

TWO
Hundreds Gather To Hear
Story of Labrador Work

Generous Subscriptions Follow Appeal of Dr. Grenfell,
Made in Masonic Temple—Campaign Launched Here
To Be Carried Into States and England.

Generous subscriptions followed the appeal of Dr. Grenfell, who, in the work of the Labrador medical and educational missions at a mass meeting that overheard the speaker's capacity of the Masonic Temple Tuesday evening. So interesting and fascinating proved the romantic story of Labrador as told by Dr. Grenfell and his assistant, Dr. H. L. Paddon, that hundreds of people, unable to obtain seats, stood for two hours or more to listen patiently.

Dr. Grenfell was introduced by George M. Reid, who presided, and following Dr. Grenfell's address and an illustrated lecture by Dr. Paddon, Field Secretary Cyrus P. Keen explained the details of the mission and management of the endowment fund, to raise which a campaign launched here on Monday will be carried throughout Canada and the United States, and even into England. Subscribers to the fund may make their payments at any time previous to May, 1921, and H. F. Skey, manager of the B. M. of A. of the Bank of Montreal, is the local treasurer.

Dr. Grenfell, in beginning his lecture, emphasized the value of the work of men reared in cold climates and told of the hardy seamen whom Labrador sent to serve in the Great War. The Labradorians, whether whites or natives, are hardy races, with the exception of the Eskimoes, who are not increasing, and who lost 40 per cent of their entire numbers in the influenza epidemic of 1918. The Indians are of two tribes, the Montagnais and the Nasco.

Right Attitude.
Several years ago Dr. Grenfell proposed to transport 200 Labrador families to British Columbia to engage in the fishing industry in competition with the Japanese, but the Newfoundland Government, unwilling to lose any of its subjects, interested in the project, and Dr. Grenfell had come to be the right attitude. The Government took the right attitude.

Lack of educational facilities is a great handicap to the progress of the country, but the mission schools have graduated some famous men and women.

NOTED BRITISH
CRIMINOLOGIST
ARRIVES IN CITY

Will Address Women's Canadian Club This Afternoon—Opened Hospital.

Dr. Helen Boyle, the eminent English specialist, who has come to Canada to study criminology in connection with the juvenile courts, and will address the Women's Canadian Club at the Normal School this afternoon, arrived in the city last night with her secretary, Miss Hingston, and is the guest of Mrs. Frank Leonard.

Dr. Boyle, when young, accepted a post in an asylum.

"I went reluctantly," she says, "for the sake of the cash, but I had heard that there was a lot of interesting work to be done. I found it to be the most interesting place I had ever been in. And I have found that people do not go to asylums as freely as to hospitals. There is nothing occult about them, though they are often very sad."

"There is much humor in an asylum," she says. "Don't think it is a dull place. I say that there, as everywhere, the saving grace of humor is an enormous boon. One woman once told me that she could talk to her husband, and always did it down a hot-air grating."

Dr. Boyle's last experience in the east end of London, where she found the terrible conditions in which they lived, led her to make up her mind that she would some day open a hospital for these people who were beginning to break down. This hospital was begun in 1905.

"Such a psychiatric hospital should be established in or near a fairly large town," says Dr. Boyle, "presuming the establishment of such a Canada. Not in the country where the patients are apt to run away."

"The institution should be near a hospital."

"The beds should be in small wards, and not too many patients together."

"There should be no compulsory detention and no certificate patient."

"There should be a nurse of varied temperament to go with every kind of patient. Even those most violent and disagreeable nurses have their uses."

"There should be re-education methods and a club for after treatment."

"You want the social service which you have so much better developed here than it is in the old country," Dr. Boyle said.

"The patients should go to their own church and have their geyman visit them."

GAMBLING IN BASEBALL
SCORNE

The whole world can clearly see the folly in such a crime. Right is always right. The fans pay good money to see clean baseball, and it is only given when fair play is in action. Value is at stake as in the game of the world's history. John A. Nash, My Jeweler, stands out strong for value, and it pays to have perfect diamonds from My Jeweler. His store is 206 Dundas street, "where you will eventually buy."

ADVISES AGAINST
HASTY CONTRACTS

Canadian flax growers will be well advised not to make hasty contracts with American buyers, according to S. Frank Glass, M.P., who has received telegrams from English and American representatives of the Canadian flax growing industries that arrangements have been made with British factories to take all the Canadian flax they can obtain.

