Had Some Trouble in Getting Estimates Thru House of Commons - Parliament's Attention Called to Article in English Publication Slandering the Northwest.

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.-(Special.)-Hon. Wm. Pugsley, minister of public works had a troublesome time in getting estimates passed thru the house of commons to-day. The first hitch arose in reference to an appropriation of $1600 for a clock in Lunenburg. The minister replied to the opposition criticism by sneering at the methods of the Whitney Government in the Florence Mining Co. legislation. In the evening Mr. Pugsley was called to account for delay in erecting a building in Parrsboro, N.S., which has been on the tapis

A. Claude Macdonell (Toronto) introduced a bill to simplify the law with respect to the issuance of commutation tickets. Mr. Macdonell explained that the jurisdiction of the railway commission in this matter had been in doubt. The object of the bill is to put the issue of commutation tickets upon the same basis as other tickets, and to challenge the rights of the railway companies to discriminate.

W. F. Maclean (S. York) asked the minister of railways if the government has again refused to inciple of the bill in regard to suburbance and the jurisdiction of the railway commission, as outlined in aparty organ recently.

Evidence of Doctor as to the Nature of Wounds-Prisoner Threatened to Leave the Old Man.

HAMILTON, Jan. 12.-(Special.)-The passages between counsel in the Finton murder trial have been one of the most interesting features of the affair so far. To-day George Tait Blackstock, K.C., and George S. Lynch Staunton, K.C., had several more bitter exchanges. Mr. Staunton objected a number of times to Mr. Blackstock's mode of examining the witnesses, and Mr. Blackstock made similar objections, until it was necessary for Justice Teetzel to act as peacemaker between them.

George Millen, ex-reeve of Saltfleet, and an intimate friend of the murdered man, said he told Tom that his father had complained to him of the way the son was acting toward him, and that he had threatened to sell the farm, thereby putting Tom and his wife out of the place. He said he went out with Tom to the barn, when the latter returned from Hamilton, and that Tom refused to book at the body. He added that he did not have to look for the cut, and Mr. Staunton replied that he might have made it his business to do so, as he was the prisoner's brother. He explained that the blood marks on the barn door were placed thed by his glove, when he took hold of it after handling the body.

The skull being produced, the doctor indicated in detail how it was cracked.
He did not think that, had the deceased fallen by accident where he was found, the arms would have been folded as they were. In answer to Mr. Blackstock, he said he thought death was caused by a blow on the head. He later found a pair of overalls in Tom Finton's room, and they were spattered with blood. Mr. Blackstock asked the doctor whether or not at the time he thought it was human blood, but as Mr. Staunton objected to the answer, in view of fact that the crown had been unable by tests to prove that it was human blood, Justice Teetzel would not allow the answer to be given to the jury, but took it privately from the witness. He was allowed to tell the jury, however, that he had formed an opinion.

OTTAWA, Jan. 12 .- (Special.) -Things have changed since the Farmers' days, at least in the department of finance. The other day a charter was issued to the Weyburn Security Bank of Saskatchewan. The promoter presented a bank certificate of deposit, showing that $250,000 had been paid on account of capital subscribed. But before the department would issue the charter or warrant to do business, the promoter was com-pelled to make affidavit that the new concern had the quarter of a million in cash, that the sub-scription had been paid in cash, that no shareholders' notes had been discounted, that no promises of financial favors of any kind from the new bank, or of any office in it, had been made to any shareholder.
