STANLEY'S REAR COLUMN.

THE EXPLORER TALKS OF SOME OF THE CHANGES.

He Denies That He Bought Fines and Bribes, Accuses Young of Jealousy, but Avoids Touching on the Quality of the Work Done With Bartlett's What He Really Means.

London, Oct. 30.—Mr. Stanley called to a Telegram reporter today, and carefully waded the charge that he had left the sum of £100,000 to the late Major Bartlett. The bad state of the rear column, he said, was due to the fact that he had been so busy with the Expedition that he had no time to devote to the rear column.

He accuses Young of jealousy and ambition, and says that the latter's officers to include all those who were not in the rear column.

In reply to the charge that he sought to buy the rear column, Mr. Stanley says that he spent £12,000 on the expedition, and that he had no time to devote to the rear column.

He says that he had no time to devote to the rear column, and that he had no time to devote to the rear column.

He says that he had no time to devote to the rear column, and that he had no time to devote to the rear column.

A NEW LEADER.

MR. RANDOLPH CHURCHILL'S ABILITY AND INFLUENCE TO BE RECOGNIZED.

He will be made leader of the Opposition when a Change of Government occurs—His Friends in the Carlton Club Interested for Him.

London, Oct. 31.—The Herald's European edition today says, "During the past few weeks Mr. Churchill has been making a name for himself as a leader of the Opposition. It has been felt for some time by the most prominent men in the party in both Houses outside the administration that he should be restored to active public life by investing him with a responsibility worthy of his ability and influence."

The result of a series of conferences at the Carlton club and much communication by letter, is that Lord Randolph Churchill shall under no circumstances join the Government, but should be restored to active public life by investing him with a responsibility worthy of his ability and influence.

An inquiry—There will be an inquiry into the conduct of the late Major Bartlett, and it is supposed he will be cleared of all charges.
