FOOLHARDY HABITANTS. TWO MEN AND A TRAM OF HORSES CAUGHT IN THE "SHOVE"-KARROW HECAPH.

The river opposite the city has to a large extent shaken off its wintry garb and the running waters are now glittering in the sun. Yesterday morning the condition of the ice was perilous in the extreme, the indications pointing to an immediate "break up." Notwithstanding this dangerous look-out a foolhardy habitant named Alfred Desmarteau resolved on driving his team and heavy sleigh over this rotten surface to St. Lambert. Accompanied by a friend he started, and had got half ways over when a loud cracking noise was heard; it was produced by a tremendous shove, which unfolded the surging stream. Fortunately the block of ice on which the foolish habitant was at the time, was sufficiently large to bear the living freight. Desmarteau and his companion lucked around in amazement and in fear of their lives. Instinct made one of them jump on to the unbroken ice and put lightning speed into his legs, which carried him towards St. Lambert, while it made the other flee back towards the city. The poor dumb brutes were left to their fate, and they drifted down the river as far as Adam's tobacco factory, where the block of ice on which they had remained was stopped on its journey. Two men named Potevin and A. Thomas offered to save the animals for the sum of $20. The offer was accepted, and the team was brought on terra firms at Longueuil. The owner, who in the meantime had also reached store, seemed somewhat thankful for his escape. The man who ran towards St. Lambert arrived safely. This thrilling incident was witnessed by a large number of people on either bank of the
