Our contemporary, the London Free Press, repeats the canard that Sir Wilfred Laurier, in a speech in Quebec in 1896, said: "Thank God, there are no Orangemen with us, the Liberals." Many months since the Canadian Premier denied that he made any such assertion. Why is it repeated by our contemporary now?

The resolution of the (Minister of Agriculture at Ottawa to place on the British market specimens of our maple sugar ought to be the means of opening up a new demand for that toothsome product. The British public is always looking for novelties, and pure maple sugar from the now muchtalked-of Dominion ought to take.

The Louisville Courier-Journal has been diagnosing the condition of the army of the United States now in the field, and it reaches the conclusion that what it has really been afflicted of railway built solely out of the rewith is red tapeworm. But all armies which are well managed have to submit to more or less of that. Someimes it is better to be slow and sure, ven with an army composed of trained soldiers, and how much more neessary is it to be cautious in the case of raw levies?

A Remarkable Coincidence.

It is a singular coincidence that the wo men who were the mainstays of the Government of Sir John Macdonald in Ontario and Quebec respectively, while that Conservative statesman was at the zenith of his power, should pass away from the scene in the prime of mature manhood, within a few weeks of each other. Sir Adolphe Chapleau, whose death in Montreal has just been chronicled, was in the Province of Quebec the chief prop of the Conservative party, and under the direction of the Chieftain his wonderful oratory was all-powerful in the average constituency of that Province. It is no secret that Sir John Macdonald re-D'Alton McCarthy as the strongest Conservative force in Ontario. Sir John, indeed, more than once dubbed Mr. McCarthy, while president of the Ontario Conservative Union, "the brains of the party." These two leaders of men were wide apart in many regards. It took the genius of managing others possessed by Sir John Macdonald to keep them in harness together. After the old leader died, unity seemed next to impossible. Nevertheless, their death at this time leaves a big gap.

Public Expenditures and a Cooked Bakance Sheet.

In the closing hours of the Parliamentary session, the ex-Finance Minister gave another exhibition of how much time he can waste in unnecessary talk. Again and again, during the last four months, Mr. Foster has reviewed the finances of the country, and been effectively replied to, but he was not satisfied with his efforts, which have cost the country tens of thousands of dollars worth of valuable time. He told Hon, Mr. Fielding in advance that he would speak for a few minutes before the supply bill was passed-a most unusual proceeding on the closing day. Then he got up and spoke over an hour, repeating previous speeches almost word for word, and leaving less than half an hour for the Finance Minister. to reply. This Mr. Fielding did most thoroughly.

A particularly strong point was the hollowness of the pretension of Mr. Foster that the late Government had reduced the expenditure in the year it left office. The fact is, as Sir Richard Cartwright had already put beyond cavil, and Mr. Fielding emphasized by anassailable proof, the apparent decrease was accounted for by the omission of $3,621,689, supplementary estimates, which were printed and circulated throughout the country by the Tupper Government as campaign aids. The usion of these would have brought the expenditures up to the highest ever made in the Dominion. Then in that year no provision was made for the drilling of the militia, the Government rallway was starved, and in many ways a fictitiously incomplete ditures was made up, intended to do duty in after years, as Mr. Foster craftily tried to make it do duty gations made. Whatever expenditures are now peing made, Mr. Fielding showed, are required by the altered conditions and progress of the country, and are defensible on their merits—a defense which can never be put up, for the cooked balance sheet of the Dominion presented to Parliament in the last year under the management of the late Government, and upon which quicksand Mr. Foster has so foolishly attempted to keep erect his party house.

The Council and the Normal School.

