

J. Goodman, of the Minorities, whose advertisement appears on another page of the Guide, can be thoroughly relied upon to furnish intending emigrants with every useful requisite, and at prices that will suit the means of all. To those intending to remain in England, his Hosier &c., will be found according to quality much under the usual prices.

In conclusion, we would wish to apologise to our readers for the brief description of the great country which this Guide introduces to them. Our space is limited, but had we volumes of space at our hands we should never tire of revealing the resources of this most fertile country; and to those who have followed our advice we can only say be temperate, industrious, energetic, and sagacious, and we wish you God-speed.
