Teaching Reading in Public Schools.

17

There is but one other point I wish to notice, in conclusion; that is the importance in teaching reading, of simultance metercise. We know how the voices of a count the same influence of voice developing voice will be one wint the simultaneous exercise of a class in teding. Of course the individual voices will be tessed from time to time, and separate readings will be occasionally prescribed; but the general exercise of a class will, with great advantage, be simultaneous. You can readily distinguish a discordant vowel or inflexion, even when twenty or thirty voices are sounding together. Your pupils in this way receive a much larger amount of exercise and the interest of the class is much better sustained than when each individual is called on for the few moments which can be allotted to him for separate reading.

osed of it, d to.

es made

there is igment. og is to modune, but shows ubject.

influ-

effect.

ntence

eaning

o it ___

rence,

pils a

e-is

ening er as t ad-

anlke wn reng in eis-