Mr. Glass has been confined to his home about a week with influenza. Under the urgent advice of attending physicians, he will leave in a few weeks for a two-months trip to Bermuda.

Board of Education Decides
On Structure Having 26
Class Rooms.

PARENTS COMPLAIN
Say Older Pupils At Victoria
School Not Attending Enough.

General recommendations of No. 3 committee in regard to a new collegiate school, adopted by the board of education Tuesday. Architect L. E. Carrothery will commence plans immediately. The structure will be three stories in height and will have 26 class-rooms, as well as study-rooms, assembly, gymnasium and other necessary rooms.

Members of the board were in favor of referring the matter back to the committee for further consideration, believing that this was too big a building. The committee's recommendation carried by a vote of seven to five. Trustee Thomas Coleridge supported the large school, stating that the board should make provision for increased attendance for some years, so that they would not be forced to build more schools.

Trustee Tillman objected to too big a school. It made it impossible for the teachers to become personally acquainted with the pupils and made purely mechanical students, he said. Chairman Hayman pointed out that, if necessary, another school would be built in South London, and Trustee Rowe also stated that the policy of branch colleges had not been abandoned. He believed 26 rooms to be preferable to 30, because the increased size would advance the cost of the building $50,000, which he believed could be applied to better advantage on a branch college.

Principal Mooney, on being asked for his opinion, replied to the arguments of absence with pay. It will be the personal touch to pupils and to maintain discipline as well as smaller schools. He did not believe there as serious drawbacks as the fact that the old collegiate site was not big enough for a large building, as adequate playgrounds could not be provided. He stated that he had not advocated either the central or the branch plan very ardently, as if he advised several schools he might be accused of laziness or incompetency, and if he advised one large school he might be accused of greediness and the fear of competition. He pointed out that one of the reasons pupils from smaller colleges sometimes raised higher hopes than those from large cities was due to the fact that the universities at the cities attracted many students from the upper forms of the collegiate, whereas at smaller centres these students completed their courses at the high schools.

Trustee Langford was in favor of the plan for the building, but doubted whether the site was the most suitable to be found. He thought that the school might be moved north of the C. P. R. tracks. He suggested that the whole board go to Toronto to interview the department of education and all the school inspectors.

Crowded Conditions.
Crowded conditions at Victoria Public School brought a complaint from about 50 parents of pupils there. A deputa-tion appeared before the board urging that fourth grade pupils be given preference in school attendance rather than the younger children in the lower grades. They stated that the younger pupils were receiving a full day's schooling, while the older ones who needed it more at school only received two and a half hours. The matter was referred to No. 1 committee.

Several requests for increased salaries were received from various members of the board. Three teachers at the collegiate pointed out inequalities in their salaries, which they asked to have rectified. Teachers of the evening classes at the collegiate asked to have their salaries advanced to $5 an evening. No. 2 committee was given power to reconsider the salaries for janitors' assistants.

Bad Precedent.
Trustee Rowe asked if tenders had been called for the heating system at Knollwood school, and if not, how the system was obtained. Architect Carrothery stated that he had been called only for boilers. Trustee Rowe then asked if the heating system had been erected by skilled labor. It was customary to have work of this nature done by unskilled labor under the direction of the superintendent of works, he said. Trustee Smith said the work had been done by day labor plus fifteen per cent. It was done by carpenters because the fence was needed immediately and the superintendent was busy with other work. Trustee Rowe said it was a bad precedent. He then stated that the assistant caretaker of the Collegiate Institute had resigned and wished to know who had appointed his successor.

and on what authority. Trustee Smith said the appointment had been made temporarily by the superintendent of the company on the eastern lines of the C. T. R. and the officials of the company in November, according to the local office of the men's organization, which is a branch of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees. An attempt is to be made to have the same working conditions existing on the Canadian National lines applied to the employees of the company and the same scale of wages excepting that for clerks and depot foremen.

The Canadian National scale is higher than the one paid by the Canadian Express Company on the eastern lines at the present time. For drivers, scalemen, and porters the minimum on the Canadian National is $112, which is $10 higher than that paid by the Canadian Express. After one year's service the scale is $125, while the maximum at the present time here is $110. Messengers will also receive a substantial increase under the new scale. The minimum salary for messengers on the Canadian National is $145 a month. On the Canadian Express the maximum is approximately $145, while the scale goes as low as $95. The clerks and depot foremen will ask a general increase of 11 cents an hour.
