HUN POISON SHELL CAUSED THE DEATH OF ALBERT DEVINE

Lad Who Spent Two Years in Military Hospitals Passed Away in This City on Wednesday Last.

One victim of the unfair methods of fighting used by the Hun passed away at the Military Hospital here on Wednesday last after an illness of over two years caused by poisoned shells.
Trumpeter Albert Devine aged 22 years was the man who lost his life because the Germans would not fight fair, and after suffering from April 23, 1916, from wounds in the back and abdomen, which the medical science of both the old and new worlds failed to cure, passed away on July 4th.
Trumpeter Devine, Venetian in the 8th Battery under Major Anderson and only spent two months on the firing line when he received the wound which eventually caused his death. He was riding on his horse when a shell burst, the horse and rider were both wounded. Trumpeter Devine near the spine by pieces of the shell. Horse and rider were both thrown to the ground and the rider was kicked in the abdomen. The wounded hero was picked up and taken to the dressing station and from there to hospital.

The wounds refused to heal and he was sent to England. Here it was found that the reason they would not, was because of some subtle poison which had evidently been introduced into the system by the shell which caused the wound. While in England he was treated by the best physicians in the country who could do nothing for him. Finally it was decided to send him home and about eight months ago he came to St. John and became an inmate of the Military Hospital. He was of a cheerful disposition and was a general favorite with all the nurses and attendants who did all they could to make the time pass pleasantly for him as they realized that it was only a question of time until he would be beyond the need of care. Of late he had been able to go around the city in a wheel chair and the V. A. D. nurses did everything they could to make the days pass agreeably for him.
The deceased was a native of Bathurst but enlisted in Woodstock. The body was taken to Bathurst on Thursday for burial. He is survived by a wife in England.

PAY A TRIBUTE TO THOSE WHO GAVE ALL

Memorial Services for Pte. Harold McKnight and Pte. Frank MacKenzie—Fitting Reference by Clergy to Work of Deceased.

The service at German St. Baptist church last night took the form of a memorial for Pte. Harold McKnight, who laid down his life in defence of the Empire, May 1, 1917, on the battlefields of France. The speaker, Rev. S. S. Poole, in the course of his address, made an appeal for the living at home of lives worthy of the men who had died in this struggle.
Mr. Poole based his remarks on the words of Christ: "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends."
It was his desire and the desire of the congregation to do honor to one who nobly laid down his life in the defence of home, justice and truth, and in the pursuit of what he believed to be his duty and who today slept in a grave somewhere in France, having done his bit for the flag he loved.

Pte. McKnight enlisted in January, 1916, in the unit commanded by Lieut. Col. Beer, and went across to England in September of the same year. After a short stay there he was transferred to the famous St. John battalion formerly commanded by Lieut. Col. McAvity, and took part in the famous Vimy Ridge battle. A few days after this engagement he lost his life in one of the smaller encounters while the gains were being consolidated, on the first day of May, 1917. Pte. McKnight had passed his 23rd year a short time before his death.

The great lesson to be learned from the sacrifices of the men who were daily laying down their lives in the interests of humanity and to preserve the rights and liberties of smaller nations, was that those at home should make themselves worthy of these sacrifices and give up the lives of sin and selfishness so many were living. These men were suffering and dying to save the world from the curse of militarism and the big question for every one at home to face was are we worth it? The men at the front were giving themselves in living as well as dying for they had to undergo all sorts of hardships and suffering and their devotion to duty should be an example to all those at home and make them glad and willing to endure the small sacrifices they were called upon to face.

A memorial service in honor of Pte. Frank P. MacKenzie of the 5th C.M.R. was held last evening in St. Mary's church, Waterloo street. The church of England burial service was used and an appropriate sermon was preached by the rector, Rev. R. Taylor McKim. A delegation from St. John Typographical Union, of which Pte. MacKenzie was a member, was present at the service as well as a number of the relatives and friends of the dead soldier. The pastor, in his sermon, dwelt on the life of Pte. MacKenzie and the noble sacrifice he made for the cause of humanity. In this connection he said that those who had gone out and paid their all will be ably backed up when conscription comes into force. In referring to the honor

Dr. Lyons is both eloquent and forceful and his address yesterday made a deep impression on the large congregation.

"At the present time that things will be quiet until the conclusion of the war."
