Public Relations

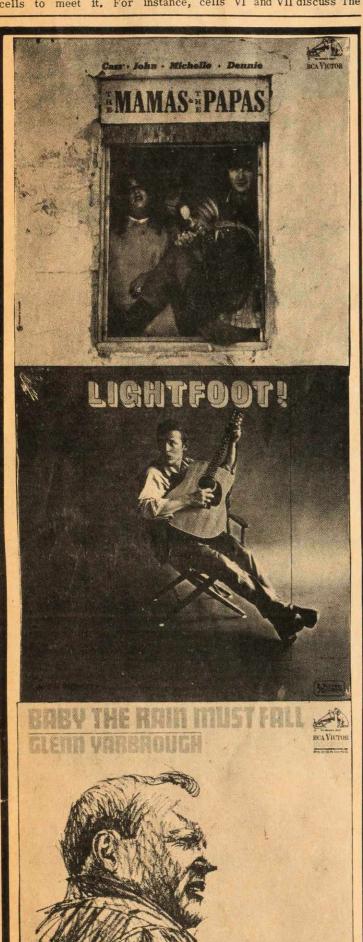

"It is an exhibition for youth. We would like to see Canada's young people welcome those from all over the world. We hope they will exchange views and ideas. Here is a wonderful opportunity to discover the world. This can be their exhibition.

The speaker was Philippe de Gaspe Beaubien, Expo's director of operations. His enthusiasm is contagious and with reason, it's that kind of Exhibition.

It is even more "that kind" of Exhibition for university students. The fast-moving, dynamic, technological era Expo will represent the age they will inherit and mold. Students can learn, amuse and be amused. The main area for participation will be the Youth Pavilion, which is geared to appeal to the 15 to 30 age

In the two sectors, Theme and Activity, young people will be introduced to themselves and to their contemporaries of 70 nations, they will meet and exchange points of view. . . in casual chats or fierce debates, it doesn't matter. . . it is the challenge

The present day world will be illustrated. What are the effects of this 1967 world on youth? How does youth react to it? What does youth want to do with it? It is an impressive challenge, and the Theme sector will present 12 topics in different display cells to meet it. For instance, cells VI and VII discuss The

One Week Only!!

Each of these smash new albums:

> Regular $4.20

Special Sale Price $2.98

(Mono Only)

SORRY! ONLY ONE TO A CUSTOMER

C.U.S. CARDS & COUPONS INVALID WHILE THIS OFFER IN EFFECT

FRAM'S

Lord Nelson Shopping Arcade

expo67 Youth Pavilion, a haven for students

2) divisions and opposition between older and younger generations, 3) delinquency. Other topics include the scientific and technological environment, the differences between youth on the six continents, and how these differences affect their social, economic and

Differences in age and education of visitors require that Expo's appeal be of an emotional rather than strictly intellectual "Teaching" will be indirect and the emphasis placed on participation. The Activity sector of the Youth Pavilion has been planned with this in mind, and also as a complement to the Theme

The Lobby-Gallery can serve as a rest area, as well as a waiting room between shows; visitors can refresh themselves at the adjoining snack-bar counter. The lobby will also be used as permanent art gallery. The art pieces and other exhibits which will be shown here will be the works of young people (paintings, sculptures, photographs, graphic art, etc.) There will be at least a dozen shows, lasting from one to two weeks each.

THEATRE AREA

The theatre area offers the best equipment and is the most suitable sector for first-quality cultural events. Its multipleuse function and its architecture enable it to shelter many different kinds of activities.

The program will include an international amateur film festival, theatre (plays by young authors; experimental and "avanttheatre), music (recitals, soloists, small ensembles), meetings, lectures, etc.

facilities to transform it into a discotheque and "boite a chansons". Jazz, folk singing, folk-rock groups, popular singers will be featured. At times, the cafe-dansant will also become a television

Richard II

The convention of presenting an annual Shakespeare spec-

Shakespeare has limited audience appeal, and always de-

Theatre didn't die with Shakespeare - it lives yet. Period

However, The Dal Drama Workshop production of Richard

Ripley, excellent,

John Ripley, as Richard, was excellent. This actor has a

Ripley's Richard obviously paced the other actors, particufine voice and knows how to use it. His movements, however, were not up to the same standard and his footwork often dislarly Messrs. McClymont, French, Dunphy and Blake who turned in remarkably good performances as Bolingbroke, York, Gaunt, and Northumberland respectively. Mr. McClymont has an excellent voice but gave it and his character little range. We hope to see Mr. Blake in Dirty Work at The Crossroads next was generally static. Stage movement was a little too obviously point to point - even Richard was guilty in this. We like to see nice groupings on stage, but they should not be preserved at the stage picture should be interesting to watch - in this production it rarely was. Movement, both of groups and individuals,

Street colours are nothing new. But although they were too new,

and at times clashingly fluorescent, they made statements about the characters and the play, and once they established them-

"mirror" scene. It was awesome to watch costumes, blocking, lighting, and Ripley's acting blend, settle and close in on the key scene of the play.

