Letter and Poem
From Private
George Snow

2nd General Military Hospital, Alexandria Park, Stockport, England, June 17th 1916. (Editor the Guardian).

Dear Sir,—I suppose you will be shocked to receive a word from me again. Well, sir, I am very glad to tell you I have arrived safe in old England again for another rest. I have had 7 months at the front this time, and, as things seemed to go a little wrong with me, I had to be sent to England. But I can't say what is wrong with me as we are not allowed to tell anything of the kind.

Well, I suppose you've all heard about our best leader, Lord Kitchener. Well, sir, there is no doubt we have lost a good man; but it cannot be helped now, we must only do our best.

I am going to ask you if you will kindly put those few verses in the Guardian, just to let some of my pals know I am not down hearted yet. I will now finish by wishing you and the Guardian every success in the future days. Yours sincerely,
GEORGE SNOW.

A Soldier's Plea

I left my civilian employment, I left my friends in the strand,
To fight for my King and country in a distant foreign land;
I left my pals in the city, new pals I had to gain,
And I joined old Britain's colours, boys, a noble victory to gain.

The Roll Call

Tune—"When the roll is called up yonder."
(Word's by O. Hazlewood, Toronto, with apologies to author of original.)

When my King and Country call me and I'm wanted at the front,
Where the shrapnel shells are bursting in the air,
When the foe in fury charges and we're sent to bear the brunt,
And the roll is called for service, I'll be there.

Chorus—When the roll, etc.

When the Kaiser's lin are broken and his armies out of France,
When the Belgian desolation we repair,
When the bugle sounds "advance,"
May the God of Battles help me to be there.

When the Allies march through Prussia with the foe in full retreat
"That our hearts be kept from hatred" is our prayer;
When the right of might is ended in a crushing last defeat,
And the roll is called in Berlin, I'll be there!

When for me "Last Post" is sounded and I cross the Silent Ford,
I've a Pilot who of "mine fields" will beware;
When "Reveille" sounds in Heaven and the armies of the Lord,
Sing the Hallelujah chorus, I'll be there.

The Hard Struggle

"It's a tough struggle."
"What is?"
"Doing without the things we actually have to have to try to keep up the payments on the luxuries we didn't need."

I OWE MY HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Washington Park, Ill.—"I am the mother of four children and have suffered with female trouble, headache, nervous spells and the blues. My children's loud talking and romping would make me so nervous I could just tear everything to pieces and I would ache all over and feel so sick that I would not want anyone to talk to me at times. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills restored me to health and I want to thank you for the good they have done me. I have had quite a bit of trouble and worry but it does not affect my youthful looks. My friends say 'Why do you look so young and well?' I owe it all to the Lydia E. Pinkham remedies."
—Mrs. Rott, Spitzer, Moore Avenue, Washington Park, Illinois.

We wish every woman who suffers from female troubles, nervousness, headache or the blues could see the letters written by women made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have any symptoms about which you would like to know write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for helpful advice given free of charge.

The Caribou Newfoundlanders At The Front

British Headquarters, France.

"What has most impressed me out here," said the distinguished neutral visitor, "is the wonderful rally of men from every corner of your world empire to fight in the cause of the Mother Country. Canadians, New Zealanders, Australians, West Indians, Indians"—he paused and then added, "And how many others."

"Newfoundlanders," I said, and that show it came about that I realized that there are actually imperial troops in France of whom countless people at home have probably not even yet heard. So yesterday I took the opportunity of paying a visit to the Newfoundland battalion in their rest billets somewhere in Artois.

They are a magnificent body of men, as one might indeed expect to find after reading Rudyard Kipling's "Cappaine Courageous," although the class herein enlisted have mainly entered the Imperial Navy; over 2000 of them at present serving in the Royal Naval Reserve. The regiment since its arrival in France has taken its full share in trench warfare, and there is little doubt has left the mark of its quality upon the enemy, who are said to have dubbed them "The White Indians."

I gathered from a high-placed officer who is in a position to speak from personal experience that the great value of the "Caribou's," as he called them, lies in their wonderful adaptability to all conditions of fighting. For instance, they have developed a batch of snipers as good as any to be found along the entire front. As I believe the story of this gallant battalion has yet to be recorded, I cleared some particulars which should prove of interest.

The "tenth greatest island," which, being Britain's oldest colony, does not object to being styled such, offered on the outbreak of war to provide and maintain 500 men, fully equipped. It was later agreed that, if the War Office would undertake the equipment, the number could be considerably increased. One point upon which the corps dwells with a very justifiable delight is that 90 per cent. of its strength consists of bona fide Newfoundlanders.

When the battalion first arrived in Britain it was sent to Salisbury Plain to train with the Canadians. After this they were removed to Ayr, a change which was very welcome, owing to the traditional animosity between the hardy islanders and the Scotch.

In September the battalion was sent to Gallipoli, arriving at Sulva about six weeks after the original landing in that zone. The Newfoundlanders were pushed up to the extreme left of the British front, occupying a spot which they named Caribon Hill, and it is their pride that they were actually nearer to Constantinople than any other troops in the Dardanelles Expeditionary Force.

During the torrential rains which lasted from November 17 to the 27th, when whole batches of men were washed out of their trenches and drowned, the Newfoundlanders managed to cling to their flood-swept positions with wonderful endurance and courage.

On the evacuation of Sulva the battalion went to Helles, where it was employed in preparing the ground for the final withdrawal from the peninsula. Thus the Newfoundlanders faced all the perils of the double withdrawal.

A spell of recuperation in Egypt followed before the regiment came to France. I found opinion somewhat mixed upon the question whether they prefer life in France to the conditions upon the peninsula, although the preponderance is certainly in favour of the former.

Doubtless the outrageous weather of the past few days has had depressing effect upon the spirits of the men, notwithstanding that, as one of them remarked to me, "There is something homely about it after all."

The organization of the Newfoundland battalion is truly democratic, every officer having entered through

German Submarine Reaches America

Baltimore, July 10.—The world's first submarine merchantman anchored below Baltimore to night, eluding the enemy cruisers watching for her. She carries a mail and a cargo of 750 tons of costly chemicals and dyestuffs, and a message from the Emperor to President Wilson. She carries home a cargo of rickets and crude rubber, sorely needed by the German army.

The Deutschland carries mounted in the conning tower two small guns of about 3 inch calibre. No torpedo tubes are visible. She is capable of submerging in less than two minutes. On the surface she has a speed of from 2 to 3 knots an hour more than an average merchant steamer.

She was fifteen days out from Bremerhaven to Baltimore and could have docked to-night, but arrangements had been made for her to arrive with formal ceremonies tomorrow. Her captain was ordered to wait in the lower harbor.

Regarding his vessel as a merchantman and subject to no unusual restrictions, the skipper, whose name is said to be Capt. Ksirig, went up the Chesapeake without waiting to notify the local customs and quarantine authorities of his presence.
