READING GLASSES!

A good many people think that in selecting glasses for reading it is quite sufficient to merely try on various pairs of glasses, until a pair which they think suits is found.

WE THINK DIFFERENTLY. The same careful exacting test is necessary to determine whether the two eyes are alike or whether astigmatism or other defect be present. If you want the most careful and satisfactory optical work consult

ETHICS OF ADVERTISING BY POSTER

Aesthetic Paris in Revolt Against Ugly Outdoor Hoardings

THE COMMERCIAL ASPECT

Question Whether it Pays Advertisers to Offend Good Taste—An Amusing Incident

(Times' Special Correspondence)

Paris, Aug. 4.—The Commercial Institute of Paris has a Professor of the Science of Advertising who not long ago contributed an article to the "Siecle" on the question of defiling the landscape by aggressive posters. He began by saying that when artistic advertising first invaded France it met with an enthusiastic reception, and the gay note introduced into the dull and smoky streets of the suburbs was a joy to the inhabitants. Gradually, it cut away down the railway lines and interposed its commercial aspect between the eye and the beauties of meadow, forest and stream. At first it was only in the immediate neighborhood of cities and towns that the hoardings and posters were seen, but they quickly ran down the big traffic routes, and in the end they were everywhere in the midst of the quietest and most rural scenery of France. This state of affairs led to a very general outcry and to a discussion of means for putting an end to the nuisance, which has at last resulted in the proposing of the law recently passed by the Chamber inflicting heavy taxes, amounting to fines, upon these "hoardings."

Professor Gerin, even if against the grain, is obliged to admit that this attack upon his special domain is justified, and he proceeds to consider the situation from the advertiser's point of view. To anybody who has followed the evolution of advertising—which is a most interesting study—it is clear that the advertiser has been unwittingly becoming the victim of his own audacity and enterprise. Everybody wanted to surpass his rival, and the strong feeling of rivalry, but not without having to pay dearly in the process. To the question of enormous advertising space, the obvious, superficial answer is that the permanence and development of the practice is the best proof of its efficacy. Professor Gerin, however, long ago laid down an axiom, upon which he bases his teaching, that "an advertisement acts upon the public in proportion to the state of mind in which it finds the reader," and this doctrine of "receptivity" has the corollary that "every article shares in the estimation of the buyer the favorable or unfavorable circumstances accompanying its advertisement." Good impressions strengthen the suggestive effect, and bad ones destroy it. Consequently, a tourist whose eye glances over a lovely valley or river, and finds it cannot get round or through a hoarding that interposes, will probably remember the subject of the advertisement, but his recollection is associated with intense irritation, and every time he remembers the article he will also unconsciously feel an after-taste of his anger at the advertisement. Consequently, M. Gerin believes that the huge sums spent in this sort of country advertising would be better employed in more closely chosen sites, or newspapers and magazines.

Almost Civil War

An amusing instance of the complications arising from up-to-date advertisements may illustrate several phases of the problem. A newspaper, the "Crie de Paris," did not long ago an abominably disgusting "reclame" which a hotel-keeper, who was prevailed upon to place on the face of the bill on which rests the pretty village of Baux. The Ministry of Fine Arts thereupon invited the Prefect of Baux to have the offending placard removed. The Prefect forwarded the order to the Sub-Prefect of Arles, who in turn notified it to the Mayor of Baux. But M. le Maire was a boom friend of A, and took no notice of the letter. The population, however, got to hear of the business, and soon split into two parties. The A party maintained that neither the Ministry of Fine Arts, the Prefect of Marcellin, nor the Sub-Prefect of Arles could give orders to the Mayor of Baux. Their adversaries condemned the rebellion of the mayor, and fortified their case with a letter from the post minister, intimating against the inscription on the rock.

Meanwhile the municipal elections came on, and were fought on the platform of the advertisement. A rival hotel-keeper, the Pere B, headed the foe. Not only does he keep an inn but he is a poet, wears his hair long, and boasts the friendship of Jean Richelin. Naturally his aesthetic leanings indicated him as a defender of Nature's beauties. He succeeded in gaining a notable advantage by being named president of the ballot, and this led to much excitement among the partisans of A, who would not give him their voting papers, and sent their wives to vote for them. Seeing that the day was going against him, A rushed to the mairie, and with a violent kick upset the table, but B seized the ballot box and held fast to it till the police came to the rescue. In the end the B party won, and A was fined $5 for interfering with the election.

