Gossip of the Runners.

There was a peculiar incident attached to the 2-year-old lace at Oakland on St. Patrick's Day, which was won by Pomare. While at the barrier, Collice broke thru and Starter Hoftman called to the boys: "Come on." They were not ready. Only about four horses got away. Pomare won from Ocean Queen, and Yolo was third. A crowd gathered around the judge's stand and loudly expressed disapproval. The judges decided to call off ail bets. Gossip of the Runners.

It is reported as a fact that when Charles Reed purchased the farm in Tennessee, afterwards made famous under the name of the Fairview Stud, he flipted a coin with the owner, Colonel Acklan, as to whether the purchase price would be $50,000 or $60,000. Mr. Reed won and paid $50,000. The next day unpaid taxes amounting to $800 was also the reason for a coin being flipped, and this time Mr. Reed lost. He recently sold the farm for $75,000. He had expended many thousands upon it in improvements.

When "The Sunken Bell" was produced last year John joined in a discussion of the play's merits and de-merits and wrote for the actor a criticism which was a masterful and poetic conception of the play. This so im to the boy that he write him a one-act drama. The offer was accepted and a regular manager's contract was signed by both.

The drama, entitled "The Weakness of Man," was written last summer while the Wyeths were in the Adirondacks. It is symbolical as well as allegorical. The single scene is laid in a forest to which the man flees from the power of life's obligations. Here conscience overtakes him and there en sues a battle, in which conscience triumphs. The two characters seen by the audience are the man and con-science, the latter represented by a princess known by allusion and suggestion only. The play's merit, accord ng to Mr. Sothern, lies in the deep and remarkable arguments advanced by onscience. The young author not only created the theme (probably suggested by "The Surken Bell"), but wove it into verse and provided some dramatic action. He arranged for the scenic investiture, even to the trees and their foliage.

Tributes to New York Firemen. NEW YORK, March 18.—The fire-men's memorial fund has reached $22, 569.13. Altho Master John has developed a language attributed to him and at once six silver cups in athletic competitions at a private school, is devoted to out-of-door gymnasium sports and can fight well with his fists when occasion demands. In appearance he is slight but sturdy, keen, alert, and he is extremely modest.

Until he was five years old Master Wyeth spoke only French. Then his parents and a governess began tearhing him English. An older brother, now in Princeton, and a sister, who has been president of her class in Barnard College and is a member of the student governing board, were brought up in the same way and speak German. French and English. The lad acquired early an accurate knowledge of my thology and read Chaucer, Spenser and Milton until he knew much of their works by heart. For mental recreation he turned to drawing.

Mr. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe are friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wyeth. Miss Marlowe became greatly attached to the boy, frequently took him out to dine and on matinee days she permitted him to ramble about the stage, where he absorbed stagecraft. This greatly pleased Mr. Sothern, who soon began to regard the boy as a budding genius.

STEAMER IN COLLISION. Crown of Castile Ran Into Kron

Prinz Wilhelm. NEW YORK, March 18 .- While the great trans-Atlantic liner Kron Prinz Wilhelm of the North German Lloyd

Line lay at anchor in a thick fog off Staten Island to-day, the steamer Crown of Castile ran into her and tore a hole more than ten feet in diameter in the overhanging stern. The bow of the Crown of Castile penetrated the steward's quarters on the Kron Prinz Wilhelm for 15 feet, but nobody was injured. Watertight but nobody was injured. Watertight doors on the hull of the Kron Prinz were promptly closed. She had suf-
