

---

Execution of judgments.

Fining of employes.

Sunday labor.

Industrial schools.

Tenement houses and workingmen's dwellings.

Building societies.

Immigration.

Sanitary arrangements of factories, workshops and workingmen's dwellings.

Co-operation in production and distribution.

Bureaus of labor statistics.

Convict labor.

Savings of the working classes, and their investments.

Although it is believed that these subjects will fairly cover the field of investigation, it must be distinctly understood that evidence may be taken on any other subject, not here enumerated, that may be deemed to come within the scope of these enquiries.

Special enquiry will also be made into the condition of persons employed in the agricultural, mining, lumbering and fishing industries.

A. H. BLACKEBY,

Secretary.

---