

A REAL FAN
(Bangor Commercial)

There is one train that always is certain to arrive in Cincinnati at the time when the Reds are playing at home. They say that one time there was a wreck, a washout and a burned bridge. The entire traffic on that line of the Pennsylvania railroad was tied up. Not a wheel was moving. Suddenly the anxious railroad men assembled in the station heard a whistle, and right on the minute Lycurgus McDowell brought his train into the station.

"How did you get through?" asked the general manager in awed tones.

"I had to. The Reds play at home today," responded McDowell.

McDowell, known all over southern Ohio as "Casey Jones," is Cincinnati's chief entrant for the champion fan contest and followers of the Reds declare Casey is the greatest baseball fan on the face of the globe.

He is a railroad engineer and for the last twelve years he has been leader of the Red rosters, the one who remained loyal through thick and thin and who still kept rooting in spite of the thinness of the record.

McDowell has a working schedule that enables him to see all games, and he gets his vacation during the spring in order to be able to join his beloved Reds in their training camp, look them over and get acquainted with the youngsters, figure the possibilities of the team for the year and incidentally to get out and show the infielders a few of the finer points of the game. "Casey Jones." The song was then at the height of its popularity and the name fitted the engineer-fan so well it stuck. As Casey Jones he became known to thousands of the fans, who accepted him as their natural leader.

Casey's greatest failing is his admiration of Rubie Benton. He believes Benton is certain to become the greatest pitcher in the world.

He is Benton's chief advisor, whisperer and critic privately, and booster publicly.

REPORT OF THE NOVA SCOTIA FRUIT CROP

A report of the fruit crop in the Cornwall Valley states that strawberries are a large crop and that the acreage is more extensive than ever before. The Burbank plums will be a total failure, while other varieties will not be more than half a crop.

On the other hand the report declares the apple crop will likely be one of the largest on record; especially is this true of the early varieties. The black spot is said to be developing, although all orchards have been systematically sprayed.

Some authorities believe Nova Scotia will have two million barrels of apples.

It will also be larger, according to late reports, than that of Nova Scotia apples can probably be bought at very reasonable prices this fall.
