

CHIGNECTO POST AND BORDERER.

SACKVILLE, N. B., NOV. 4, 1886.

BEWARE OF PEDDLERS.

Nearly every year some of our farmers are swindled by itinerant gentlemen of plausible address, who playing on the common human weakness to get something for nothing, contract to give from a hundred to a thousand per cent. more value than they are receiving. Every year, this paper has had occasion to expose the transactions of these gentry, notwithstanding the fact, that the bare offer of a stranger to give more value than he is receiving, ought to be sufficient evidence to any one that there is something wrong.

One year it is horse hay forks; another year agricultural implements; another year shoddy cloths; another year lightning rods, or patent medicines.

It seems to be no use to exhort farmers, and others not in trade, to have no truck with strangers. These men are here today and away to-morrow. When their goods turn out to be inferior or short, or their representations to be fraudulent, they have disappeared and are beyond the jurisdiction of any court. These men trust them have, therefore, no redress.

All this trouble is avoided if people would confine their trading to merchants in well established business. Our own merchants have their reputations to sustain, and their business to uphold. They cannot afford, even if inclined, to indulge in any wholesale crooked dealing, and in any individual case, the sufferer has his appeal to the regular courts of law, and where he can get the satisfactory results of the law, he is not likely to be swindled. Besides all this, it is the farmer's interest to uphold the business men of his own community; they help generally out of all proportion to their means, in all social, religious and charitable works; they pay their quota of the taxes; they give important and dignified to the place; they redound indirectly to the advantage of other property owners. On the other hand, a peddler has no interest in a place, beyond what he can carry out of it; he pays no taxes; he contributes in no way to its welfare or prosperity. Why then should farmers encourage these commercial tramps at the expense of men in whose prosperity they are interested? This is a miserable, short-sighted policy at best. If one has a moving machine to buy, go to the men who trade in them; cloth, shoes or what not, to the regular dealers. By keeping strictly to this policy, and shunning strangers, who make no proposals, to the door, farmers will have the satisfaction of knowing they are not swindled.

In short, the men who are ashamed or afraid of the publicity of the local newspaper, to not know the virtues of their wares, ought to be strenuously avoided.

HOME RULE IN NOVA SCOTIA.

The leaders of the secession party in Nova Scotia have frequently asserted that their policy is analogous to that of the Home Rulers in the Imperial Parliament, and in this way undoubtedly secured the support of many who sympathize with the Irish National party. It has been urged that the similarity of the political condition of Nova Scotia to that of the Emerald Isle would be a powerful factor in securing separation from Canada, on the ground that British statesmen would not care to have "another Ireland" on this side of the Atlantic. The visit of Justin McCarthy to Nova Scotia has effectively knocked the bottom out of any argument for secession based on the Home Rule question. His Grace Archbishop O'Brien, in introducing Mr. McCarthy to a Halifax audience is reported to have said:—"The justice of Ireland's demands have been so apparent that one wondered that any person could be found opposed to it in this Dominion of ours—where exists the happiest combination of true liberty and self-government known on earth."

Mr. McCarthy's remarks on the subject were even more pronounced and definite. In his opening address he is reported as saying:—"With such an audience, it was not a difficult task to speak for the cause of Ireland. Nor was it a difficult task to speak for it in Nova Scotia, the happiness and prosperity of which was a living testimony to the happy results of Home Rule, while the sovereignty of the several provinces secured the adhesiveness and solidity of the Dominion. (Applause.) All that Ireland asks for is that measure of self-government which is now regarded as the birthright of every one of the provinces of the Dominion and the states of the adjoining republic. And that demand was not unreasonable; it was not unnatural; it was not opposed to moral or social order. But it was a recognition of the principle which was found to knit together and bind in one common nationality people of different thought, creeds and races (applause). Ireland demanded the right to govern herself in her own local affairs, upon her own soil, without any interference from Westminster where, ever. That, in brief, was the essence of Ireland's demand. And any one in Canada denying that justice and right, must also deny the basis and essence of Canadian nationality and development."

Evidently Nova Scotian readers did not derive much comfort from Mr. McCarthy's lecture.

