FAMOUS GEMS OF PROSE

GOLDEN SABBATH MORNING IN JERUSALEM By Adolph A. Berle

From the opening paragraphs of a sermon which was preached to the Ancient and Honorable artillery company, June 1, 1886. It is a golden Sabbath morning in Jerusalem. Already in the early dawn there may be seen upon the roads that wind in tortuous fascination amid hills and valleys the coming caravans of festival worshippers.

There is another pause, and the strong form quivers as with some deep, inexpressible pain. The light in the eyes, then filled with tears, becomes dim, and when they are clear again they have a dreamy look that tells of companions yet in the far-stretching exile.

THE ALBERT GATE MYSTERY

CHAPTER II. Mehmet Ali's Note. Then he turned to Lord Fitzhume. "Just one question, before I send you off to bed. No, you must not protest. I want you to meet me here this evening at seven, with your best suit and a pocket watch.

"The barrier smiled. 'You're few lines of introduction to Miss Talbot. The guests of the evening, under the favorable conditions of the barrier's presence, she yielded with good grace, and promptly set down to write a brief note explanatory of the barrier's identity and position in the inquiry.

She paused and strove hard to force back her tears. "Your brother has simply vanished, Miss Talbot. If the criminals did not scruple to leave four dead men behind, they would not draw the list at a fifth.

"You are conversing in riddles. Will you explain?" "You know that my brother is an assistant Under-Secretary in the Foreign Office."

"Yes," said the girl. "I can see that it was possible he was alive until some time after the tragedy at Albert Gate. But—but—what connection has he with the theft of diamonds worth millions? These people used him as their tool in some manner. Why should they spare him when success had crowned their efforts?"

He invariably insisted upon this examination, although the police were at first disinclined to meet his wishes in the matter, he being so to speak, their direct superior for the time. Beneath the entrance-hall were rooms occupied by several Turkish and other servants, Mehmet Ali himself, in the presence of his secretaries, worked and, two of the Turkish gentlemen would remain there all day until the men left in the evening. The Envoys and both secretaries used to meet Jack when he visited the place, and for the last three weeks he had nothing to do but see the diamonds, count them, drink an excellent cup of coffee, and make a wondrous cigarette, made of some special Turkish tobacco, cultivated and prepared only for the Imperial household.
