

POLSAM CURES
WORST CASES OF ECZEMA

To have suffered the tortures of eczema, itch, etc., for years, and suddenly find that the trouble has disappeared after a short treatment with Palsam is to experience satisfaction difficult to express. This is the story told daily from all parts of the country, of the actual accomplishments of Palsam, the perfect skin remedy. All skin diseases, including eczema, acne, tetter, salt rheum, itch, etc., are quickly eradicated by Palsam, which is stopped at once. Common troubles such as pimples, red noses, chaps, etc., respond so readily that the treatment is often sufficient. Palsam Soap, used daily for toilet and bath, makes every cleansing operation a double treat, and the healthfulness to the skin, incorporated in its benefits to tender skin, particularly to babies.

Chas. R. Watson, Clinton Brown, W. Munroe and all druggists sell Palsam (price 50 cents) and Palsam Soap (price 25 cents). For free samples, write to the Emergency Laboratories, 22 West 25th Street, New York City.

The remainder of the names in our list aside from the case of "The Great Swinburne" is described sometimes as white and sometimes as fawn, we have classed as reddish. The hair of Andrew Jackson is described as "reddish sandy," that of James Russell Lowell as "red" or "auburn," that of Swinburne as "red" in his youth, though the information in this last case comes from a peasant. The case of the Great Swinburne and not from an authoritative biography. William the Silent is described as having auburn hair and eyes, while Thomas Hobbes is referred to as having yellowish-reddish whiskers. It will be remembered that the hair of U. S. Grant is given as reddish-brown and that of Peter the Great as auburn. The case of Swinburne is thus the single instance of red hair in our list if our information is as to that individual is authentic.

SHAVING HUSBAND

Mrs. Weeks Had to Wash and Dress Him, so Sought Relief by Means of Divorce.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 27.—After reading her marriage contract thoroughly several times, Mrs. Nellie Weeks has been unable to find anything in it about a wife being compelled to act as barber, manicure, valet and tailor, and she is asking for a divorce from Henry Weeks, a political leader. She thought little things like helping him into his overcoat, pouring his coffee into the saucer to cool or picking his teeth, but she tried finally of shaving him every morning, trimming his hair, shining his shoes, tying his cravat and generally making him a regular "store" shave, she said, she the result was not worth the effort.

She told the Court today that for five years she stropped the razor, tried to cut the hair of the portiers, trimmed the face of the head of the house and then trimmed it into the semblance of a spinesless cactus. Then came a hot towel and the bay rum with talcum powder, after which she had to comb his hair, put on his shoes and stockings, brush his hat, and hold the door open for him. The latter performance was the only one that saved her any annoyance.

When Mr. Weeks went to the barber to get his hair cut, he would get a regular "store" shave, but during the months in between, she said, she fulfilled the office of general valet. He came to her as accustomed to having her dress him that if she refused he would forego the formality and sit around in his pajamas until the landlord came to collect the rent.

Mrs. Weeks says that she wants the barber chair and massage table made room for a Turkish rocker and a few other pieces of practical furniture. She holds no license as a practicing "store" shave, but during the months in between, she said, she fulfilled the office of general valet. He came to her as accustomed to having her dress him that if she refused he would forego the formality and sit around in his pajamas until the landlord came to collect the rent.

She holds no license as a practicing "store" shave, but during the months in between, she said, she fulfilled the office of general valet. He came to her as accustomed to having her dress him that if she refused he would forego the formality and sit around in his pajamas until the landlord came to collect the rent.

Mrs. Weeks says that she wants the barber chair and massage table made room for a Turkish rocker and a few other pieces of practical furniture. She holds no license as a practicing "store" shave, but during the months in between, she said, she fulfilled the office of general valet. He came to her as accustomed to having her dress him that if she refused he would forego the formality and sit around in his pajamas until the landlord came to collect the rent.