On the whole, Richard II was a good production. Its main

Do Fakes Matter?

On Tuesday, November 1, an desires of individual buyers for art film entitled "Do Fakes Mat- rare and original works of art ter" was shown in the Arts and by famous men whose work is Administration building. Even difficult to locate and identify.

though the film was shown at All fakes are exposed by time.

noon, a time convenient to most Good art is beautiful, but fakes students, it was not well attended. are often ugly and vulgar. Faces but with artistic fakes which tray it as a forgery because the require some orginality on the false artist usually portrays the part of the forger. Such paint- type of facial representation ings have qualities which appeal, which has contemporary artistic not so much to art galleries as popularity. Fakes do not matter to private collectors. They are as much as is generally felt, cheaper than the real thing, and because a vital principle of art look just as good to the casual is lacking in them - they create

The film dealt not with copies, in such a painting frequently be-selves, their cut and colours were quite fascinating.

Nancy White was badly miscast as Richard's queen. Whilst the "stage picture" was often quite lovely, the play Gestures were used far too seldom. The focal point of the

Costumes

The costumes aided this style and proved that Carnaby

The whole play came strikingly together in the second act

BY INGRID LEFORT

tacular unfortunately seems to be becoming established at Dal.

mands a large cast which means that the individual actor gets a proportionately small share of director-actor contact. Thus actors and hence the production cannot be as good as an equivaplays are interesting to see occasionally, but if we're going to have a university drama program, surely its staple fare should

II was far more refined than their Shakespeare debacles of pre-be real, live, modern theatre experiences.

lent small-cast play.

tractingly inappropriate.

expense of motivated movements.

was unrealistically sparse.

fault was the choice of play.

Films

Crisis: 1) the different forms taken by the restlessness of youth, studio; rehearsals for some youth programs will take place there, and the programs will be transmitted live from that sector. The Amphitheatre of the Agora is the third key sector of activity. Most events will call for an active and spontaneous participation from the visitors: choirs, hootenanies, drama, folk dances and songs, gymnastics and sports demonstrations, festivals, integrated art shows. The selection of many of the participants in these different areas is not yet definite. Requests for information about participation should be addressed to: Youth Pavilion, Administration Building, Expo 67, MacKay Pier, Montreal, P.Q.

Swooshing rides, exotic boutiques, de luxe and inexpensive restaurants, very "in" bars and discotheques; La Ronde, Expo's amusement area, swings.

In Fort Edmonton, visitors will be swept away by the flurry of the gold rush and the Gay Nineties - sheriffs and cowboys running through the streets, honky-tonk piano, barber-shop quartets and dancing girls in the Golden Garter Saloon, snacks in the Wake-up-Jake Saloon. The bright lights and "happenings" of Fort Edmonton contrast with the hide-away atmosphere of Le

The buildings are old, the streets narrow, and the doorways lead to darkly lit caves, smoky, noisy and provocative. This is the "forbidden" area where nothing is really sin but everything fun. . . If the impression visitors get is one of entering a sin bin, the Exhibition will be pleased. That's what they paid the architect

LE VILLAGE

In the heart of Le Village, the discotheque shakes with the The cafe-dansant is equipped and organized with all the big beat sounds. The bar and restaurant in the building are more subdued, but for the discotheque proper the motto is the louder the better, . . and if the "noise" filters into the other Chez Rose Latulipe, is where poor Rose's sad tale is told, how she danced herself to death while under the spell of the devil's violin. It's a dance hall mostly for square-dancing and jigs, and while no food will be served, the bar may be a consolation. Then to repent, revelers can go to Le Refectoire de l'Abbaye where monks will serve wine and cheese, and serenade them with accordions.

