FRENCH DIALOGUE— - "Ma Bonne." - - Henri Michaud

SYNOPSIS

A little French parlour maid (bonne) is stage-struck and rehearses on every possible occasion. One day while doing so in the Drawing Room she accidentally breaks a vase, which she picks up and hides in her apron. Her mistress comes in and informs her that she will be absent a few days, which information the maid is delighted at as giving her an opportunity to get the vase mended. In the midst of an impromptu rehearsal of a little composition of the Bonne with the assistance of the cook, chambermaid, etc., Madame returns unexpectedly, having missed her train, and enquires for her daughter, the Bonne in mistake thinks her mistress is enquiring about the vase, and answers: She is broken—in accident—gone to be mended, etc. For some time there is great confusion, then all is made clear and the delinquents pardoned.
