The New Railway Deal

WHAT SIR ROBERT BOND FORE-SHADOWED.

Late exchanges bear evidence of the fact that Sir Robert Bond knew what he was talking about when he said: "With the tempting investments now offering in Canada, with the probability of having to come into competition with Canada, New Zealand and Australia in the flotation of a loan in London," there is little chance of the Newfoundland Government obtaining money for their 3 1/2 per cent. bonds at a rate being much below par.

We notice that the Royal Securities Corporation has recently sold $600,000 City of Montreal 4 per cent. debentures in the London market, and that under the 14th inst. application was made to list Canadian Government twenty million dollar 3 1/2 per cent. bonds; five million dollar Grand Trunk Pacific 4 per cent. bonds and Manitoba debentures.

At the present time the Government are paying the Bank of Montreal 4 1/2 per cent. interest on the $120,000 borrowed last November to commence work on the Bonavista branch railway, and the chances are that the million dollars they have estimated as the expenditure on that line during the current year will have to be carried at the same rate of interest. The present noodles in charge of the Government do not know what they are about, and the country must suffer for their stupidity and inexperience.

ACCIDENTS

ACCIDENTS will happen in every path of life, and once the tissues are lacerated it is as easy matter for disease germs to make entry into the blood. Once they are permitted to do this for the air full of microbes all too ready to enter the body they commence their deadly work and develop into sore and very often blood poisoning. The deadly effect of the latter is apparent to everyone—every mother, wife or sister should therefore protect the lives of their families by keeping on hand a box of Dr. Bovell's Herb & Gum Salve—the greatest antiseptic healing and soothing salve the world has known. The busy use of the salve prevents sepsis and blood poisoning, for no microbes or disease germs live where Dr. Bovell's Herb and Gum Salve is used. As a protective it is a marvel, and a veritable tonic to soothe and then heal.

Premier Asquith's Policy

Budget First--Curbing the House of Lords
Next--Has Asquith Got any Guarantee From His Majesty?--a Piquant Situation.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, Feb. 21. The King this afternoon opened in State the third Parliament of his reign. In a momentous speech from the Throne, His Majesty outlined the plan of the ministerial campaign against the House of Lords as follows: Recent experience has disclosed serious difficulties due to recurring differences of strong opinion between the two branches of the Legislature. Proposals will be laid before you with all convenient speed to define the relations between the Houses of Parliament, so as to secure the undivided authority of the House of Commons over finance and its predominance in legislation. These measures, in the opinion of my advisers should provide that this House should be so constituted and empowered, as to exercise impartially in regard to proposed legislation, the functions of limitation the revision and subject to proper safeguards of delay. The speech was unusually brief, the financial estimates for the coming year were next set forth. These, His Majesty said, have been framed with the utmost desire for economy, but the requirements for the naval defence of the Empire made it necessary to propose a substantial increase in the cost of my navy. Recording the fact that the expenditures authorized by the last Parliament were being incurred and met by a recourse to temporary borrowing; the speech declared arrangements must be made at the earliest possible moment to deal with the financial situation thus created. This was taken as confirmation of Premier Asquith's avowed intention to regularize the present condition of financial affairs before attacking the House of Lords. The reading of the speech occupied only four minutes. At its close the Ma-jestics retired, and the session was suspended for two hours. The House of Commons met for business at 4 o'clock. Up to the last moment no one could predict with any confidence the course of events, and even as Premier Asquith led the composite force into action, it appeared uncertain whether the guns of his army were directed against the common enemy, or in the direction of the General himself. The expression—in the opinion of my advisers—is accepted as having been inserted in the speech by the King with the palpable object of disassociating His Majesty from the views expressed on behalf of the Government. This has added piquancy to the situation. The Chamber was crowded to its capacity.

