Very many in St. John, in Albert county and throughout the province will regret to learn of the death of Charles Morris, which occurred at his home, 123 City Lane, West St. John, on Saturday, in the seventy-seventh year of his age. Mr. Morris was born at Harvey, Albert county, and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Owen Morris. He conducted a blacksmith business at Harvey until 1906, when he was appointed collector of customs there. He retired from an active life in 1911, and since then had made his home in West St. John, where he died. He had been ill since April and had been gradually failing. The end, when it came, was not unexpected. A specially sad circumstance is that his wife is in poor health and has been ailing since March.

Mr. Morris was widely known and had a host of friends. He had many sterling qualities, and there are very many to regret his passing. He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Mary Hogan of Calais, Me.; five sons, Walter E., a railway mail clerk; Charles O., with W. H. Thorne & Co., Ltd., and Fred M., all in St. John; Jerome A., manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Chatham, N. Hanley and Miss L. Morris of Hillsboro, Albert county, and Mrs. R. McDonald of Springfield, N. S.

The funeral took place this morning to the Church of the Assumption for requiem high mass by Rev. J. J. Ryan, and thence to Holy Cross cemetery. The five sons and a nephew, Lieut. E. J. Cronin, were pall-bearers.

Following a short illness the death of Henry E. DeLong occurred on Monday evening, Sept. 4, at his residence, Elmhurst, Kings county, at the age of 78 years. ## A Few of the New Style Notes Becomingness is assured in every seam of the new Coats, Frocks and Costumes.

In SUITS—Fur trimmings more beautiful than ever are showing. Rich embroideries are again seen on very dressy models and Russian or box lines are evident.

Plain tailored suits fashioned from heavier tweeds will also share in the favored fall modes. The best of it is, all the suits are so very wearable.

You'll notice a variation in the length of both coat and skirt.

In FROCKS—Colors and styles are taken from every corner of the globe. Egyptian, Russian and Roman influences are noticeable.

As for Materials—Cloak, Matelasse, brocades and fine twills are in demand; also a decided leaning to crepes of various kinds.

A new silhouette is brought about by flaring skirt panels and graceful draperies of unusual design. Blue and brown tones are prominent.

In COATS—The big raglan sleeved coat made from heavy, plaid backed material or some soft piled fabric that provides warmth without extra weight is both highly fashionable and altogether practical. These are fashioned in free hanging or belted styles and have big, roomy pockets and leather or bone buttons.

Fur Trimmed Coats in Velours or Duveltyns are finding favor for more dressy wear.

EARLY CHILD LABOR.

(Bangor Commercial.)
Both child and community are losers by a policy which allows children under the age of sixteen years to be gainfully employed, according to a report on "The Working Children of Boston" just issued by the United States Department of Labor through the Children's Bureau. They have not received an education of the sort to make them adaptable to changing industrial conditions or to give them an understanding of the duties of citizenship. They are "subjected also to positive damage," the conclusions state, "from irregular habits of work, from labor unadapted to their needs and capacities, and from unsuitable associations and environments."

Advancement in school work seems to have exercised a favorable influence over even the children's first earnings in regular positions, and the advantage of those who had completed normal or higher than normal grades for their ages was still more definite in regard to wage increases, steadiness of employment, and earnings over an extended period of time. The study dealt with conditions which attended the entrance into working life of all children in Boston, Cambridge, Somerville and Chelsea, Mass., who passed their fourteenth birthday in a given year and who entered employment within two years thereafter—a total of 5,692, or approximately one-third of the children of their ages in these cities. Information concerning subsequent working histories was secured for a number of these children about three years later, and the advantage of those who had completed higher grades in school appeared at this time to have grown more pronounced, and suggests the reports says "that even the small amount of education which the eighth-grade graduate could boast over the sixth-grade graduate was a real industrial asset."
