were never more amply demonstrated than in the manner Her Majesty has made the brightening of the lives of her soldiers' wives and little ones her personal care Determined that so far as she could make it, Christmas should be a happy time for those soldiers families living near Windsor, Her Majesty gave a children's party at

Windsor Castle, to which the soldiers wives were heartily invited to bring their little ones, whose wants and