Un-questionably "Colling" Line are the rivals whom the "Cunardem" have to dread; yet there the build claims any merit. The Pacific is 3,000 should command 2,550 horse-power. We shall await the intelligence of her arrival at Liverpool with interest, as an anticipated improvement in the construction and speed of vessels which confallen below the expectations of those who were prepared for a deficiency. Some months ago well-informed journals spoke of 2,700,000 bales lesser quantities were stated; but, now that the shipping returns are nearly com-plets, it turns out that the total crop will not exceed 2,000,000 bales. The rise in the price may compensate the planters to some extent, and ele-vate the money value of the export to the standard of former years; but the shipping employed in the carrying trade suffer severely from the export freight in the Southern ports speak very clearly on this point, vessels having accepted as low as one-sighth of a penny per lb. The new trade which has sprung up with California and the West coast of North America may draw off many ships which under other circumstances, would now be seeking freights, nevertheless a fall in the hern shipping ports must ever otely have some influence upon the freights ida, unices our export trade be turned off towards New York through Lake Champlain, a result anticipated by some of our traders.

THE MESSAGE BIRD." A Literary and Musical Journal, published by M. T. Brockelbank & Co , No. 2, Astor House, Broadway, Nev York.

On a former occasion, we noticed the introdu ion of the first number of this journal to the citizens of Montreal, and gave our opinion as to the merits, character, and general plan of its publica-tion. The present is certainly the Age of Printing: and the facilities which have been given to this Art, have, in some degree, overstocked that demand for literary productions which were desired by the natural and progressive movements of a former period.

The Press has covered the land with its daily ssues, its illustrated sheets, and its attractive Pictorials. There comes to us by every Mail, s some new development based upon Chemical or Philosophical agency hitherto unknown. The rapid introduction of these journals and essays would seem to require in every city a public tri-bunal of letters, a Censor to preside, and a Mocceins, an internal navigation, which employs a vidual capacity, (if we may so speak,) is unable accurately and carefully to review the various productions submitted to its directors.

It would be an endless, distasteful, and unpro fitable labor, to wade through mere pages of print ed matter for the discovery of one or two fine turned saide by a pelicy as enlightened as that as butterfly attractions, perish with the day that which suggested to the British Minister to prenada and sorious, and it is gratifying to acknowledge that morracy. The waters of the St. Lawrence have cover of adornment. On the occasion of the appearance of the first number of the Message Bird, nome months since, we did not hesitate to place it in the first rank of any aimilar publication i North America. Its subsequent productions, the character it has sustained as an able and faithful exponent of the Divine Art, and the well known abilities of those who conduct it, have fully jusfified the opinions then expressed. We said then of the Americans, the features are essentially differsal—they do not covet our carrying trade, they received as a welcome guest in every enlightened propose to conduct a trade purely American, making use, for that purpose, of our canals and who cultivate Music in its higher and more refined susceptibilities, both in its social and moral

We were fayored with a side on the last night of performances, which took pince in the Odd Pellows' Hall, Great St. James Street. Mr. W. commenced with a scene at eas, in which, as well as throughout the performance, he himself was sole actor. In this, his powers of centriloquism, which are simfleiently essystable, spread in the side of dramatic persons.

The mat of the sea-sick old gentleman in the cabin was respectable, spread in the stead of deptants persons. The part of the ses-sick old gentleman in the cabin was swell assuained, as also that of his scape-grace son Evan, who, like many in the world, was willing to take the helm, without insteading how to manage its. In contequence, the ship, having an unskifted pilot, was very near the bottom, were it not for the Capitain's sid. The next delineation was a scene in a Police Court, in which Mr. W. was sufficiently successful, although it was not very complimentary to "the gentlemen of the long robe," who, Cavarincians, like the reat, were speciators of the fun. Mr. W. ouncluded by giving a delineation of "an hotel scene." This was really good, especially the waiter from the Emerald lale, who was by no means a male so one, as far as his master was concerned. "In send Outs" were no doubt delineated as they are in reality. The character of the "Yankee," which occurred in the covers of the evening, showed that Mr. W. Which lists was quite capable of appreciating the various qualities that make up that individual, good humos, ahrewdeess, and a sprinkling of real wit in the midst of his seriousness. This was certainly the best conceived part of the performance on Saturday evening. We benefit of the served managers, but were reared within a day's a sevent of the served managers. RESTING PLACE FOR THE DEAD.—By an advertisement in this day's paper, it will be seen that Mr. Sisson offers his beautifully situated property for sale. Observing the many complaints made lately, through the Press, of the burying of the bones of the dead, which were removed rom the graves in the Burying Grounds to give place for new interments, also the chauce of a visit of the plagu from the cramming of five or six coffins over each othe leaving barely sufficient earth to cover the uppermost, we consider it high time for our Corporation to take the measures necessary to put a stop to further interments within the after limits.

Ruiss,-There is a general exclai with the ruins of the Parliament House 11. The fact is, the place is exceedingly dangerous at present. We are the more called upon to make this expostulation with those who have care of the lives of our fellow-citizens in some measure, when we recoilect that, within the lisst fortnight, about a dozen unfortunate victims have perished benefit for the property of the control of th ruins. But if the ruins fall to pieces in the meantime, who are the parties in fault † Surely not those who have who are the parties in fault? Surely not those who have called upon us to make these remarks. Again, in an opposite direction of the town, Donegana's Botel nods over the head of the passenger, while the falling tin and sheet iron is loosened by every gale. We call upon the Corporation not to lose sight of these things, because they are things of importance, things that vitally concern the lives of others, as well as their own. Let us hope that the recent catastrophe in New York will serve as a warning to the Public Authorities of Montreal.

Councillor Atwater observed that the house of Mr. Walson was his own, and therefore being his own, he sould not courselve what right the Corporation had to interfere with a building intended for the purposes of his business, which was a lawful avocation and trade. He wished that the nuisance be removed, but agreed in opinion with Mr. Whillaw, that the Corporation had assumed too much in this instance.

Dr. Hall said he was resolved he would not trouble the City Council with any further arguments on this subject; he had sireadly appressed his opinion at a previous meeting. He would now repeat, that the City Council with may further arguments on this without delaying the question any longer. It had been too long delayed.