The new mayor at once started to remove the obnoxious poster, but when the workmen had erected a scaffolding against the rugged face of the rock, A fetched his rifle and declared he would shoot anybody who climbed up. The mayor did not much like this resolute attitude, and telephoned to the Sub-Prefect of Arles for instructions. That official, being well out of range, replied magnificently: "Order the workmen to mount the scaffolding and pull down the advertisement. The costs of the operation will be paid by A."

Encouraged by the authority of Arles the men advanced boldly up. A did not fire upon them, and the poster was removed. As the rock retained unaltered traces of an artist who was painting in the neighborhood offered to restore it gratis, and so ends this veracious history, which is mute as to the subject of the offending advertisement. Probably it vaunted the hospitality of A, and therefore he and his friends last night fought their battle alone, but had some slightly manufactured with deputies at his back been interested, it would not have been so simple a business.

ACADIANS HOLD CELEBRATION AT ROGERSVILLE, N. B.

Feast of the Acadians and Dedication of Monument to "Our Lady of the Assumption"—Five Thousand Attend

(Moncton Times.)

The celebration of the Feast of the Assumption, and the dedication of the magnificent monument to "Our Lady of the Assumption," took place at Rogersville yesterday, before five thousand people from all points in New Brunswick. About forty members of the Catholic clergy were present and took part in the proceedings, which, owing partly to the excellent manner in which the programme was arranged and carried out, and to the fine weather, were a great success and very enjoyable.

Upon the arrival of the Moncton and Shediac contingent in a special train of six cars, which left Shediac at 6.30 and Moncton at 7.40, arriving in Rogersville at 9.30, the proceedings were started. The Moncton and Shediac contingent were met at the station by the reception committee and welcomed to the village. A procession in which the British and Acadian flags were carried, was then formed, and headed by the Shediac band, marched to the church. Fully one thousand members of L'Assomption society marched, and upon arrival at the church sang "Ave Maria" and "Gloria."

The gathering then entered the church where mass was celebrated by the Right Rev. Father LeDuc, of St. Basile. He was assisted by Rev. Father Doucet, of Shediac, and Rev. Father Cornier of New Brunswick as sub-deacon.

A very impressive sermon was preached by Rev. Father LeDuc, provincial superior of the Redemptorist Order. At the conclusion of the service a procession was formed which marched to the monument to witness the dedication to "Our Lady of the Assumption," by Rev. Monsignor Van der Burch, of Bathurst, was present as the representative of Bishop Barry of Chatham.

This concluded the morning proceedings. In the afternoon commencing at three o'clock, a very enjoyable musical concert was given by the Moncton and Rogersville talent, assisted by the local choir, those taking part being Misses Bellevue, Mrs. Tilmann Melanson, John Melanson and Alfred Gaudet of Moncton, and Miss Richard of Rogersville, who presided at the piano. At the conclusion of the concert songs were delivered by Rev. Father Doucet of Grand Case, and Rev. Father Bellevue of Grand Case.

In the evening another grand procession was formed which marched to the monument, which was illuminated by the Acadians, etc., where a speech was made by Rev. Monsignor Richard, of Rogersville, and the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was pronounced by Rev. Father Doucet. The assembly, numbering over 3,000 people, sang hymns during the benediction.