Considerable interest has been awakened in political circles in Nova Scotia, by Sir Adams Archibald's re-appearance in politics after fifteen years of official life of Governor of the North-West and Nova Scotia. He provided the other night at the great Conservative rally at Truro, addressed by the Hon. Messrs. White, Thompson, McLean and Foster.

The Conservative candidate for the House of Commons in Annapolis is J. B. Mills, a prominent lawyer, and for Digby, John Campbell, a son of the late Hon. John Campbell, a gentleman for many years prominent in Nova Scotia local politics.

The Barthold Statue of "Liberty enlightening the World" was unveiled at New York last Thursday.

—The Liberal-Conservative Convention at Moncton, consisting of some eighty thoroughly representative men from all parts of the county unanimously adopted the following resolution:—

"That this convention desires to express its full accord with the principles and policy of the Liberal-Conservative Government and its continued confidence in our parliamentary representative, Joseph Wood, Esq., whose able services during the past four years have been rendered with such eminent ability and marked success."

The Transcript says "the whole proceedings constituted a direct vote of want of confidence in Mr. Wood." In its next issue the Transcript discovered that the resolution was ambiguous, and was puzzled to know whether it is the continued confidence of the convention or the Government in Mr. Wood."

It does not seem to matter very much which way the Transcript takes it, as the resolution expressed the conventions' full accord with the principles and policy of the Liberal-Conservative Government."

—The Liberal Conservatives of Queen's County have chosen Mr. George F. Baird, of St. John, as their candidate for the Dominion election.

—Mrs. A. T. Stewart, widow of the famous millionaire merchant, died in New York last week.

THOMAS J. HORSER,
Merchant Tailor, Main St.

Dress is a fine art, in which nothing is so conspicuous as the absence of taste. A great many people who buy certain garments simply exhibit the ability to buy without the taste to select, not giving due attention to the choosing of material or the style of the garment becoming to the size.

It is by long experience in business that Mr. Thomas J. Hoser has achieved an unequalled reputation for making fine garments, and numbers among his customers some of the first citizens of Sackville.

Retaining that class of trade which invariably carries the highest goods from the looms of the most celebrated English, Scotch and Irish manufacturers. The strictest attention is paid to the most trifling variations of fashion, and the most perfect workmanship is a requirement most strictly complied with.

The necessary experience of Mr. Hoser, resulting from an education in the business, can but be the greatest aid to customers in determining becoming styles, and in the selection of materials, in which manner this taste and experience must also contribute to his continual success.

We assure those of our readers who patronize Mr. Hoser, that they will receive perfect satisfaction in every way. He has just opened a large assortment of cloths suitable for fall and winter, including some beautiful designs in Scotch suitings and overcoatings.

SACKVILLE BOOK STORE.

In an educational centre like Sackville a book store is a necessity, and the book store of Mr. Chas. Moore, situated in Music Hall Block, is well stocked with all the leading literary works of the age, as well as the leading and popular text books. Here may be found a good selection of fancy goods and elegant stationery, as well as the usual lines of note paper, letter paper, foolscap, pens, ink, pencils, etc., and also account books, memo books, pocket books, etc.

Mr. Moore has just received a large and beautiful stock of picture mounting, and has every facility for framing pictures at very reasonable figures.

There is no branch of trade requiring so much attention as the stationery and book business, and Mr. Moore has spared neither time nor money to place within easy reach of the people of Sackville all the latest and best of his business, and all who favor him with their patronage will receive his prompt attention.

SACKVILLE STOVE FOUNDRY.
Charles Fawcett, Proprietor.

Among the many stove foundries of the Lower Provinces none have acquired such a high reputation as the Sackville Stove Foundry. The character and quality of the work turned out by this foundry are fit themes for remark and deserve all the praise that an exacting public has so cordially awarded them.

Mr. Fawcett, the proprietor, by a close study of the latest improvements which are constantly appearing, embraced in his large variety of productions all the very best designs and styles that money, skill and enterprise can produce. Year after year, month after month, he announces to the public the addition of some elegant design or important range, until now his large and beautiful illustrated catalogue contains a review of all the leading stoves, ranges, etc., and a visit to his new warehouse and show-rooms reveal a most complete stock.

