

To Miss Tellée E. Prowting Roberts.

---

MY DEAR TELLÉE,—Having long felt anxious to adorn my pages with a name, at the same time classical, biblical, musical and well beloved, I venture to dedicate to you this unworthy production of an inexperienced pen, as a slight but sincere token of admiration for your genius, respect for your character, and gratitude for your friendship. If it will do nothing else it, will prove to you that the gratification I have derived from your society has not been forgotten, nor the hope abandoned of again renewing, at some future period, the acquaintance which flourished so well under the hospitable roof of Heronsgate.

Truly and sincerely,

Your affectionate friend,

H. SACKVILLE TREHERNE.
