Mr. Hnatyshyn: Madam Speaker, I rise at this time with respect to question No. 4,120 and to draw it to the attention of the parliamentary secretary. The question which is in three parts, Madam Speaker, is not a difficult one for the government to answer. It asks, for each cabinet minister, the names of the executive assistants and other members of exempt staff who are receiving income, from sources other than funds allotted to ministerial budgets, the names of those who receive income, favours, loans or other benefits of value from sources other than those permitted by the conflict of interest guidelines of cabinet ministers and former cabinet ministers. It also questions whether the Prime Minister has supplied every cabinet minister and each executive assistant and all members of the exempt staff with copies of the code of ethics produced by the late Prime Minister Pearson, and with a copy of the conflict of interest guidelines for cabinet ministers and former cabinet ministers.

• (1510)

The parliamentary secretary will understand that the reason for that question is to ensure that the exempt staff of cabinet ministers are receiving payments under ministerial allotments and to determine whether there are any special favours or benefits such as interest-free loans of payments of income from Crown corporations or other government agencies in an indirect way by way of subterfuge which otherwise would not be concealed from public view. I know the matter would be of some embarrassment to the government if it gave a reply. I know that because of the information we now have before us. I
