

IN LOVE WITH A PHONOGRAPH

Voice Whose Owner He Never Expects to See.

Peculiar Infatuation of a Gambling House Habitué Who is Also a Philosopher.

From Wednesday's Daily
Among the general riffraff of Dawson's gambling houses there is a man who has the distinction of being in love with an unknown voice. That is, a voice he has learned to know and love, without ever having seen the owner. Not only has he never seen the siren whose voice has enslaved him, but he admits that he never expects to see her, and in a somewhat sarcastic way says that he don't know that he wants to. It might, he says, make him even more miserable than he already is. Jerry is the man's name, or the name he is known by, and the manner of his enslavement lies in nightly and daily, for the matter of that, listening to one of the big brass tipped phonographs with which several of the larger houses are provided.

It so happens that two of the larger instruments are supplied with selections much the same, and because of this Jerry is enabled to hear his unknown, unseen mistress sing first in one house and then in another. In the Aurora No. 2, high above the rattle of shifting chips and the crap fiend's shout to the dice; the black devotee's current remark of hit it and take it, and the whiz of the roulette ball, is heard the voice which sounds from the big phonograph, and when "What'll I do to Hollihan" is heard, Jerry draws near and waits eagerly for the strains of his favorite song. As the voice he loves to hear rises and falls in the soft cadences of the air, the poor fellow's face flushes, his eyes brighten, and he never moves till the last note is poured forth into the hot air of the room. Then Jerry bolts. He pushes his way vigorously through the crowded room to the front door, and once upon the street he makes his way with all possible speed to a house, a little further down the line, where, with as little ceremony and as scant politeness as that displayed in getting out of the other house he rushes to the phonograph.

It was due to this fact that his infatuation for the voice became known, and as previously intimated, Jerry, although surprised to find that any one knew or noted his actions, would not deny their cause.

It is a case of "Her voice lives in the brass."

Now He is Sorry.

R. B. Switzer, one of the police court stenographers, had business at the Forks yesterday, when he attempted to make a record-breaking trip. He made good time, but in his haste lost a leather pocketbook containing $40, or thereabouts, in cash and tickets to the various theaters of Dawson. He is now anxious to see the person who found the book, not that he cares so much for the money, but that he had become deeply attached to the theater tickets.

The Weather.

For the 24 hours preceding 9 o'clock this morning the official weather report kept by Sergeant Major Tucker showed the minimum temperature to be two degrees below zero, and maximum temperature to be 18 degrees above zero. At the government telegraph office this morning the reports from all points between Dawson and Bennett were that the weather was uniform, being from two to five degrees above zero.

DAWSON'S MAMMOTH DEPARTMENTAL STORE

Has been so busy making history that we have had no time to address ourselves particularly to the Ladies of Dawson and the Yukon. It is not our intention to be Sensational, and as you read on, should you find anything to give you that impression, the Remedy is in a visit here—a thorough inspection of the goods we write about to-day will impress you with the Truth of what we say.

Dress Goods

SMART DRESSERS will hardly be longer satisfied with "hand-me-down" suits and dresses when there is such an array of handsome materials to choose from. Besides DAWSON is well provided for in the matter of first-class dressmakers.

EXCLUSIVE PARIS PATTERNS in Silk and Wool, also Wool and Mohair, no two alike, each $17.50, $20 and $25.

PINE FRENCH BROADCLOTH, 58 inches wide, in Navy, Black, Dark Red, Receda and Castor, extra-fine quality. Don't ask how we are able to sell this quality for the small sum of $3 a yard.

HEAVY ALL-WOOL, and Wool and Mohair Scotch Cheviot Plaids, in nearly all color combinations, for suits and skirts, per yard $3.

To attempt a description of all our dress goods would require more space than is at our disposal. But we have BLACK STORM SERGES, CHEVIOTS, COVERTS, HEAVY SICILLIAN, ALPACAS, BEAUTIFUL CREPONS and HENRIETTAS, also all imaginable colors in Coverts, Cheviots, Serges and FANCY WEAVES.

BLACK SILKS and SATINS comprising the best weaves in Taffetas, Peau De Soies, Gros Grains, India Surah Serges, Rhadame and Duchesse.
