business. Manifestly in some way this must be looked after, and in view of the attitude of the G. T. R. it cannot be said that the company should object to the order now proposed. The order will be made under the provisions of section 176 of the act which enables the applicant to take possession of and use the lands, of the G. T. R. subject to the approval of the board being first obtained. Under the section all opportunity will now be given the parties to agree on the question of compensation. Should no agreement be arrived at this question will be taken up by the board."

The city's line has entrance to the city only as far as Burwell street at the present time. The decision of the railway board puts the matter up to the Grand Trunk. The final order has not the content of t
