BELIEVE LOST BARK IS ABEONA

That is Opinion Expressed by St. John Shipping Men Relative to Report From Cape Sable

That the barkentine reported to have foundered off Cape Sable is the Abeona is the general opinion of shipping men and some vessel captains here. From what can be learned in well informed sources here the barkentine which Captain Goodwin of the fishing schooner Good Luck reports at Boston as having foundered off Cape Sable on Sept. 29, can be but one of two, either the Abeona or the Sirdar. The former was bound from New York for Halifax with coal and the latter was coming light from New York to Port Greenville. The name of the barkentine Hector, owned and commanded by Captain Reicher of this city, has also been suggested but it is learned that she must have been miles out of her course to have been here the disaster is reported.

The captain of a schooner that recently arrived from Vineyard Haven states his positive belief that it is the Abeona. He says that she left the Vineyard on Sept. 28 with his vessel and others and at that time was reported to have been leaking badly. The Abeona was built at Malbone Bay, N. S. in 1885, by C. N. Anderson, who is given in the register as her owner. She was 400 tons. Her sailing port is Bridgetown, B. W. I., and it will be remembered that Capt. Goodwin heard the word "Bridgetown" in the indistinct hall that came to him from the vessel. (See inside page of Times.)

OVERHEAD BRIDGE IS HIS VIEW

Railway Official Discusses Mill Street Congestion—C. P. R. to Have Warehouse Ready by December 1—Some Plans

The work on the new C. P. R. warehouse at Mill street is getting a quick start and it is expected that it will be completed by the expiration of the contract period on December 1. It will be a valuable addition to the local freight facilities. The shed now in use by the C. P. R. on the northern side of the I. C. R. elevator has for years been much too small for the traffic and the C. P. R. was greatly hampered also by the lack of sidings.

Both these difficulties will be overcome by the new facilities, and in addition the new office building to be located at the Mill street end of the warehouse will accommodate their clerks who are now scattered between the C. P. R. freight shed and the I. C. R. freight office.

The freight shed will run east and west parallel with Main street and the rest of the land acquired by the railway at that corner will be filled with sidings. The tracks are depressed several feet below the level of street and the floor of the warehouse and the platforms between the sidings will be on the same level with both the street and the floors of the cars, making the handling of the freight a very easy matter.

The shed will be set back thirty feet from the street and it is this thirty feet that has been in the public mind as desirable for a widening of Mill street. As the approaches to the warehouse and the sidings will be carried out to the street it would need only the filling in of the spaces at the end of the tracks to make this a solid platform and although nothing definite has been decided, so far as is known there is said to be good reason to hope that the railway will take this course.

The C. P. R. recently acquired the buildings on the corner of Mill and Main streets, as it will as soon as the leases expire, there will be the opportunity to carry this extension of the street right along to Main street, but that even this extension would not go far to solve the traffic problem of Mill street was the opinion expressed by a prominent railway officer in a conversation with the Times. He said that the widening of the street would not in any way lessen the congestion which is caused by the railway crossing the street at the Union Station. This, he said, was the biggest problem to be solved and it would be solved until an overhead bridge was built to carry the street traffic over the railway crossings.

The project has been suggested for years and it is declared is entirely practicable from an engineering standpoint. The only thing that stood in the way was the expense and this would not become any less as the property in the vicinity which would have to be expropriated grew more valuable.

HAS NOTHING TO SAY ABOUT THE CASE NOW

Judge Ritchie Informs Charles Thompson That Stabbing Charge Against Jas. McElmon is in Court's Hands

The new patrol wagon worked overtime last night, and as a result six prisoners faced Judge Ritchie in the police court this morning. Five of them were charged with drunkenness, while the other had a serious charge against him, that of stabbing a man in Pond street with a knife.

William McKinnon, Frederick Montebell, William Petley and Charles Gilbert were fined $4 or ten days in jail on the drunkenness charge and Ernest Starr $8 or thirty days in jail on a like charge. Gilbert was also charged with resisting the police and carrying a revolver. He was fined $10 or two months in jail on these two charges.

James McElmon was charged with being drunk in Pond street and also charged by Charles Thompson with stabbing him and by Mrs. Mary M. Campbell with breaking a door in her home and attempting to stab her son. Policeman Sullivan told of making the arrest and Mrs. Campbell gave evidence of his having broken into her home and making a lunge at her son with an open knife. Thompson did not appear in court and he who said that he did not wish to press the charge. The court told her that her husband would have to appear and that he had nothing whatever to say in the matter of pressing the charge. The case was adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

George F. Menzies was charged by Charles Owens with assault. Owens said that he was a clerk in White's restaurant in King street and that Menzies was the manager. On Saturday night last, he said, after some words Menzies assaulted him and chased him out of the place. The defendant denied this and placed the blame on the complainant. The case was dismissed.

Robert Phillips was fined $2 for allowing a cow to run at large in Adelaide street and George Prattle was fined a like amount for driving a team on the sidewalk in Strait shore.

Louis Dritz reported for doing a junk business in the city without a license, imprisoned to see about the matter.