For international entertainment, Expo has the Garden of Stars. Teenagers will use it as a dance hall in the early evening, later, it becomes a night-club. The International Carrefour, with its series of restaurants, and small shops, the dancing waters and fireworks at midnight, the flume ride (log-shaped cabins shooting down towards Dolphin Lake), the Gyrotron: these are but a few of the attractions in La Ronde. Expo's employment opportunities will offer students an effective and interesting means of participation. It has been estimated that 3,000 new employees will be needed, 650 of which could be students. Concessionnaires will need approximately 2,300 people for restaurants, boutiques, etc., and exhibitors might hire up to

A spokesman in the Personnel Office stressed that the Corporation "intends to make every human effort possible to hire university students." This point was emphasized in view of the problems that arise: hiring dates (April 17-21) and training periods will fall before the end of the academic year, and students will have to return to lectures before the end of the Exhibition. Once the study of personnel needs is complete and once the government has approved the positions, more details (where to apply, etc.) will be available.

Students will be required for such jobs as ticket collectors. ushers, parking lot and ride attendants, waiters, etc.

It is a two-way process, if young people, students, benefit from Expo, so will Expo, and indirectly the world we live in, benefit from their participation.

South Africans to be deported?

From Cape Town to Canada...

BY ELIZABETH HISCOTT Gazette Features Writer

"It is sad to read that refugees from injustice should be threatened with deportation instead of being welcomed with open arms by our authorities."

This remark by Mr. Norman Lipschutz, author and publisher of Glace Bay and a man familiar with the Nazi oppression of the Second World War, echoes the feelings of many Haligonians.

The free and friendly port of Halifax is host to a young South African couple, Michael Neill 24. and his wife Eefke 20, who have chosen Canada as the country in which they hope to find freedom to live as individuals. Michael, of white South African ancestry and Eefke, whose ancestors were Dutch and French, have been ordered deported to Africa.

The Neills left Cape Town because they had the courage to dis- write a book in the future called, agree with the apartheid policy of the South African government and

When Michael and Eefke decided to leave Cape Town, Canada was their chosen goal because they had read of it and had seen pictures of it in The National Geographic magazine, Said Michael, "It has such beauty and vastness . . . a spirit of indiviu-hitch-hiked across Africa to Eurway. In Holland they applied for emigration papers to Canada and had the necessary medical tests set out on a trekthrough Germany and Yugoslavia, earning money material from experience to

"From Cape Town to Canada". "if you feel the blacks are mis- returned to Holland to find that, treated and say so, you are called due to an oversight on the part tend the time another year. "This of the doctor who examined them, could be done for a period of five of the doctor who examined them, could be done for a period of five their papers had been held up as one of the medical reports had not been sent forward. So, they said Goodfellow. were told, they must wait another three months or more.

they impulsively gathered their as these to come here and at courage and their savings and the same time it is made difbought a ticket to Canada, and on ficult overseas by the length of September 30 they landed at the time of the waiting period, by To reach this goal the Neills Halifax International Airport, the number of medical tests that They had faith that they could must be paid for by applicants, ope into Holland living in a tent obtain the proper status as im- and by the hardships that must and working at odd jobs along the migrants when their papers ar- be endured due to an oversight rived. Later, they would seek in processing papers.' Canadian citizenship and Michael, Mr. Goodfellow was encourag-order after that date.

tion Board. Said Michael, "If we or possibly w

terview, "The white paper issue ' arms of dictators. qualify as immigrants through an ness.

years giving immigrants chance to qualify as Canadian citizens", He continued, "It seems inconsistent ... Canada spends so Discouraged and disappointed much to encourage people such a qualified navigator, could study ed in his work when word was done. As they were told that they forestry and animal preservation received that the Neills' applicawould have to wait three months in British Columbia, while Eefke tion for Canadian citizenship was to have the papers processed they could finish her Arts degree and confirmed at Holland and they had teach. Such were their dreams, passed the medical tests.

Just before their visas expired Certainly the Neills have at different jobs and gathering the Neills went to the Department proven their desirability as Caof Immigration to inquire if their nadian citizens. The determinapapers had come through and tion shown in their trek to freewere informed that their time dom; the courage portrayed in At the end of three months they would run out at midnight Oct. acting on their own convictions; 26, and thereafter they would be the desire to help themselves to Canada illegally. Also they a better way of life by working; were violating their visas by their perseverence; their courworking in Halifax. The Dept. of tesy, evident in a television in-Immigration would find it nec- terview with Jim Bennett of Gazessary to issue a deportation ette; their faith in Canada; surely these things must make their case On Nov. 4, the order for de- one which requires every conportation was issued. Mr. Walter sideration. Their plea for free-Goodfellow, a Halifax lawyer who dom from the dictatorship of offered his help, immediately fil- their own country should not ed an appeal with the Immigra- be met with deportation to prison, are deported, we will jump ship". There is a necessity for law The Neills felt that "a van in all societies if order is to be would be waiting to take them to the rule. But there is no law, no prison if they returned to South society, no country that can be Africa", because they had spoken called a product of democracy against the government policy, if it finds justification for send-Said Mr. Goodfellow in an in- ing seekers of freedom into the

