A Broken Wedding Ring

By Bertha M. Clay

to him. He was a thorough soldier; he lived for his profession alone. He had found, in the midst of all his occupations, to marry—though General Sir Arthur Hutton never made much pretense of having married for love—a rich widow, Lady Bourgoyne, whose husband had been one of the wealthiest men in India, and had left the whole of his fortune to her. The fair widow herself had given the first sign of preference for Sir Arthur. She admired the gallant soldier, with his bronzed, handsome face and fine figure. She gave him to understand, in a royal kind of fashion that she like him, was not given to a thought to love or marriage. He looked upon matrimony as something not quite fitted for soldier's life. He wondered a little when he heard of officers and privates marrying. He wondered yet a little more when he thought of all that the wives and mothers had to suffer.

He mused rather than otherwise when Lady Bourgoyne commenced to woo him. When she first began to distinguish him by her attentions, he was timid and half shy, wholly unaccustomed to what to do or say. Lady Bourgoyne managed it all for him. Considering that she was at that time one of the most popular and wealthy women in the whole presidency, her admiration and evident liking for the general created no small sensation. She married him at last; for, oddly enough, in speaking of the wedding, no one ever remarked that the general had married Lady Bourgoyne.

They lived together happily for many years. Lady Hutton was one of the best and most submissive of wives. She loved her husband, and lived for his happiness. He seemed to be always more or less surprised at himself for having married. When Lady Hutton died, she left the whole of her enormous fortune to him. Sir Arthur missed his wife; he mourned for her with all sincerity, and he lived on without knowing that his heart was still sleeping, and had never awakened to the least knowledge of true love.

Before his marriage he had received the letter written by his sister, and it had touched him deeply. He had loved little Doris very dearly. She was but a child when he had left home, yet he retained the liveliest and most loving memory of her. He said to himself, when he read the letter, that he would most certainly attend to her wishes. But it was a difficult thing to do, and he was thousands of miles from home, and his time was incessantly occupied. He delayed from day to day, not quite knowing what to do, until at last the letter was put away with other papers and forgotten. Then came the busiest part of his life; he married, lost his wife, doubled his fortune, and resolved upon returning to England. He resigned his command, gathered together his wealth, and, to the regret of all who knew him, sailed for his native land. He had spent the best of his life in India, he had accumulated much treasure, and he determined that he would spend the few last years of his life in ease and enjoyment. Under the heat of the tropical sun, and amid the discomforts of a tropical climate, this had been his idea, the one dream in which he had revelled—his return home, and in the heart of his native land, fairer to him than any other on which the sun shone, make for himself a perfect home.

Everything succeeded as he wished. The princely mansion and estate of Brentwood were in the market, and the general solicitors decided that he could not do better than purchase them. He did so; the grand old house, with its magnificent grounds, its woods, and streams, became his, and he was proud of it. Brentwood stands in the beautiful-wooded and picturesque county of Warwickshire; the lovely Avon runs near it, great hills crowned with trees stretch out on either side. Brentwood Hall and Brentwood Park have been famous in picture and song for many generations. The general was pleased with his new domain—"Sir Arthur Hutton of Brentwood."

Many people wondered if he would marry again; but the general had no such intention. He knew nothing of house-furnishing or decoration; but he gave carte blanche to Messrs. Carson and Son, the famous upholsterers, the result of which was that he had one of the most magnificently furnished houses in England. He had a correspondingly heavy bill to pay. He looked at it, sighed, wondered what his wife would have thought of it, drew a check for it, and forgot it. When the bill was ready for occupation, he took up his residence there. All his papers were sent to him, and, looking over them one day, for the purpose of arranging them, he found his dead sister's letter that had been hidden away for so long. He re-read it with a smothered cry of self-reproach. He had forgotten it all these years. He determined to make amends.

An Inside Bath Makes You Look and Feel Fresh

Says a glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast keeps illness away.

This excellent, common-sense health measure being adopted by millions.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver and kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have dull, aching head, sallow complexion acid stomach, other who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearance.

A Child Gets Cross, Sick and Feverish When Constipated

Look, Mother! If Tongue is Coated Clean Little Liver and Bowels

If your little one's tongue is coated it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" which contains directions for babies, children, of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeit sold here. Get the genuine made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

at once. He loathed the name of Martin Ray. Anne Hutton had not spared his daughter's husband and the strength of his hatred had been imparted to his son. Sir Arthur Hutton had the utmost contempt for one whom in his own mind he always called "the demagogue; but he felt inclined to love and adopt his sister's children.
