

be over now. Mamma left for Hingham at five this morning.
We have not heard any thing since but hope to, to-morrow.

Papa just returned from Loronto to-night where he was attending some Convention. I think Mr. Winchester was there too, but I suppose you knew that.

The excitement about - and it glorifies even the ugliest his going away is dying out face. to a certain extent - at least - among outside denominations, but his many devoted admirers will never cease to regret his going I am sure, for his very presence here and an occasional sight of him is enough for an incentive to try and do good.

He has such a lovely countenance
- just the expression I think ought to be in a good ^{man's} face.

Did you ever notice Willie, the expression on the face of a man or woman whose life is given up to Jesus - it is such a purified, refined look,

the excitement about - and it glorifies even the ugliest

I saw your dear mother to-day. She was driving with your Aunt from Paris. It is unnecessary to say she looked as pretty as ever. The Quos has returned and the girls are at their lessons again, much to their disgust.