

NEWS OF THE DAY IN BRIEF

Death at Cornwall of Crispian War Veteran.

KILLED BY DERRICK

Disastrous Railway Wreck in Belgian City.

The powers disapproved of any outside loan for China.

Sir Richard Cartwright successfully underwent an operation.

Fred Partridge, a Turkish and Crimean war veteran, died at Cornwall.

The East Middlesex Conservative nominating convention will be held on Saturday, 28th inst.

The huge drydock Duke of Connaught is half way across the Atlantic on its way to Montreal.

William Lane, for a number of years Councillor and Reeve of Holland Landing, died of dropsy.

Barnardo's third party of young emigrants called for Canada last night, comprising 169 boys and 120 girls, a total of 313 this year.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the actress, is critically ill and only faint hopes are entertained for her recovery. She was stricken suddenly on Sunday.

The next semi-annual meeting of the board of management of the Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada will be held in Montreal, commencing on Oct. 16.

Prohibition of "overtime" work for girls and a stated number of hours' employment a week, is the recommendation contained in the annual report of the Inspectors of Factories.

The charge against the directors of the Kingston Township Fair of having illegally conducted horse races recently while receiving a grant from the Ontario Government fell through.

A force of American marines under command of Major Smedley D. Butler, which left Managua Sunday morning to open the railroad to Granada, occupied the town of Masaya yesterday.

Sixty-two persons were injured, seven of them probably fatally, in a train collision which occurred at the station at Marheban, Belgium. Several of the cars, which were filled with marketables, were telescoped.

While engaged with four men in placing a hatch on the Dominion Coal Company's steamer Cabot, at Halifax, David Bagwell, the ship's second engineer, lost his balance and fell through. Before the ambulance arrived he was dead.

The husband and father of Mrs. Oscar Hall, of 138 Bathurst street, London, died within a few hours of each other, the former as a result of injuries sustained in an accident yesterday afternoon, and the latter following a prolonged illness.

William Stewart, 25 years old, unmarried and living with his parents at Falls View, was almost instantly killed last night, when a travelling derrick toppled over at the plant of the Electrical Development Company, Niagara Falls, Ont.

Traced away south across the continent and captured just as he was about to board a steamer for Australia, H. E. Sheather, wanted in Toronto for appropriating over a thousand dollars that did not belong to him, is occupying a police cell in San Francisco.

The announcement that a determined effort is now being made by Lord Strathcona, High Commissioner for Canada in London, to place the securities of Ontario and the other provinces on the English Trustee List was made last night.

HIS SECOND TRIAL

Peculiar Circumstance May Free Stephen Kyoshk.

Sarnia despatch: The second trial of Stephen Kyoshk, the young Walpole Island Indian, charged with murder, was opened to-day before Justice Middleton.

At the last assizes Kyoshk was convicted of the murder of Adam John, an Indian, on New Year's night. At the time of the tragedy two men were killed, the second being Charles Nah-dee, whose body was not found until some time after the conviction of Kyoshk. Before the date fixed for the execution a new trial was asked for the accused on the ground that new evidence had been discovered favorable to the accused. Kyoshk was relieved, but it was suggested that instead of a new trial the prisoner be tried for the murder of the second man, when the new evidence could be heard. This was agreed to, hence the present trial.

Should Kyoshk be acquitted on the present charge his release from custody will probably follow, as both murders were committed at the same time by the same man, and the unique case will be presented of a man convicted and sentenced to death for murder being liberated because it could not be proven that he killed the second victim.

MACHINE INSURE PEACE.

Geneva, Sept. 23.—Flying machines in war was the subject of a prolonged debate at to-day's session of the Interparliamentary Union. The subject was introduced by the Belgian Minister of State, Auguste Beernaert, who proposed a resolution interdicting their use.

Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, president of the French Interparliamentary group strongly opposed the resolution, declaring that the world's peace would be better ensured by the use of flying machines. This view was finally approved by the congress.

ITALIAN TO HANG

Farduto Convicted of Murder at Montreal.

Montreal, Sept. 23.—Antonio Farduto was shortly after six o'clock this evening found guilty of the murder of Louis Hotté on July 29th last by the petit jury in the Court of King's Bench after five minutes' deliberation and sentenced by Mr. Justice Thelohme to hang, on Friday, 13th December, next.

The accused, when asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed, replied in the negative, and when Interpreter Vignio repeated the death sentence in Italian, Farduto relaxed his grasp on the front of the prisoner's dock and laughingly replied, "Well, if it's that, let it go," snatched up his hat and hurried with the guard down to the cells. A few minutes later he was driven through the pouring rain to the jail in a cab, where he was placed in the condemned row.

STEEL MEN KICK

British Projectile Tenders Much Below Theirs

But American "Patriots" Will Get Contracts.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—A British company has underbid to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars every foundry in the United States for heavy projectiles for use in the big guns of the United States navy. This fact became known when bids were opened for two million dollars' worth of shells of varying calibre.

No sooner had it been ascertained that the British bidders were far below every American competitor than the representatives of six of the large steel works in the United States had an indignation meeting at the new Willard Hotel to-day.

