LICENSE BYLAW

The London Plebiscite Association Condemns the City Council.

The following resolution was passed at a meeting of the local Plebiscite Association in condemnation of the recent action of the London city council in passing a by-law to increase the tavern licenses from 34 to 36.

"After full investigation and careful thought the following is presented as appropriate to the conditions discovered by the committee.

"1. The by-law to increase the city licenses by two was introduced without prior notice and read three times at the one session, despite persistent protests against such an evident attempt to steal a march upon the people.

"2. The plea of 'urgent haste' appears to be without any foundation.

"The conditions surrounding the two licenses in question had not altered since May 1, and no reason had been given for the increase of the by-law weeks previous to its introduction to the council.

"In view of the above, be it resolved: That this association for the advancement of the temperance reform would record its unqualified disapproval of this latest attempt on the part of the saloon element to pull down the barriers the people have erected between themselves and the law-defying liquor traffic, and would record their deep sorrow upon learning that some officials who should have been foremost in protecting the moral interests of the people were derelict in their duty.

WELL CAUGHT.
About 5 o'clock on Wednesday evening an energetic and prepossessing lady bicyclist attempted to turn sharply from Dundas street down Richmond, just opposite Mr. De la Hooke's corner. There was some sort of pedalling miscalculation, or the asphalt was slippery, or something, but she ran on to the sidewalk, where one of our biggest and handsomest policemen was standing. The fair bicyclist didn't hit the telephone post, and smash herself all to pieces. Not a bit of it. As if by happy instinct, she ran square into the arms of the stalwart policeman, who looked a little surprised, rather than displeased. The young lady was soon spinning her wheel down Richmond street.

DEATH OF MR. S. P. KNIGHT.
Yesterday morning, after an illness extending over a year, another of our aged citizens passed away in the person of Samuel P. Knight, father of Mrs. J. C. Woods, of 286 Dufferin avenue. Mr. Knight passed his 85th year last Christmas Day. Up to his last illness he enjoyed exceptionally good health, scarcely knowing what pain or sickness meant. He was born in Waterloo, in the State of New York, where he lived for 60 years, as a respected and hardworking merchant. He also took an active interest in municipal matters. In his religious beliefs he was a Presbyterian, in which church he was honored with the office of elder for nearly 40 years. His end came suddenly at the last, paralysis being the immediate cause of death. His remains, accompanied by his son-in-law, Mr. J. C. Woods, will be taken to his native town of Waterloo and be laid away in the family burial ground, where his wife and four children are already interred.

THE COMING PROVINCIAL CONVENTION AT HAMILTON, OCT. 11, 12, 13.
The Endeavourers of Hamilton are sparing no pains to make the meetings there a splendid success. They are devising liberal things, and we trust that by liberal things they shall stand. They are acting in the spirit of their beloved city, which well merits its title, the Ambitious City. With open-handed generosity they are inviting everybody in the shanty town who can get a word. They are not afraid of an army of two thousand coming in upon them. We expect a large assembly there. Let every county bring its own band, too. For the meetings, the drill hall, the largest available place has been procured. Judging from the musical provision for the last convention, which was of a high order, and had a great deal of the best work put into it, this year's convention will not be behind it in the hands of a master—Mr. Wm. F. Robinson, who has a body of singers in training, which will give a treat that will long be remembered with delight.

The programme, too, has some notable features. Rev. Elmore Harris, of Miss Porte, of London, is visiting Miss Hilary Turk, Petrolia. Miss Wright, of London, is visiting Mrs. John Murray, Petrolia. Miss Carrie Bennett, of this city, is visiting friends in Dundas. Miss Sarah Headon, of Dundas, is visiting in London South. Miss Nellie Laydon, of Dundas, is visiting her sister in London. DISCORDANT NOTES
Trouble in the Bullock's Corners Church.
Bullock's Corners Episcopal Church has a choir trouble. According to the Dundas Star, Rev. C. W. MacWilliams, who has been devoting all his time to Bullock's Corners, since recent trouble at Rockton. The Star says:
On Saturday evening last, as usual, the choir met to practice the hymns for the following Sunday, and had about reached that stage of perfection when they thought they might safely trust themselves to go through the song service on the Sabbath. When they were about through, Mr. MacWilliams entered, and the hymns not being suitable to him, he gave instructions to practice others of his own selection. This interference was resented by the organist, Miss Wishart, and the other members of the choir, and the weather being very warm together with the members having "that tired feeling" after their work, they decided to go to bed and sing their own hymns on Sunday.

On Sunday minister and choir were in their accustomed places, with no sign of the coming storm depicted on their faces.
Everything went along as usual until the minister gave out the first hymn he had selected, but imagine the surprise of the worshippers when the choir began to sing another one. There was a sudden rattling of leaves of the hymn book to find the right hymn, many supposing the preacher had made a mistake. This was passed over without any comment from the pulpit, and the service proceeded until the second hymn was given out, the minister selecting his own, and the choir, as before, singing the one they had practiced. It was then that the congregation became aware that there was something wrong, and many furtive glances were cast around the sacred edifice.

The minister could not contain himself longer, and with anger depicted on his countenance he left the pulpit and repaired to the vestry, where he told a young man to go and take up the collection at the door.

The congregation were dismissed without the sermon or the usual blessing, and immediately the minister was besieged in the vestry by the fair members of the choir, where, it is said, a stormy scene ensued.

What will be the outcome of the trouble it is hard to say, but the fact remains that there is still a wide breach between the minister and the members of his flock as well as the choir.

Mr. MacWilliams is said to feel deeply the display of insubordination on the part of the choir, and has been confined to his room since Sunday.