Among the special lines manufactured exclusively by this foundry may be mentioned the celebrated "Fire King" cooking stove with patent telescope oven lining, which is considered the greatest success ever achieved in the stove line, being a new departure from the general style of cooking stove, and combining all the essentials for constituting a first-class stove. All the elevated stoves manufactured by this foundry have the patent "Fire King" oven attached. The "Fire King" stove in five sizes; this stove is adapted for wood or coal and it has received the highest recommendations from the public. During the past season he has introduced a new style of improved Farmers boiler which improvement is patented in Canada, and several of the advantages are of great value to the farmer and all who are in need of a first-class boiler. The "Northern Light" in three sizes, an entirely new and handsome wood heater for halls. The "Home Circle," "Crown Jewel" and new "Grand Union" hall and parlor stoves are among the latest introductions this season.

These goods have gained a most excellent reputation for beauty in design, style and durability, while in point of price, as indeed in every other essential, they are able to compete not only with the competitors at home but with foreign manufacturers. Great progress and improvement has been made in the manufacture of these goods, both in design and general excellence of workmanship, and nowhere can these improvements be more plainly seen than in the production of the above foundry.

Since the establishment of this foundry Mr. Fawcett has through his enterprise and liberality built a large and increasing trade throughout the Maritime Provinces, the result of a combination of advantages accruing from thorough skill and experience and supplemented by the use of only the best material and a strict personal supervision over each detail, the exercise of economy in all its branches, coupled with other valuable facilities in all departments, which enables this establishment to place its productions upon the market without fear of competition.

Mr. Fawcett is not only extensively engaged in the foundry business but has one of the largest farms in the county, where he keeps thoroughbred cattle such as Durhams, Polled Angus, etc. His large stock barn, 12 feet long by 30 feet wide is built on the most improved and scientific principles, and accommodates over seventy head of cattle. We are glad to see so much devotion to the great agricultural welfare of this country, and wish Mr. Fawcett the success he richly merits both as a manufacturer and farmer.

THE BRUNSWICK,
Messrs. G. B. Estabrook & Sons, Proprietors.

In a review of this kind, which treats of the resources of Sackville, and which is destined to be read by those who reside elsewhere, it is not out of place for us to mention an establishment where when visitors come to this town, either on business or pleasure, they will be enabled to find all the comforts of a home, besides every civility, attention and convenience possible to a stranger at a first-class hotel.

The Brunswick, of which Messrs. G. B. Estabrook & Sons are proprietors, is without doubt the largest hotel in New Brunswick outside of St. John city, and is fitted with all the modern improvements. While every comfort is to be had for the travelling public, the commercial men have not been forgotten; as excellent sample rooms are provided for their use. All the rooms are spacious, airy, warm and well furnished, and the factory and show-rooms prominent evidence of cleanliness. While the dining room will be found perfect in all its appointments, and gives to the guests that feeling of satisfaction that he expects to get in a first-class hotel. In connection with the house are stables, where teams are always ready at short notice. A coach is also in attendance at all trains.

We cordially recommend this house to all our readers who visit Sackville, fully confident that they will find in it every element of comfort and convenience.

J. L. BLACK,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Dry Goods, Groceries Hardware, etc., etc.

Among the leading and reliable houses in the Lower Provinces, placed in the above lines of business must be reckoned the firm of J. L. Black.

Not until a stranger has visited the establishment and observed the magnitude of the trade carried on, can he form the slightest idea of its importance. A glance through the spacious and well arranged warehouses shows the various departments to be both full and comprehensive. Here may be found a full and complete assortment of every article coming under the head of British and American staple and fancy dry goods, carpets of all kinds, everything new and fashionable in made clothing, etc. etc. can be had, all the very best grades and sizes and makes of boots and shoes. The carriage-builder, painter, house-builder, blacksmith, fisherman and farmer can get everything in their line, and can select from the one of the largest stocks in New Brunswick, which has been purchased from first hands and presents to the retail trade all the advantages in styles, novelties and prices that may be obtained from similar establishments in the large cities of the Dominion.