Before the Easter recess and at this session the Government had only two objects in view one to pass the Budget and the other to put an end at the earliest possible moment by the wisest and most adequate method to the constitutional conditions giving to non-representative and irresponsible authority the power to thwart the purposes and nullify the handy work of the chosen ones of the people's will. John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Party, announced that the fact should be emphasized that the Nationalists stood as they always had, apart and independent, allied to no British party. They had supported the Government at the last election because the Prime Minister's pledges on Home Rule was supplemented by one still more important to Ireland, the abolition of the veto of the House of Lords, which was tantamount to the adoption of Home Rule. If the Prime Minister give us reasonable assurance that he will be able to carry to veto Bill into law this year, said Mr. Redmond, we will vote for the Budget, but we are not willing to pay that price for nothing.

Redmond Revolts Against Delay in Attacking the Lords--Radicals Also Dissatisfied -- Asquith Urged to Resign.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, Feb. 21. The players in the game of politics threw their cards upon the table in the House of Commons to-day. The Government is without the allies necessary to carry legislation and the present prospect is that the country will be stirred by another general election within a few months. Premier Asquith announced that the financial legislation would be put ahead of the proposals to curb the power of the House of Lords. John E. Redmond the Irish leader declared flatly that the Nationalists would not support that programme. The Laborites are holding a meeting to decide their course. They probably will follow in the footsteps of the Irish members. The Government may be able to adopt the Budget by the grace of the Conservatives who possibly will vote for it in order to avert financial chaos and keep the wheels of the Empire turning, but the enactment of the Budget, as Mr. Redmond pointed out, leaves the winning cards in the hands of the Lords who then will be free to reject the Bill for the reformation of their House and force another election. The meeting of Parliament to-day was a momentous one, for the Cabinet's policy was not revealed to the country until the moment Premier Asquith took the floor. Mr. Redmond and his Irish colleagues controlled the course of events. His announcement that the Irish members would not support the Prime Minister was the sensation of the day, and it appears to have settled the Administration's fate. It is reported that the Radicals have declared their intention of supporting Mr. Redmond against the Government's course and that great pressure is being brought to bear from the Radicals to induce Mr. Asquith to resign forthwith. Austin Chamberlain will propose an amendment to the King's Speech in favour of Tariff Reform and Imperial Preference, at the same time deploring the failure of the ministers to recognize in the Speech the nature and gravity of the State of trade and employment. The King's Speeches are usually prosaic, but one clause in his speech to-day is regarded as most significant. Prince Henry of Prussia rode in the royal procession and attended Parliament. He appeared in the uniform of a British Admiral, and the crowds gave him a reception that members of visiting royalty families usually receive.

Legislative Council.

Yesterday on motion of the Hon. R. K. Bishop the Branch Railway Bill came up for a second reading. He made a lengthy speech in its favour and reviewed the history of railway legislation in the country.

Hon. G. Knowling opposed the measure. He was of opinion that the Government were undertaking too great a burden and that they were basing their hopes on a too rosy expectation of the future.

Hons. Gibbs, Greene, Job and Robinson supported the motion, which was carried without a division.

The Pilotage Rates Bill was read a third time on motion of Hon. J. Harris.

The Council then adjourned till 4.15 p.m. to-day.

Sea Elephant.

This great southern seal differs in the typical sea-elephant of Juan Fernandez, which, like the California sea-elephant, has a well-developed trunk, in the form from the Falkland Island this organ is quite rudimentary, as is evidenced by recent photographs taken immediately after death, and by others exhibited by Mr. Rupert Valentin at a meeting of the Linnean Society in June, 1899. A fine specimen of this vanishing species has been mounted by Rowland Ward for a private museum, and is now on view at 167, Piccadilly, London, on presentation of visiting cards. It is the first seen in England, and so far as is known, there is none in any museum. The total length in a straight line from the muzzle to the end of the hind limbs is 21ft.; the nostrils scarcely extend beyond the line of the upper lip, while in the California sea-elephant, also mounted by Rowland Ward, and now in the British Museum (Natural History), they reached several inches below it.
