Booth, who had sworn to the information, had been killed in Manitoba in an accident. Charles Janson, a young farmer of the township of King, was charged with having an illicit still on his premises. The boat, which was manufactured in the village of Sharon, was produced in court. There was a large amount of evidence taken. Young Janson was acquitted, as it could not be proven that he was aware of the presence of the still, which was found in a haystack. Besides, his father lived on the farm, and he was more interested therein than the son. Mr. Robert Moore of Newmarket defended Janson. The "Vice-Chancellor," as he is familiarly called, contrary to the predictions of his city legal friends, cleared his client. Bench warrants were issued for James and John Oliver and James Sullivan, who failed to appear for trial when called.

Pinafore, Pirates and Patience. On Wednesday evening next the Standard opera company of New York will give the first representation of a new comic opera entitled Buntthorne Abroad, or The Lass that Loved a Pirate. The libretto is by Mr. J. W. Bengough, and presents an entirely original plot, in which the principal characters and best music of Pinafore, Patience, and the Pirates of Penzance are introduced. The work is in two acts, the scene being laid on the quarter deck of the pirate ship. Buntthorne, a young man, is depicted in love, sails for America on a lecture tour, on the pirate craft, mistaking it for an honest trader. He is seized by the pirates, who decide to hang him from the yard arm for having perverted their wives with aesthetic notions, but for good and sufficient reasons they forgive him. Later on the pirate ship is overtaken by H. M. S. Pinafore, and boarded by Capt. Backwater, Sir Joseph Pinafore, Dick Deadeye and others, when a good deal of fancy business ensues. The pirates escape by the aid of Buntthorne, and all ends happily, the aesthetic poet securing the hand and heart of Ethel, a ward of the pirate king, whom he has loved throughout the play. The Standard company is strong both in voices and dramatic ability, and a capital performance may be anticipated.

The Case of Knott v. Lindsay. In Knott against Lindsay, printed in the World yesterday, the case was not quite as correctly stated as it should have been. The facts are these: In September 1882 Mr. Knott made an offer to exchange houses 305 and 307 Jarvis street with the defendants for 5 1/2 acres on Dufferin street. His offer was in writing. An appointment was made to meet the defendants. At the meeting a memorandum of agreement was signed which was written by one of the defendants. A formal agreement was afterwards prepared by Mr. Walter Reid, solicitor for the defendants and that executed, but neither Mr. Knott's written offer, nor the memorandum of agreement nor the formal agreement was there any mention of building out at the Dufferin street property was incumbered seven months was allowed to remove the mortgage as the mortgagee residing in England and although alleged by defendants that Mr. Knott was to build and that it was omitted from the agreement, in their defence one of the defendants testified that Mr. Knott was asked if he would build himself to build he distinctly declined.

Stabbed in the Shoulder. Henry Dill, janitor at the Grand opera house, is greatly annoyed with boys and young men loitering around the theatre and approaching the theatre. At times the nuisance becomes unbearable. Shortly after 10 o'clock last night Dill went into the lane at the side of the theatre and found several parties gathered there. He ordered them away. They did not do so quick enough to suit the janitor and he drew out a small pocket knife and stabbed Hiram Albert, aged 15, of No. 12 August street, in the left shoulder. The wound was an inch deep and a quarter of an inch long. It bled profusely, and when Albert reached home he was unable to get to bed. He was taken to the hospital and the wound was dressed. He does not anticipate serious results. Detective Brown, who was on duty at police headquarters, went over to the theatre and arrested Dill.

An Alderman and Two Collectors Resign. At the meeting of the executive committee of the city council yesterday afternoon Mr. Chas. McCaffrey, collector of taxes for St. George's ward, and Mr. W. A. Lee, collector for St. Stephen's ward, resigned. Their resignations were accepted. It was also announced that D. Bell would resign his seat in the council on Monday night. The customary bylaw was then ordered to be drawn up recommending the appointment of the following collectors: St. George's ward, John A. Mills; St. Stephen's ward, St. Thomas; St. James; St. George's, John H. Pritchard; St. Andrew's, W. J. Turner; St. John's, John Sanderson; St. Henry's, St. Stephen's, St. Andrew's, St. Paul's, St. Andrew's.

A Baltimore Patent Nozzle. Mr. Prunty, of Baltimore, inventor of the Prunty spray and combination nozzle, gave an exhibition of his invention at the Court street fire hall yesterday afternoon. The merits of this nozzle, which was attached to a length of "Maltese Cross" hose at the time of the test, is that it throws out as a projection for the men at the nozzle a well of water. This well of spray is thrown from them. Thus they can work in front of an intense heat or volume of smoke for they are in a cooling protection. It is proved valuable in fire in ship holds. It does not in any way impair the sight of the firemen. The men at Court street were much pleased with the new nozzle.

Men at Hamilton. On Wednesday night at Hamilton R. V. D. H. Fletcher died in marriage Mr. W. Milne of New York and Miss Proctor (daughter of Mr. John Proctor) of Hamilton. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. W. J. McParson of Hamilton. The bridesmaids were Miss Milne of New York, Miss Leslie of Montreal, and Miss Josie Proctor, sister of the bride. The young couple left the matrimonial city at 9 p.m. for the states.

Birds of Passage. "How many donkeys have you in Toronto, my little man?" asked a passenger on a west bound train, protruding his head through the car window at the College street. "O, we've got some few donkeys here in Toronto, but most of them keep right on to Hamilton."

Stranger Bumped the Back of his Head on the Car Window, and sank back in his seat. I need 85 in the Assize Court. It is seldom that the penalty set at $5 is imposed in the way of fine in the courts of assize. Yet such a thing occurred yesterday. Judge O'Brien had a young man $5 for assault. Coupled with the assault, however, was a charge of larceny. The young man was charged with the larceny of a gold watch from the person, which was not proven.