INVITING SICKNESS

People Whose Blood Supply is Scanty are in Danger of a Breakdown

This is a common ailment, an invitation to sickness. The blood is at work day and night to maintain the health and any lack of strength or purity in the blood is a danger to the system. In the case of a woman, it is the doctor's name for lack of blood. Its surest symptom is pallor. Anemia does not confine itself to age or sex, though it is particularly common to young girls between the ages of 14 and 17, when the system is still developing. The same lack of blood, however, prevents full recovery after the age of 17, and in persons who are present in old age, and in persons who have been under unusual mental or physical strain, it is a danger to the system. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine known to medical science. They act directly on the blood, and bring it back to a healthy state, and give it the strength and vitality Mrs. George Roy, Clair, Sask., says: "I have tested the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills time and again when in a poor condition of the blood, and have found them to be a most reliable remedy. I do not know any better investment than to keep half a dozen boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house, as they will save me more expensive doctor's bills."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 16.—William Stickney Lamson, well known throughout the country as the inventor of cash carriers for stores, died at his home here today. He was 68 years old and leaves two sons. Aunt Sally's Advice to Beauty Seekers

W. C. D. says: "My elbows are so thick-skinned, goosepimple and muddy, I can't wear short sleeves. How can this condition be overcome?" Don't use elbows as props. The treatment recommended to Minnie L. will make your elbows quite presentable.

Ellen B. asks: "What should I do for deep lines under my eyes and across my forehead? Such lines, and all wrinkles, are best obliterated by bathing affected portions in a good astringent and tonic lotion, which strengthens and draws in the relaxed tissue. Here's a reliable formula: 1 ounce powdered alum, 1/2 pint witch hazel; mix and use daily until entirely relieved."

Minnie L.: The under redness, as well as the pimples, may easily be removed by using ordinary mercurized wax. Apply nightly like cold cream and erase morning with warm water. Soon you'll have a beautifully white, clear, soft and velvety complexion. Mercurized wax, sold by all druggists, is better than cosmetics for any complexion trouble. One ointment for most conditions.—Woman's Realm.

THE NEAL INSTITUTE

A Worthy Institution for the Treatment of the Liquor Habit Established in St. John

An institution has recently been opened in St. John for the treatment of the liquor habit. It is situated on Crown street, corner King and Crown streets. It is one of the famous "Neal Institutes," which have been such a boon to all humanity, and especially to those who have had to contend with the great drink evil. The Neal treatment is claimed that perfect relief from the craving for strong liquor is given the patient in three days, and that he is forever freed from bondage. There are at present some sixty Neal Institutes in the United States and seven in Canada.

In the local institution, persons taking treatment are accorded all the comforts of a modern home, and on looking through the building, the visitor finds everything in accordance with the up-to-date, home-like institute.

Each room is well furnished and equipped with everything necessary to give the patient the best results. A thoroughly competent medical doctor is in charge. Full particulars may be obtained from the manager, Mr. B. L. Stevens.

THE LAST TWO PERFORMANCES

There will be a matinee and evening performance of The Red Rose today and tomorrow. Last night was a repetition of the success of Thursday evening when a capacity audience declared The Red Rose to be the finest, largest and most gorgeous musical comedy production seen here in years. It is greatly to be regretted that the engagement is so short but all who attend will see and hear a delightful feast of good music and dancing and a lavish display of costumes and scenery.

A CURE FOR WEAK MEN

Every man who is weak and "going back" knows that there ought to be something that will restore that old "steam" to his physical body. He has tried the usual drug method and found that a fizzle, and yet he knows there must be something.

I know it, too, and I've got it. It's Electricity. You can't name anything more likely to have that force which a weak man lacks. It's a natural power. I can pump it into a weak man while he sleeps, and make him feel like a Sandow in no time. It's the fire of life.

If you have been paying money to doctors and taking nasty drugs for years, and after getting no benefit from it all you find a new lease of life after using my Belt for a month, you will be enthusiastic. You will want to go out to the highways and shout, and you won't care who knows that you were once a weakling, because you are cured and a man again. My Belt is easy to use; put it on when you go to bed you feel the glowing heat from it (no stinging or burn as in old-style Belts), and you feel the nerve tingle with the new life flowing into them. You get up in the morning feeling like a two-year-old.

"My husband is so tender-hearted that he can't even beat a carpet."

Did Him All Kinds of Good

Dr. McLaughlin, Baldwin, Ont.

Dear Sir—The Belt I purchased from you has done me all kinds of good, although I had very little faith in it when I bought it, but in order to give it a fair trial I threw away all medicines and used nothing but the Belt, and it certainly did its work. I can now do as much work as ever without being tired out, and have only worn it a very short time. Yours very truly,

CHAS. W. TOMLINSON.