London city council, at its meeting last night, declined to implement the offer of a previous board of aldermen to supply a site for the new Normal School in this city. While The Advertiser believed that this would be the result of an appeal to the present council, themselves whether or not they shall it has nevertheless held that it was the duty of the Minister of Education to give the civic representatives the opportunity to select the site, on the terms offered, before he took final action in the matter. The city council declining to choose the site, the course site, and at the earliest possible moment he will no doubt do so and have the erection of the structure proceeded

The Senators Are the Culprits

The defeat of the arrangement to provide an all-Canadian route to the Yukon gold fields by the Dominion Senate has caused much distress to thousands of persons who adopted the Stikine route under the belief that the railway would be provided as contemplated by the Dominion Government, and at first indorsed by Sir Charles Tupper. A correspondent writing from Glenora says that as these men cannot pay the high rate for packing to the point of inland navigation, they are stuck, and can do nothing else but eat up their outfit. How different it would have been if the Senate majority had left alone the bargain to have the connecting link sources of the territory which was to be benefited. Instead of pursuing that patriotic course, the Senate majority listened to Mr. Livernash, of San paper and did not pretend to comply Francisco, and played into the hands those who were anxious to prevent the establishment of an all-Canadian route, and retain the advantages of flow from having all supplies enter the on hand which could be supplied the Canadian Yukon from ports in possession of the Dominion. The British Columbian Boards of Trade have been memorializing the Board of Trade in this city and kindred commercial bodies in Eastern Canada to request that the Dominion Government grant immediate aid to establish the railway on the Teslin route. Those British Columbians are nearer the scene than we are, and they thoroughly realize the loss which the interference of the Senthe country. But they have gone the longest way about in asking sympathetic action from commercial bodies ment has adjourned. Those they have to deal with are the irresponsible senators and those Conservative leaders who egged them on to slaughter the Teslin railway route merely because it was proposed by a Liberal adminis-

Rain Prevents an Expedition to the Butts.

Colonel Maunsell Here-A Fine Band-Notes From the White City.

The rain all day yesterday materially altered the plans of the militia at Camp Carling. Two of the battalions were to have gone to the ranges for practice with the Lee-Enfield, but the shooting was postponed. The rain leaked through many of the tents, and had a tendency to make everything sloppy. Col. Munsell, commander-in-chief of the R. R. C. I., to the great surprise of the staff, arrived on the field yesterday, and put the 26th through company inspection, comenting favorably upon the movements of the men. On Wednesday next he will commence the inspection of the battalions for competitive effi-

The bandmaster is one of the biggest mer in camp. He is 6 feet 7 inches tall, stands in the rear rank, and reads the music of the men in the front. Last evening they held a practice in the marquee, whence issued those melodistrains from the euphonium 'Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep.' The bystanders, some of whom were acquainted with Bandmaster Bohannon of the Sarnia band, and one of the best euphonium players in the Dominion, made their way to the tent to offer congratulations. They were somewhat taken by surprise when they discovered young William Brush, of the For-

Talk of Prosecuting Doctors-Only Two Cases Out of 13 Reported.

The adjourned meeting of the committee of the board of education appointed to investigate the scarlet fever spread at the Talbot street school met in session yesterday afternoon in the secretary's office. Reports were read from all the teachers of the Talbot street school, giving the number of contagious diseases in their respective rooms in the past three months. After oing over the reports the committee thought they could lay the cause of the spread to a family on Talbot One boy was down with the fever and his brother attended school. The committee will get after the parents, as well as the doctors. The health rule makes it incumbent on the parents to look to it that no member of the family attend school in case of contagious disease being in the house Dr. Hutchinson was present with his register, and stated that out of the thirteen cases at Talbot street school only two notifications were received

CUTICURA

A MOTHER'S SWORN STATEMENT

My little daughter May's head and face broke out in one solid mass of bleeding sores, and one of her ears was so affected, that the doctor thought that it would slough off. Her suffering was intense, getting no rest at all, unless under the influence of opiates. The physician tried every known remedy, but instead of getting better, they seemed to get worse all the time. Distracted with her condition, I was advised to try CUTICUEA REME-DIES. I administered CUTICURA RESOLVENT inwardly, I bathed her with CUTICURA SOAP, and used CUTICURA (ointment) freely. Before the first week I noticed that the little sufferer was beginning to get relief. In less than two months my little darling was entirely cured and well, she got as fat as a little pig, and no marks whatever are to be seen from the effects Mrs. JAS.