They declared emphatically that if the Navy Department awarded the contracts to the British company they would never again submit a single offer for American projectiles. This statement was promptly communicated to the Navy Department, and its meaning was plain enough. It was interpreted as signifying that the American foundries would no longer keep up their equipment for making projectiles, and that in case of war this Government would face a famine in cannon balls.

Later in the day it was made known that in spite of the great discrepancy in bids the awards will be distributed as far as possible among the American competitors.

It was explained that under the protective system it is impossible for American steel works to produce the high-grade projectile at anything like the low cost abroad, and that even with the high bids submitted they expected no profit. Like the shippers who bid for naval contracts, they expected merely, it was said, to clear expenses and keep their plants in trim, so that in time of war they could fill the Government orders.

It was this consideration that determined the Navy Department to give the pending award to American concerns. The general policy is that where the foreign article is superior to the American, the contract shall go abroad, but if the difference is entirely one of price it will stay in America.

SOAKED LINEMEN

Woman With Hose Stops Pole Planting.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 23.—An aged woman, an aged man, a rocking chair, a garden hose and a spade won a battle this morning with a gang of linemen employed by the Electric Light Company. The woman, Mrs. Margaret Magee, is 82 years old, and she had stood guard over a hole in front of her home, 926 South avenue, all night in her effort to prevent the company from placing the unsightly pole in front of her property.

At 8 o'clock this morning the men returned with the pole, and proceeded to place it in position, sliding the large end under her rocking chair. She got the hose and turned the water on the men, while one of the gang, more daring than the others, pulled a large knife and was about to cut the hose. Herman Hertie, a neighbor, who had been standing idly by watching the proceedings, stepped into the breach at this time, and raising a spade over his head, threatened to brain the lineman should he cut the hose.

A truce was then declared, and the company will apply for permission to place the poles at the meeting of the Common Council on Monday night. They had attempted to place the poles without first securing municipal consent, which they are compelled to do under their franchise.

LIVINGSTONE CENTENARY.

A call is being issued to all Protestant Churches in Canada to appoint committees of arrangements next winter for a celebration of the centennial of the birth of David Livingstone. This takes place on March 19, 1813. The great missionary work of Dr. Livingstone is to be a theme at the missionary meetings of the convention. The celebration will be world-wide. In Canada it will be under the auspices of the Canadian Council of the Laymen's Movement.

The call for the Livingstone celebration also calls for an anniversary meeting of the laymen's movement next month.

Sunday, Nov. 10, has been appointed as a day of prayer for missions throughout the Dominion.

ULSTER DRILLING

Anti-Home Rule Leader Has Bodyguard.

Text of Covenant the Orangemen Will Sign.

Belfast, Sept. 23.—A feature of the sturges and which Right Hon. Sir Edward Carson, the former Solicitor-General and now head of the Orange movement, is making in Ulster preliminary to the swearing of the anti-Home Rule covenant, is the semi-military nature of the gatherings. It is well known that the Orangemen have been drilling for a long time, and the results are conspicuous in the welcomes extended to Sir Edward.

On his arrival at Lisburn this evening a drilled bodyguard of 100 men was allotted to the former Solicitor-General. The men wore khaki uniforms, and were drawn up in the body of soldiers. Another group carried rifles, with which they gave a military salute as Sir Edward left his train. It was explained that the rifles were only dummies "at present," but that they had been found very useful in drilling the men in preparation for eventualities.

WORDING OF COVENANT.

Sir Edward Carson, ex-Solicitor-General for Ireland, will submit for the approval of the Ulster Unionist Council the wording of the covenant which Ulster Unionists throughout the province will sign on September 28. The covenant will be as follows:—"Being convinced that Home Rule will be disastrous to the material well-being of Ulster as well as to the whole of Ireland, and in view of our civil and religious freedom, destructive to our citizenship and perilous to the unity of the Empire; we, whose names are under written, men of Ulster, loyal subjects of his Gracious Majesty King George, humbly relying on God, in whom our trust is placed, of stress and trial confidently trusting hereby pledge ourselves in solemn covenant throughout this, our time of threatened calamity, to stand by one another in defending, for ourselves and for our children, our cherished position of equal citizenship in the United Kingdom, and in using all means which may be found necessary to defeat the present conspiracy to set up Home Rule in Ireland; and in the event of such Parliament being forced upon us we solemnly and mutually pledge ourselves to refuse to recognize its authority, in the sure confidence that God will defend the right."

TEDDY'S NEW PLANK

Roosevelt Advocates the "Recall of Presidents."

Denver, Sept. 23.—Gov. Roosevelt came out squarely to-night in a speech to 1,500 people, packing the Auditorium here in favor of the "recall of Presidents" for inefficiency or misconduct in office. It was a declaration made in reply to one of five questions propounded by William J. Bryan, who has been campaigning in this State during the election in behalf of Governor Wilson. The boldness and novelty of the proposition advanced by the Colonel were such as to make the great audience gasp, and then it testified its approval by thunders of applause. Here is what the Colonel said:

"As far as I am concerned, I should be glad to have the recall for the President. It is not in the Progressive platform, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me, whether it was my fault or theirs, I ceased to have power. Under such conditions I would prefer to leave the Presidency unless in fact the people round to my way of thinking, and this is merely an expression of my personal feelings. My own experience was that I could do nothing as President except when the people were heartily with me. The minute I ceased to have them with me,