by the government in Canada stat- The last chapter of the book to ed July 8 as the date from which be written by the Neills, "From stricter policy would require that Cape Town to Canada", depends all immigrants to Canada first on Canadians for its joy or sad-overseas office." He continued Many wise people, trying to that he would appeal to the Minis - explain beatnicks and delinquents ter of Immigration if he must and have said that today's youth have at his own discretion the minis- no cause, no challenge, no new ter could issue a permit granting horizon. Is not the cause of jusa year as legal residents in Can-tice and freedom for every inada, and at the end of this term dividual an ever present chala renewal of the permit would ex- lenge to all?

In Praise of Older Women... Books: Terry Donnelly

In Praise of Older Women: the amorous recollections of zev Ballantine (95¢) 225 pp.

Unlike most Canadian writers, Stephen Vizinczey has not chosen to write of things distinctively Canadian, such as small prairie towns or Torontonian pseudosophistication. In fact, the subject matter of this little novel is something distinctively un-Canadian - sex, or, more explicitly free sex.

In Praise of Older Women purports to be the sexual autobiography of one Andras Vajda, a philosophy professor at the University of Saskatoon. With this deliberately prosaic setting ends the "Canadianity" of the book. Vajda takes us back to his boyhood in wartime Hungary and Austria, where he began his career at the tender age of twelve, acting as a pimp for the American

That's only the beginning. As he grows up, he has experiences with young girls, matrons, virgins, and just about every other subspecies that might be imagined. He gets involved in the 1956 revolution, flees to Italy for a quick affair with a frigid woman, and finally ends up emigrating to Canada, where he continues his hobby as best he can.

So far, the book sounds like just another Frank Harris-type sexual diary. But it isn't - and this, as I see it, is where the book leaves the common run of sex-obsessed novels and emerges into uniqueness.

For the past fifty years people like D.H. Lawrence have been trying to make physical love an acceptable subject for treatment in fiction. They succeeded, but unfortunately many novelists have never realized this, and are still carrying on the campaign. As a result, the average novel in its own self-consciousness is apt to offend us either by hedging or by being crudely blunt. And it will probably never get further into its subject than mere anatomical descriptions.

Vizinczey, however, is not out to win any battles. He recognizes he is dealing with what is now a legitimate theme in literature, and this new theme can be handled in countless ways. He works art from art rather than from individual perception. Since forgers paint only for the commercial market, their work lacks the life and spirit of a creative within the theme, exploring its various aspects, and emphasizing one: that older women are in-Andras Vajda By Stephen Vizinc- finitely better lovers than giggly young girls. The result is that he has written mature, tasteful book, fascinating to read and perhaps even significant as a didactic novel. One does not necessarily have to be a proponent of free sex to enjoy the treatment Vizinczey has given to this theme. He never bores us with page-long medical lessons ala John Cleland. He doesn't euphemize about anything, nor does he offend us by using vulgar terms out of context. The language at all times is the language of Andra Vajda and the people he encounters. And Vajda is quite a character.

He is extremely frank, as quick to point out his failures as he to note his successes. An element of humor pervades the whole book, and parts of it are extremely funny. Nonetheless, nothing detracts from the moral Vajda wants to put across.

The book is "dedicated older women and addressed to young men" - with the purpose of connecting the two. No incident fails to teach the young men something, and no type of woman escapes judgment.

Vajda seems to live in a bachelor's paradise when he is in Europe. The women -- the older women, at least -- are warm, mature, and responsive. But when he arrives in Canada toward the end of the narrative, the whole tone of the novel changes. The sexual climate, formerly so warm and friendly, becomes cold and hostile.

This chapter is titled "On Grown Women as Teenage Girls", and begins with the quotation "sex on the moon". After few affairs with women who are either indifferent or "mercilessly irrational", he is forced to conclude that true older women are rare indeed in this country.

He doesn't have too many kind words for Canadian bachelors either. A taxi driver warns him: 'When you'd grab a girl, a Canadian grabs another drink. The place is full of fat men and unhappy women." Vajda finds out this is perfectly true.

The book, as a whole, succeeds amazingly well. It is a real pleasure to see Canadian writing leap into popular fiction of an international sort. It is an even greater pleasure to see sex discussed like any other theme in literature, without blushing selfconsciousness or dull cata-

The Lesson

The end of 'The Lesson' as is it was presented in Arts and Administration building. Using the confined and limited facilities provided by the lecture hall student director Chris Brooks managed to create a challenging piece of drama.