This firm has also a first class tailoring department under the management of an experienced cutter. They have a large and varied assortment of cloths and tweeds to select from and guarantee perfect satisfaction in every particular.

It would take up many columns of this review to give a detailed account of this establishment alone without touching on the other important enterprises which are benefiting the whole community and giving employment to our people. Therefore we conclude this brief mention of the above establishment by assuring our many thousands of readers that the firm of J. L. Black is a good substantial house to do business with, carrying at all times a large variety of goods, being prompt to fulfill all representations in every detail, and giving to its customers that feeling of satisfaction so necessary for the successful conducting of any mercantile business.

COLONIAL FOUNDRY.

E. Cogswell & Co., Foundry and Stove Manufacturers.

Of all the great commercial pursuits which yield a leading influence in the trade of a community there is no branch which requires so much careful attention, choice of selection and good judgment in its conducting as that of the iron foundry business. It is a trade in which millions of dollars are invested, and gives employment to thousands of strong and skillful laborers.

An old and well known concern is that of E. Cogswell & Co. of Sackville. This foundry is a model one and contains every known facility for doing most excellent work, and this is the reputation it has always held while the reputation of the goods manufactured by them is world wide.

The celebrated and popular cook stoves and ranges the "Charter Oak" are made in sixteen different sizes in this foundry with all the modern improvements and attachments including perforated iron oven door etc. A visit to their extensive ware room and store house reveals the fact that there is a wide contrast between the clumsy, heavy, and unsightly stoves of the olden time and the handsome, graceful objects of the present day with their bright polished edges, nickel trimmings and artistic ornamentation. Here may be found a heavy stock of stoves ready for shipment to all parts of the country. "The Charter Oak" in three sizes and six styles; "Sunlight" in three sizes and six styles; "Casket," "Model Parlor," "Ben Franklin," "Open Franklin," "Oranger," "Radiant Globe Heater."

All the popular makes and styles of wood and coal stoves including the "Denmark Retort Burner," so favorably known, and stove furnishings. The foundry is under the experienced management of Mr. Dison and the facilities, both in the way of turning out first-class work and prompt fulfillment of orders are such as to stamp this enterprise as one of energy and thorough knowledge of all the details of the business.

The Brunswick, of which Messrs. G. B. Estabrook & Sons are proprietors, is without doubt the largest hotel in New Brunswick outside of St. John city, and is fitted with all the modern improvements. While every comfort is to be had for the travelling public, the commercial men have not been forgotten; as excellent sample rooms are provided for their use. All the rooms are spacious, airy, warm and well furnished, and the factory and show-rooms prominent evidence of cleanliness. In connection with the house are stables, where teams are always ready at short notice. A coach is also in attendance at all trains.

ABNER SMITH,
Manufacturer of Boots and Shoes.

In the prosecution of all business enterprises, certain well defined elements are involved, the observance of which ensures success, but after all the most important element, the wealth, that the confidence of the public be secured. In all towns and cities, there will be found firms whose goods have a very high reputation and are sought after from far and near.

The firm of Abner Smith is such a one as we describe above, their celebrated boots and shoes are to be found in almost every town on the Intercolonial Railway.

This establishment gives employment to over thirty hands, mostly skilled workmen, who are employed in the manufacture of boots and shoes of all kinds.

The tanning of all the upper leather is done in a building connected with the factory, and the same method of cold liquor process of fifty years ago is still adhered to. At no time since the starting of business has this firm been willing to sacrifice their reputation for the sake of a few dollars. They have valued upon a permanent reputation for manufacturing good honest boots and shoes that will stand the wear and tear, hence, their continued success.

Identified so long with the interests and business developments of this community, the efforts of this firm have always been directed to the promotion of industry and the advancement of trade. Their establishment is a model in every respect, their goods are always reliable and in favor with their customers, while the liberal method upon which their business is conducted tends to increase from time to time their influence and popularity.
